A REFLECTION

It's a good thing to take a look about us once in a while, and study those around us. Therefore, this store glances every little while over its own little company of willing co-workers and studies conditions from THEIR point of view. Without co-operation no real bonds of strength can be developed between employer and employee. The best work is done slowly and carefully—the worst at high speed. This store does not harass its employees or urge them to undue haste. It studies their conditions from their point of view as well as YOURS.
