Editor Courier:—

I see that you invite criticism. We have taken the Courier for 20 years or more. It has changed its name several times but like it better now than I ever did before. We like the letters and the neighborhood news, and the weather and climate reports from the county and more from other places. We would like it better yet if you put in more of them.

I also like the letters from the people that give both sides of the story.

I like your getting after the officers when they are doing wrong, and if they were not wrong I think they would get after you.

Mrs. M. J. Dicken.

Progressive Valentine Supper

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Presbyterian church will give a Progressive Valentine Supper in the church parlors Friday evening, February 12, at 6:30.

The committee in charge has developed a novel plan of serving supper; the diners will "progress" from one table to another until they have eaten at five tables. A charge of five cents will be made at each table. A five-piece orchestra will accompany the eating.

After supper a Lincoln program will be given. The proceeds of the evening will be applied on the church building fund. The general public is cordially invited to attend.

Was a Big Hit

The play "Mary Jane's Pa" filled Shiveley's big opera house to the doors Wednesday night, and all render the verdict that it was a splendid success. The parts were splendidly represented and the big audience thoroughly enjoyed the entertainment.

Courier Reporter Gives Interesting Report of Big Institution

The Oregon Agricultural College, one of the greatest institutions of the Northwest, on Saturday closed one of its successful Farmers' Weeks, when the attendance was much larger than any of previous years. During that week there were over 1000 people including dairymen, stockmen, poultry-men and others who took advantage of the excellent lectures and demonstrations given by the various professors of that college.

The closing day the Willamette Valley Editorial Association met and were entertained in a most hospitable manner by the professors and students. An illustrated lecture on poultry was on the programme and was thoroughly enjoyed by the visitors. The different departments of the experimental station were visited, among these being the dairy, where the choicest butter is manufactured, and where the students are doing excellent work.

The mining department, where thousands of numerous gems are on exhibition; domestic science department, where delicacies of the season are prepared, and the livestock and machinery departments are only a few of the places of interest visited. Hundreds of people have visited these departments and are loud in their praises over the work that is being accomplished by the students under the instruction of skillful professors.

The visiting members of the Editorial Association were presented with carnations at the floral department, where the choicest flowers are being grown for the botany department.

The printing office was not forgotten and was the last place visited, and, to the surprise of the editors and those connected with newspapers, spotless towels were hanging on the wall—this rarely being seen in a printing office. It is one of the most sanitary offices of this kind in the state. The printing establishment is in charge of Professor McIntosh and Professor Reed, who entertained the members of the association in a royal manner.

Among the features of the programme for that day was the banquet served at Waldo Hall, this being presided over by President Kerr, of the Oregon Agricultural College. Mr. Kerr gave an excellent address, and was followed by many of the visiting editors. Among those seated at the banquet table was Governor Withycombe, who for so many years was connected with the Agricultural College. The governor gave a brief address, and was well received.

The morning session was devoted to sight-seeing when the visitors were conveyed by automobiles to various parts of the college grounds and through the business portion of the city, including a visit to the commercial club rooms.

The horse show on Friday evening was the first of its kind attempted by the Oregon Agricultural College, and which proved such a successful affair that it will be an unusual event. A lengthy programme, each number of which was heartily received, was given during the evening.

The evening's programme opened with a parade led by Governor Withycombe driving his favorite horse. He was followed by breeders of horses driving the finest steeds, and last came the livestock of the Oregon Agricultural College. The Oregon Agricultural College band, one of the finest musical organizations in the West, furnished the music for the evening. Standing room was at a premium, there being over 5,000 people in attendance. The affair took place in the armory an immense structure near the campus of the college.

Those who have not visited this institution have no idea of the work that is being accomplished by the 1,500 students who are taught under the best of instructors.

Mary Charman Memorial Service

The Memorial Services of Sister Mary Charman was held in our hall Tuesday, March 9th, at 2 P. M. She was a charter member of Meade Relief Corps.

About 53 years ago a few ladies met together to work for the relief of the needy soldiers or their families. It was about 26 years ago when they first organized the Relief Corps and met in their different homes; afterwards getting a hall and met regularly.

Mrs. Charman filled the President's chair for two years and had filled every office in the Corps, the one she delighted most to work in being that of Past Instructor, teaching patriotism to the young. Her life was an inspiration to all in the order, and she gave aid many times to help keep up the order.

The first song was "God be With You 'Till We Meet Again," and the closing song "Nearer My God to Thee."

