38.50 New York, June 10, 1915. 'What is so rare as a day in June, 12.50 When earth tries heaven if it be in

37.50 So thinks the girl who gathers up her gaily painted sprinkling pot, her shears, her basket, and her kneelingpad, and trudges off to the garden to enjoy an hour or two of solitude and 25.00 intimate association with the sunshine and flowers. It is quite a fadthis pottering among your own posies; a phenomenon one might almost call it, wherein the artistic finds expression in paraphanalia which blends cretonne which have taken their with the landscape.

20.00 The shops abound with gay im portations, smocks, bonnets 10.00 aprons, to tempt those who tarry within the garden gate. The smocks 16.00 in themselves are enough to turn one 20.00 to rakes, spades and garden baskets. 5.00 I am told the fad originated in Eng-15.00 land; certainly it is charming enough to belong to old Britany. This garment has much the appearance of a middy, grown to greater length, coming just below the knee, being 10.00 slashed to slip on over the head.
10.00 Usually it is made with set-in-sleeves 15.00 and yoke, and smocked front and 15.00 back, and on pockets and sleeves. 20.00 For the most part linen, unbleached muslin, cretonne aind silk are used 15.00 in the making.

All a garden, with cockle-shells and silver bells, needs is a Mistress 10.00 Mary, quite contrary, in one of these 10.00 fetching garden smocks. Can you 10.00 picture anything more charming than 8.00 a bright-eyed girl in a blue smock, HM HTH TH THHH white hat, skirt and shoes, among 8,00 the roses in an old garden? 10.00 chance, there is a woven wicker basket on a can, stuck in the ground to lunice Horner).. 10.00 hold the posies, and a few plant sticks, with parrots, cardinals, and bluebirds, perched on top, scattered among the flowers to make the pic-7.00 ture by nature quite complete. Just looking at a yellow linen smock, with 3.10 flowered cretonne collar, hat and skirt to match, brings to mind an old-fashioned garden with its without one. Watching passing events, the shopkeeper concludes that all the 20.00 world is a garden, and straightway fills his window with giddy wheel-

There was a garden set offered the other day in one of the shops for $12 complete, consisting of a flat, boat-10.00 shaped basket of brown wicker, fitted with shears, a collapsible ruler, 1.00 grubber, marker, rake, brown burlap kneeling-pad, and an apron of the brown burlap. In fact, all the tools now come light in weight to fill the requirements of the woman garden-1.00 er; and the fixture sin bright colors to catch her eye. A Belgian, who keeps a shop in 3.00 the down-town section of the city. made a name for himself in the early season, by introducing the garden 5.85 sticks these are wooden canes point-3.90 ed at one end with figures of animals, people, and flowers on the top, to stick in the ground and tie the 5.00 plants to. A maiden all forlors stands side by side with the man all shaven and shorn; for $2.50 the pair will hold up your pet rose bush all 1.50 summer, or keep the golden-glow in order. A black cat with back hump 4.65 ed, ad tail skyward, is another familiar figure on the sticks, and blue-5,00 birds, and red cardinals, make bright spots in the green shrubbery 10,00 Some importations have Dutch windmills on top and an expensive stick 4.50 has a fairy, gracefully poised on a tondstool. One man has even gone 84.70 so far as to use bonny rabbits in place of the birds, and an ingenous

The woman who makes gardening er summer pastime may even go farther and select the dress she wears with the apron to harmonize with grass, flowers and dovecote. A brown burlap or dark blue linen will give the desired effect, made with plain waist, full skirt, and the broad past few months discloses two distinct reasons for this change in fash; one feature, at least, of the mode. no trouble in finding these accessor- the waistline capered about when cor- feta dress. Wherever the New Yorkanticipated the craze, for there are hats, gloves, and shoes, galore for hats, gloves, and shoes, galore for the purpose. First come the peanut straws and cane-bottom-chair hats, with floppy brims to protect the wearer from the sun. These are the form, namely, the waistline, as trimmed with a rosette of cretonne to match the smock, or apron, a velvet bow or a cluster of straw flowers. Then there are poke shapes and sunbonnets with streamers of style from a peep in a 1915 fashine book; but the Chinese coolie hats are the novelties of the season. With streamers attatched at the side, mistraight rows of hollyhocks. So it lady can wear the plateau on her goes that there is a smock for every head, or when the sun is yet in the garden, and no garden is complete East, use it as a basket to carry her

Since gloves must be worn to protect the hands, the stores are showing chamois and canvas for this purpose, and if you listen close you will hear the girl behind the counter tell each customer in a bored voice to buy a size larger than they usually wear It is easy to tell that this girl, too, has been caught in the thrall of the gardening craze, and is thinking no doubt, of larkspur and roses, instead of the gloves her customer wears. is invariably followed by the discovery that the bills for ribbons are much less than before. A large corporation recently found that its ribbon expense was cut in two. This is not an accident. It is the result of the mechanical construction that makes the L. C. Smith & Bros. cheapest to maintain.

The ball bearings give light touch and eliminate pounding impact. The ribbon is actuated by the carriage, not the typebar. The ribbon mechanism is automatic, so that the ribbon reverses at the instant the end is reached and without added strain.

Low ribbon cost, low cost of maintenance and the highest efficiency — these are guaranteed to L. C. Smith & Bros. users.
