CHERRYVILLE

The good old summer time! June is with us once more with its beautiful roses and blushing brides. The fish hatchery at the dam has been removed to Bull Run, where there are feeding ponds for the young fry. The shingle mill men secured another big order this week for their high class shingles, and got a communication from a Wisconsin firm that they would take their entire output, and stated that if they would enlarge their plant to ten times its capacity they would be glad to contract for all they could produce. Albert Brownell, of Portland, one of the oldest and most experienced orchardists in the state, is developing an orchard here a mile west of town. He says this locality is preferable to Hood River because the climate is more regular and the water is far superior, while the danger to late frosts on the higher ground is much less. He thinks the "Delicious" is one of the coming apples, as it is of very superior quality, has a very attractive appearance and keeps well. Portland papers are full of frantic appeals for money to feed their starving poor, and in the same issue they are boasting of their immense bank deposits, some $20,000,000, which they seem determined shall be kept there as an evidence of their solvency, it is to be presumed; and are continually urging people to bring their money to the banks. Suppose the writer of this item had 20,000,000 farms and refused to use them in any way--what good would that do to anybody? In the meantime high-class propositions on every hand here in Oregon are waiting on every hand for idle money, and idle workers who are seeking employment daily.

VIOLA

Hicinbotham and family were over near Cougar Mountain to visit with Jake Laue and wife, Sunday.

A retort for distilling creosote can be procured for something like $150 and a party at Vancouver is making $20 daily, clear, so it is alleged. Why don't the financial experts and great philanthropists in Portland start up this industry, give employment to their hungry poor and at the same time pile up some money for themselves to put in Ladd & Titton's bank, or that other dear friend of humanity, Pittock of the Oregonian?

Ex-President Taft is out with an illuminating address about the sure return to power of the old standard party next year. Don't count your chickens before they are hatched, Mr. Taft. Did any of your readers ever hear this fat and mighty man of avoirdupois attempt to make a speech? It certainly is a painful experience. His little, short, jerky sentences are uttered in a rising and falling cadence that drones on for an interminable time without pitch or point, and after a few minutes his voice becomes so husky that a person a short distance away can hardly hear him at all. There is little likelihood of anyone of the political complexion of Taft ever occupying the White House. The American people are not that silly.

Arthur Eaden and wife, of Logan, and George Eaden and wife, of Stone, were over to visit their parents at the Viola store, recently. Tom Eaden, our merchant, has had the store painted on the inside, the work being done by Tom Jubb. Will Hubert and wife were down to see Babe White and wife one evening last week. A number of teams were seen going along Main street loaded with pipe for the new water line, Monday. Tracey and Givens, of Estacada, have a commission house at Viol for feed and grain and anything a farmer needs. Frank Cummins has charge of it here and the hauling is done by A. C. White. Bob Mattoon and family, of Estacada, were over Sunday to see their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Mattoon, also Mrs. B. Mattoon's sister, Mrs. A. C. White and baby girl.

LOGAN

Providence favored us with ideal weather for the picnic on June 5th, and a good crowd was out to enjoy it. The Redland band furnished excellent music and fine program was furnished under the leadership of Mrs. Belle Funk, grange leader. The program was given mostly by the children as it was their day, and consisted of songs, recitations, drills, etc. There was a May pole, swings, a stand for refreshments and a general good chance for enjoyment. The day closed with a ball game between the Logan team and a made up nine, which unfortunately, was not finished.

W. E. Cromer secured contributions to finish the gap in the Spring-water road and Supervisor Swales is at work at it now. This is an important piece of work and we are glad to see it done.

MEREDITH'S VIEWS

Lively Comments on Current Topics of Local Interest Clover hay will be scarce than booze in a Moose lodge this season. There is a move by some persons unknown to have eggs graded by weight instead of race, color or previous condition of servitude. We now have in our scientific (?) markets of U. S. A. 108 grades of cotton; 15 grades of corn and not a single candidate in the two old parties fit for president found yet. We must grade our politicians so W. W. Myers won't be related to all the office holders. Freight rates are going down since we opened OUR canal about as fast as our elevator is going up with Oregon City boasting for the farmers and the farmers boasting for Oregon City and both parties to the game turning jacks from the bottom of the deck. Merchants and farmers are going to the depot for their supplies, shipped in from Portland; and farmers are buying for less than merchants and merchants selling shipped in produce and the result is the home-made brand $6.00 per week board for cheap foreign labor building our pipe line.

Dr. J. A. van Brakle should not be sent away and have the allopaths show him how to treat consumptives. He does not seem to catch on how to give them medicine, take their money and rely on the undertaker for the remainder. Our county health officer knows how to place yellow cards on your front door in such a manner that neither candidates, your mother-in-law or booze hunters will molest you. Even chicken thieves fail to call. Our health officer is worth more than a sheriff. Keep him at home. He knows tricks enough now.

Tons of agricultural advice go through the mails at once cent per pound. Wise men do not need advice and fools won't take it, so what's the use? They tell us to have a bank account, but if we did the banks would all go broke so what's the use? They tell us to grade our stuff but we already have 108 grades of cotton, 15 grades of corn, so what's the use? They tell us how to fix our bob sleds to haul hay in the winter in the Willamette valley, but what's the use?

W. W. Harris could cooperate with some of his neighbors and have a big stock sale at Mulino instead of Oregon City. It is a growing town with plenty of room in the center of a stock raising and stock buying community. It has many advantages, with pure water, honest merchants, a dandy location for a court-house, but no place for a passenger elevator or Moose lodge. They should pull for a fish hatchery, high school, Carnegie library, a woman's club, a board of trade and a dam site. We are pleased to read several columns in Portland papers about the wonderful prosperity of one A. L. Mills, written by himself. There are 216,999 other Portland people not heard from but we would be much more pleased to read of all of them enjoying the same prosperity. Mr. Mills is a banker. We have heard of cannery workers and department store girls and various other people who are working hard at low wages when work can be had and trying to earn a living from their own labor. P. W. MEREDITH.
