SHERIFF HAS CLOSE CALL Terrific Blow that Barely Misses His

Head Shatters Pipe to Tiny Bits There are number of things in this world that it isn't safe to monkey with. Among the more common of these dangerous objects may be mentioned the time-honored buzz-saw a high-power transmission line, and the fist of the average policeman. All these things Sheriff E. T. Mass knew in a general sort of way, but the sheriff never takes life very serious-

Last Friday he was standing or the steps of the courthouse, adding beauty and weight to that building, when Chief Ed Shaw of the Oregon City police department happened Then he made a pass at the another, and finally he clipped the chief one on the ear-not very hard, but as hard as a 250-pound man usually hits when he is fooling. Chief Shaw was somewhat sur-prised. He hadn't been hit on the ear for sometime, and without thinkhe gave his right arm a swing, hoosh" went the big fist of the chief on the endo f that right arm. Sheriff Mass saw it coming and ducked. And he barely ducked in time. The fist missed his head, but his new $7.50 pipe was sticking out of his and threatening prosecution of the mouth, and the cyclonic fist of the liquor house that shipped the "goods" chief caught that. There was a some official just a little bit wiser shower of French briar and amber than the others found that the ex-

SUPERVISORS SELECTED

County Board of Education Picks Men to Review School Work

Last week members of the county board of education elected Brenton Vedder and W. L. Lovelace school supervisors for the coming year. Mr. Lovelace has for some time past has been principal of the school at Scio and comes to Clackamas county well recommended. Mr. Vedder is already avorably known for his work as head the Gladstone school.

In announcing this selection of supervisors Sunday's Enterprise took ecial pains to let its readers know bat E. E. A JUG OF WINE

(Salem Messenger)

Just a jug of wine with no womer song attachments has caused about as much comment and uneasi ness among several parties interested big chief. Then he made another and as a jug of wine ever did cause. The beginning was some time last win-ter when a gallon of wine shipped by a Portland liquor house was dis-covered in the dry territory of Salem addressed to a man occupying a high and responsible position at the State House. The most fearful feature of the discovery was that the name of the shipping firm could not be found on the package, the very feature that the law governing shipments of liquor into dry territory requires to be there. After taking the matter up some official just a little bit wiser all over the courthouse lawn, and now the chief will have to buy the sheriff a new pipe.

press company, in pasting its label on the package had covered up the address of the company that sent out the wine. Now the prosecuting atwould have been spattered over the landscape just as his pipe was. Folks who know how hard-headed the sheriff is can realize from this that Chief Shaw can deliver some punch! torney signifies his intention of prosecuting the express company for covering up the label of the liquor people, and during all this time the purchaser has been waiting for something to quench his terrible thirst.

Some states have laws permitting the registration of names of farms upon payment of a recording fee of $1 This prevents any one living in that state from using the same name. Under such a plan as this every farm ought to have a name, while if the owner or owners of the place do not consider the farm worth naming it is clear that a campaign ought to be started which will put the place in a condition to be worth naming.

The stand of corn should be governed, so far as it can be governed by the machine, by ability of the soil to mature a crop, 'Where the soil is inclined to be thin an average of two or two and a half kernels will give more corn at picking time than a heavier stand. If the soil is rich and fat, on the other hand, a maximum yield may be got by planting as many as five kernels per hill. On soils of medium fertillty three kernels will give a maximum yield per acre.

Dr. A. S. Alexander, the well known veterinarian connected with the University of Wisconsin, puts the difference in value between a mature horse sired by a grade stallion and one sired by a pure bred stallion at $100. On this basis he puts the loss to the horse raisers of Wisconsin at $5,700,000 on the colts sired by the 1,700 grade stallions in service last year. If Dr. Alexander's estimates are well founded it means a big loss to the farmers of the state as a result of a "penny wise, pound foolish," policy.
