

Worth Careful Thought

Do you read the label to know whether your baking powder is made from cream of tartar or, on the other hand, from alum or phosphate?

Royal Baking Powder is made from cream of tartar, derived from grapes, and adds to the food only wholesome qualities.

Other baking powders contain alum or phosphate, both of mineral origin, and used as substitutes for cream of tartar because of their cheapness.

Never sacrifice quality and healthfulness for low price.

Has Eight Children

Mrs. P. Rehkamp, 2404 Herman St., Covington, Ky., writes: "I have been using Foley's Honey and Tar for nearly two years and can find no better cough syrup. I have eight children and give it to all of them. They all were subjects to croup from babies on." It is a safe and reliable medicine for men and women as well as children. LIVE STOCK NOTES.

Feed the live stock carefully. The spring pasture is a long way off. Plan to give the pasture a good chance next year by conserving a reserve of roughage for spring feeding. Good beef bulls are scarce. Use and keep only the best. A warm pen is necessary for the farrowing sow, but a single board, low roofed cabin is ample shelter for all other mature pigs. Why lose money in rearing three and four year old steers when baby beeves and well finished two year olds are commanding the top prices? Finish beef early and thoroughly. Separate the lambs from the mature sheep and keep them growing by feeding good hay, turnips and a limited grain ration. Good preparation of ewes for lambing is as essential as preparing a dairy cow for her lactation period. Don't get the ewes too fat.

PROFITS IN FALL PIGS WHEN PROPERLY FED

When properly handled fall pigs can frequently be made to turn off pork with less grain per pound of pork produced than the spring pigs, says the Kansas Farmer. In order to accomplish this the greatest possible use of forage must be made. If fall pigs had little fall pasture in the form of alfalfa or rape and later rye or wheat with good alfalfa hay through the winter they have been grown thus far without any excessive amount of grain feeding. With the coming on of the pasture season again these shoats which have been grown through the winter with a minimum amount of grain are in splendid condition to make further growth without feeding very heavily on grain. The well grown fall shoat is really in a position to make much larger use of green forage than are the spring pigs. They need not be fed to exceed 2 per cent of their live weight in grain at any time through the summer. In fact, with the present high price of grain it would probably be profitable to place them on an almost exclusive pasture diet for a portion at least of the summer. Pigs handled in this manner will have a lank appearance, but will be growing, and when grain is again available in the fall they can be brought to heavyweights and turned off on the market with the possibility of making some profit.

Numerous experiments in the United States and Canada have proved that of the land type there has never been a breed that has made more gain for feed consumed than the Chester White. In disposition this hog is unexcelled, thereby reducing to a minimum the loss of small pigs as compared to more nervous crossbreeds. In prolificacy its average litter is on a par with that of the Duroc, which is large enough for any animal to care for. Chester White sows give an abundant flow of rich milk, sufficient to supply a large litter of uniform pigs until weaning age with ample rations for rapid growth. This sow shown is a Chester White.

With the prevailing conditions the man having a bunch of fall pigs on his hands should plan to have some cheap grain at the earliest possible date. Fields which can be pastured may be planted to some of the extremely early varieties of corn with profit. Some of these varieties will mature grain as early as July, and hogs can be turned into these early maturing grainfields and harvest the crop themselves, running on alfalfa pasture at the same time. Fattening likewise will mature grain at a very early date and can be used profitably in the same manner.

Breeding Goats.

Goats may be bred at any time of the year, and the kids will be dropped about five months later (147 to 152 days), the period of gestation being the same as with sheep. The mother goat should have dry, warm and comfortable quarters when the kids are young to be born, and the kids should not be exposed to cold or storm. Kids are very tender until they have reached the age of several weeks and must be kept dry and warm and be well nourished. They may be weaned at from three to four months, having been allowed a little green food as soon as they would begin to eat it, and then may have grain in addition to their other food, oats being one of the best grain foods.—Rural New Yorker.

Feeding Swine.

The feeding pig not making rapid gains is being fed at a loss. Exercise and succulent feed are as essential to breeding pigs as to any other class of stock. Prepare the sow for the farrowing period. Fine clover hay and whole or pulped roots may be fed advantageously to mature sows and boars.

AS TO JAMES HAYCK

Neighbors of Man Buried by Charity Say Facts Incorrectly Stated

The Courier has received a letter signed by neighbors of the late Mr. James Hayck, in which objection is voiced to some of the things that this paper printed recently regarding the distressing episode in the upper part of the county. This letter follows.

Editor, Courier: In your issue of March 16 you had an article, "Hallowed Ground to Hold Remains," which seems a reflection on the people of this community; and some of us think it is time that the facts in the case be made known. First, you say "grudgingly the neighbors turned out." The truth is that as soon as Mr. Moehnke saw the fire—about six o'clock in the morning—the building was already burned to the ground. He immediately called some of the neighbors, who went to the scene in haste, not grudgingly. He also called Mr. William Moehnke at Oregon City, who was looking after Mr. Hayck's affairs, and he notified the coroner. Both were on the scene by eleven o'clock. The coroner looked at the ruins and said: "Not much to be done here." He did not ask the people what they wanted to do, but did say: "Mr. Schuebel, what do you think ought to be done?" And he (the coroner) said taxes are high, etc. And Mr. Schuebel said he thought being a human being was entitled to decent burial. Some parts

WEAK, SORE LUNGS

Restored To Health By Vinol Camden, N. J.—"I had a deep seated cough, was run-down, and my lungs were weak and sore. I had tried everything suggested without help. One evening I read about Vinol and decided to try it. Soon I noticed an improvement. I kept on taking it and today I am a well man. The soreness is all gone from my lungs, I do not have any cough and have gained fifteen pounds."

