TEACHER SAYS SHE IS OPPOSED TO TEACHING SEX HYGIENE In the August Woman's Home Companion a Texas school teacher writes a letter in which she explains in part as follows, why she is opposed to the teaching of sex hygiene in the public schools

"If a child should come to me with a question I would answer him frankly, but not before a class of mixed students. Instruction in sex hygiene should come from the parent or from some mature friend.

While I am sure I hold the love and confidence of some of my pupils, I am not sure I hold the confidence of all to the extent that they would appreciate my discussing delicate subets with them. I would not refuse child information, but it would be riven in confidence, and by no means lo I regard it my business to inform all my pupils in sex hygiene."
