Made Famous by Napoleon, the Island Appears to Be Doomed.

When the great French emperor died in exile in 1821 there was probably a wish buried deep in his Corsican heart that the island which had been the wiped from the face of the seas.

Whether or no such a curse was ever east upon the island, it is certain that St. Helena is doomed if not to extinc tion at least to become an uninhabit court house Oregon City, Oregon, tion at least to become an uninhabit-until 10 o'clock A. M. on the first day of July 1914, and at that time navigation the island ceased to be a regular port of call, so that its always scanty exports dwindled almost to the vanishing point; plagues of insects de stroyed its vegetation; rats, brought thither by foreign vessels, multiplied and overran its soil until the government was compelled to offer a bounty of a penny for every rodent captured. Then the English garrison, which had been practically the sole source of in come to the inhabitants, was withdrawn, and the needs of the natives

Then, as if this series of misfortune was not enough, the termite-that curse of tropical and semitropical countries-invaded the island and will unless controlled reduce the city of Jamestown to a pulp of sawdust -- New York Independent.
