RHEUMATISM ARRESTED

Many people suffer the tortures of lame muscles and stiffened joints because of impurities in the blood, and each succeeding attack seems more acute until rheumatism has invaded the whole system. To arrest rheumatism it is quite as important to improve your general health as to purify your blood, and the cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion is nature's great blood-maker, while its medicinal nourishment strengthens the organs to expel the impurities and rebuild your strength. Scott's Emulsion is helping thousands every day who could not find other relief. Refuse the alcoholic substitutes.

NOW IS THE TIME

Hour to Attack Plant Pests Has Arrived, Says Agricultural Expert

With the beginning of the fall rains it is to be expected that slugs will again become active in infested territory, and a good time to stop them is before they get fairly started. After once finding a lodgement in such crops as head lettuce, they are slow to get and it is often impossible to dislodge them until the lettuce is pulled for the table or market. At these times the presence of the slug greatly detracts from the appearance and attractiveness of the vegetable, and often dulls the appetite.

Among the measures recommended by Professor A. L. Lovett, of O. A. C., are: clean up all crop remnants and weeds; trap the slugs with boards or gunny sacks, and kill them early in the morning; arsenical dust sprays on cabbage and other growthy plants; and the poison bran mash or poisoned greens. The arsenical dust is made by using one part of the powdered arsenate of lead to eight parts of sifted wood ashes, or sulfur. The bran mash is made by mixing 16 pounds of bran with paris green 1/2 pound, soft one-fourth pound and cheap syrup 1 quart. Warm water to make a crumbly mash. Finely chopped leaves may be used for the bran. Scatter along borders of field and near plants attacked.

Advice in Gresham Outlook Sounds Plausible at Any Rate

The front page of a recent number of the Gresham Outlook is graced with directions furnished by a "well known Multnomah county lawyer" for avoiding divorces. The attorney suggests a code of rules to be followed by jarring couples, and some of the rules are as follows:

"Avoid the habit of not eating together and not sleeping in the same room.

"Do not be careless, when separated for a day or more on business, at work or otherwise, about telephoning, writing or sending word home.

"Avoid being away from each other over night, or late in the night, except in cases wherein you can agree as to the necessity.

"Entertain each other, on return, by explaining absence and whereabouts, and what was done or said in the other's absence."

This may work in Gresham, but the Courier knows some families about these parts where the last rule, anyway, would hardly work at all. In fact when hubby comes home and tries to talk to his wife "explaining absence and whereabouts," he is not regarded as "entertaining." Usually the wife listens for a few seconds, and then says "Liar."

DAIRY and CREAMERY

FEED FOR DAIRY COWS.

Grain Sprinkled Over Silage Keeps Cattle From Gorging.

It seldom pays to cut hay fine for dairy cattle. Food that the cow consumes stays in the paunch a sufficient length of time to become softened and is churned about until it reaches a semiliquid state before passing on through the stomach, writes a correspondent of the Country Gentleman. For this reason cutting the fodder before feeding is unnecessary. For horses that are working very hard it is some times advisable to chop the hay, but it should then be moistened to prevent danger of heaves.

Grain may be sprinkled over silage to good advantage. This keeps cows from gorging the feed and also prevents any likelihood of impaction in the stomach due to too much heavy feed being given at one time. It is not advisable to feed grain in the form of slop to dairy cattle, the added returns being practically nothing and the labor involved more than offsetting any saving. If one gives the cattle access to plenty of salt there will be no question of their drinking all the water they need. Many mix salt with the feed, but when this is done some cows may get more and others less than is desirable. A far better way is to feed it in a clean manger, so one can tell whether or not the cow cleans it up. Still better, it may be placed in a box protected from storm and left near the watering trough. The cattle soon find this and eat all they desire.

With grains high priced it behooves every feeder to study the feed control bulletin put out by his experiment station in order to ascertain the true value of the various feeding stuffs on the market.

BARLEY FOR DAIRY COWS.

Fed in Conjunction With Alfalfa It Increased Flow of Milk.

Professors True, Woll and Voorhees of the California experiment station conducted short experiments to determine the value of barley as a supplementary feed to alfalfa, which are reported in bulletin 256. The results of the tests with barley and alfalfa show that in every instance barley increased the milk flow. In one instance as high as 13 per cent increase was obtained and in another 16 per cent. In only one instance did the barley return a direct profit—that is, on the milk produced.

The bulletin well states that the profit or loss in the feeding of barley cannot be wholly estimated upon the direct returns of increased milk flow, for feeding the cow early in her period of lactation often puts her in condition for milking a longer period and sustaining a higher milk flow, says Hoard's Dairyman. It would seem from what we gather from this bulletin that the farmer can well afford to feed his fresh cows some barley, as it not only keeps them in better physical condition, but without question will produce better offspring.

Dutch Belted cattle originated in Holland more than 200 years ago and were introduced into the United States about 1836. In general adaptation they are very similar to the Holstein, but are of smaller size. They are a distinctly dairy breed, but the public records made have not equalled those of the Holstein. The most notable characteristic of the breed is the white belt that encircles the body of the animal, which otherwise is black. The bull shown is a Dutch Belted.

Barley was fed at the rate of one pound for every five pounds of milk produced, and the cows were given a very liberal allowance of alfalfa hay, almost more, it would seem, than they could consume to advantage.

The conclusion of the bulletin is as follows: "The results of the two experiments with feeding barley to cows on alfalfa reported in this bulletin show that an immediate increase in production will be secured as a result of the grain feeding, but that this increase will not, as a rule, pay for the extra cost of the ration. On account of the increased production obtained and the residual effect of the grain feeding, as well as its favorable influence on the condition of the cows and their offspring, it may be concluded, however, that the practice of feeding grain to cows on alfalfa is economically sound and may be recommended. This holds true, especially for helpers and young cows as well as for heavy producing animals which cannot be brought to a maximum production on roughage only even if this be as excellent and palatable a feed as green alfalfa or good alfalfa hay."

Time to Breed Heifers.
A heifer should be bred so that she will calve when two years old. She should be well developed by good feeding and care prior to breeding. If a heifer is allowed to go twenty months or more unbred she may prove a shy breeder.

Minister Gives Testimony

The Rev. C. M. Knighton, Havana, Fla., writes: "For three months I suffered intense pain in kidneys and back, which at times laid me up entirely. I read of Foley Kidney Pills and after trying various remedies without result I decided to try the Foley treatment. I was relieved almost with the first dose and it is a fact that I used only 1 1/2 bottles when all of the pains disappeared. I am 55 years of age and now feel like a young man again."—Jones Drug Co.

Dear Amy:—
I don't wonder that Jennie's husband stays down town nights so much. She doesn't seem to care a thing about fixing up her home. Fred would stay home more, I know, if Jennie would only make it more congenial for him.

He won't mind giving her the money to buy furniture with, either, if she'll only go buy it and keep it looking right when she gets it. All she thinks about is how she looks when she is out—not what her home looks like when Fred is in.

Bye, Bye. Lou.

P.S.—Jennie could furnish her home so nicely with first-class furniture and for so little money, too, if she would only visit