At the close of the Memorial Services the Corps opened in due form with the president, Mrs. Clyde, in the chair. 25 ladies were present.

The Corps, having already balloted on Mrs. Hathaway and Mrs. London, initiated them into the order. Mrs. Sarah McCown, formerly a resident of this city but now of Sellwood, was with us for the session.

On Friday, February 12th, the Corps gives a chicken dinner for the benefit of the G. A. R., to help them in their work.

FOOD, FINGERS AND FLIES.

Three of the Factors Most Active in Spreading Disease.

There are three principal ways in which disease germs are carried from person to person, and these ways may be easily remembered by three catch words—food, fingers and flies.

The most important foods which carry disease are those which are eaten raw, since thorough cooking destroys disease germs and most cooked foods are only dangerous when they have been infected in the kitchen after cooking. Among raw foods, too, many, like oranges, are safe because they are peeled before eating.

Of all foods the most dangerous are water and milk, because they are often polluted by sewage in the case of water, by human contact in the case of milk, because they are drunk promptly without time for the disease germs to die out and because, usually in the case of water and often in the case of milk, they are not cooked.

The second way in which disease germs are commonly spread is by means of contact between people themselves. Fingers, in the catch phrase, which all who value their health should try to keep clean, stands not only for the fingers themselves, but for all sorts of ways in which disease germs may be exchanged.

In measles and whooping cough and scarlet fever and diphtheria and tuberculosis and many other diseases the germs are present in the nose and throat and are spread from person to person by the fingers, which go too often to the mouth and nose, by drinking cups and spoons and other things which too often are used in common and by the "sneezing" which is common and by the "sneezing" which is common. In typhoid fever and diarrhea and similar diseases the germs are found in the intestinal discharges, and here, too, soiled fingers play an important part in the transmission of the disease.

The third common way in which disease germs are spread is by means of insects. Flies are perhaps the most important insect germ carriers in most states. They often pick up infected material on their legs and bodies and carry it to food, and where there is no good system of sewage disposal they may play a part in the spread of such diseases as typhoid fever. A certain kind of mosquito carries malaria, and this, too, is important in certain districts. In tropical countries a whole host of diseases is carried by insects.—New York American.

Making a Record.

Sir George Trevelyan told a curious little anecdote regarding an interview he had once had with Thackeray. The novelist was engaged at the time in writing "The Virginians," and in the middle of the conversation he commenced to ask each of the young men in the company what was the greatest length they had ever jumped. The greatest jump claimed was twenty-two feet.

"Well," said Thackeray, "then I will make Washington jump twenty-four." So reputations are made.—London Standard.

Offensively Officious.

"You always go home exceedingly early, old man."

"Yes. Our neighbors are the cause of that."

"How so?"

"If I stay downtown a minute late they come right over and condone with my wife."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Caviar.

Caviar is the roe of the sturgeon prepared as a table delicacy. As a dish too rare to be known by the generality of people and the flavor of which would not be relished by an uneducated palate. Shakespeare makes Hamlet speak of it.

Wires Near Houses.

The sight of a man trimming a tree suddenly falling to the ground, killed by a shock from an electric wire against which the branches were blown, leads Philip E. Edelman to suggest in the Scientific American that not nearly enough care is taken in stringing high power wires to keep them far away from trees, barns and houses. Mr. Edelman says that every municipality should require high voltage wires to be separated from all neighboring objects by a distance of not less than eight or ten feet.—New York World.

A Rebuke.

"Mary followed Edward," mumbled the high school girl who was trying to fix the sovereigns of England in her mind.

"What's that?" spoke up grandma, who had been dozing.

"Mary followed Edward."

"Then you keep away from Mary. I don't want you to go with them kind. Girls is getting too bold."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Worried.

"That dog of Black's will be the death of me, barking at me every time I pass."

"But barking dogs don't bite."

"I know, but I'd rather be bitten at once than kept in suspense."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Better Feed for Less Money

My name is Kitchener's Governor of Corona. Sire, Imp. Lord Kitchener. Dam, Imp. Corona of Sea View Farm II. I was Senior and Grand Champion Oregon State Fair, 1914. Am owned by A. I. and J. Hughes, of Red Wings Farm, Oregon City, Rt. 2. I am fed Larrow's Molasses Beet Pulp and I like it. At the time I was being shown, all admired my slick coat, which was in part due to the Beet Pulp. This feed costs less, and goes farther, and produces more milk than any other class of feed and is simply a necessity on all dairy farms.