Electric Service Brings Real Comfort

It is the little comforts and conveniences—the improved ways of doing the daily household tasks—which change houses into homes.

Electricity has a deft way of doing your household work which is both pleasing to you and most economical.

"But," you say, "my house is not wired. How can I use Electric Service?"

The answer is very simple. Many finished houses here in Oregon City have been completely wired for Electric Service—wired without the slightest damage to walls, ceilings or decorations—without confusion or dirt.

Believing that there are still many households in Oregon City which would be glad to take advantage of Electric Service, we have joined in a great, nation wide movement to wire more houses for Electric Service during "Wire Your Home" Month.

During "Wire Your Home" Month, March 15 to April 15, we will make special concessions which will make it decidedly to your advantage to have your home improved with Electric Service.

We have made arrangements to handle a large volume of business—but some delay will be unavoidable when the rush begins. So make your arrangements early. Write, phone or call today for full particulars and estimates.

of the body were still smouldering in the ruins, while some of the bones had been gathered by some of the bystanders. You say they suggested the coroner leave the ruins as he found them. The truth is he asked Mr. Chris Moehnke to rake together what he could and cover the same, and said it was foolish sentiment to have a burial, and for Mr. Moehnke to send in his bill. Now to some of us it seems like there is a nigger in the woodpile somewhere, and there are some who can guess within an inch where he is. Mr. Chris Moehnke gathered together all he could find and stored them in a dry place. In your article you say he labored on the neighbors' farms. The facts are he never worked for his neighbors, but worked a small patch of ground for himself the past two years. He was almost unable to do anything, but according to his word was living on his money. You sure had somebody with a great head on him to write such an article, for Mr. Hayck never got tired working for his neighbors. He had a good stove and a bed with springs. He had all the necessities of life, and lived as he wished to live. (Signed) J. C. FRYE, ARTHUR BLUHM, J. G. MOEHNKE, CHRIS MOEHNKE, J. BLUHM, G. A. SCHUEBEL.

The Courier is also in receipt of another letter dealing with the same episode. The second letter is signed by G. A. Schuebel, one of those who signed the other letter. Mr. Schuebel's letter is approximately the same as the first letter, save that it adds this kindly touch:

"In the matter of old man Hayck, who was burned to death January 12, Mr. Hayck was not a pauper, as the writer of the articles would make the public believe. He always paid cash for all the whiskey (and he used considerable before the state went dry) and other necessities of life; and never begged or asked for charity, and it is positively known that he had several dollars the day before he died."

The signers of the above letters expressed a desire to see the communications printed in the columns of the Courier. The Courier herewith prints them; and has no comment whatsoever to make at this time.

SHOT RINGS OUT
Chief Blanchard Tries to Stop Fugitive by Frightening Him

Charles Wells, 18 years old, would persist in hanging about the county seat pool halls, even though Chief Blanchard had warned him that boys under 21 were barred from such places by city and state laws. Thursday afternoon young Wells was in a pool hall, and was ordered by the chief to leave. He didn't do it, and the police officer and the lad had quite a tussle before the former prevailed.

On the way to the jail, whether the chief was leading his prisoner, Wells broke and ran, heading over the suspension bridge. Chief Blanchard took up the pursuit, and in the course of sprinting dropped his revolver. Pausing to pick it up, the chief brought him of strategy, and fired a shot into the planking of the bridge in the hopes of frigitening Wells.

He did frighten him, but not into stopping. Instead Wells redoubled his speed, and made no halt till he reached West Linn. There he waited for the chief and defied the officer to arrest him, saying that West Linn was out of Blanchard's jurisdiction.

In spite of this argument the chief put the "nippers" on his prisoner and hauled him to jail. Friday morning Recorder Loder gave the youth a fifty dollar fine and 25 days in jail to think it over.

CHILE IS OUR FRIEND

Signs of Pan-American Good Will Found in South American Nation

Besides the increase in trade revealed by general commercial statistics, there have lately been many other indicative "straws" that seem to point to a very high admiration on the part of Chileans for all things American. In some lines this has been so marked as to cause comment among foreigners and Chileans alike. It would be exceptional to pick up a newspaper nowadays and not find one or more leading articles that deal in a favorable way with the United States. Out of five pages of reading matter, yesterday's Ultimas Noticias had one entire page devoted to American affairs, in addition to numerous cablegrams dated from New York or Washington. Papers of the last few days have had articles on "Chilean Paintings in the United States; How They Were Exhibited at San Francisco," "Booker T. Washington," "Chilean Music at the Scientific Congress," "How the Americans Build Roads," "American Mining Methods," an illustrated page on the development of the Wananaker stores, and many other shorter articles.

The magazines and illustrated weeklies also show the North American influence. Many of their pictures and covers are reproduced from northern periodicals. Fashion articles are translated from journals published in the United States, and, in fact, often form the major part of the material in the best local publications of that character. American styles have not, however, progressed very rapidly, Chilean women still preferring French models. The men are taking up a few American ideas, there being many who quite pride themselves on being dressed in "American style." This really means a great deal, as it carries with it much good will.

Regarding the educational interest in the United States much has already been written. The enthusiasm among local university students is considerable. Twenty students are known to have sailed to the United States during the past year, and the total number is probably much greater.

EAT EGGS, SAYS EDITOR

Good Way Suggested to Keep Prices Up When Production is Heavy

Quantity, quality, price and the reasonable tastes of eggs all unite in making this the season of the year when egg eating becomes the heaviest. Under the title, "Eggs," Mr. Craig, "consumers should now use lots of eggs. They are the best food that can be eaten at this time. Eat them fried, boiled, scrambled, poached, etc. In this way help create a demand for them that will prevent the markets from going so low as to discourage chicken raisers."
