EVOLUTION OF A WORD.

"Hypocrite" Was Once the Title of a Pantomime Actor. Do you know what a hypocrite is? Why, he is a person who uses the church as a cloak to cover graft and greed and all manner of evildoing. At least that is what he was in the days of our fathers. More recently he has taken on another color, a different kind of cloak. He need not be a dissembler merely in the matter of religion. Hypocrisy may be practiced in friendship, in culture, in philanthropy. It goes a degree further even than that, for the hypocrite may deceive himself as well as his fellow man.

But how did the word, which is obviously a compound of "hypo," meaning "under," and the very familiar "critic" come to mean a person who deceives either himself or other people? This question suggests a second one: What is a critic?

The Greek verb from which the noun was derived meant originally to analyze, separate or judge. So the critic came to be one who had been set apart or judged worthy to plead a cause or present an argument. At one stage of its evolution the critic was a person who recited the words of the great dramatists. He was an actor—who did not act. The gestures were supplied by a man trained for that purpose, who went through a sort of pantomime, while the real interpreter of the part gave the melodiously intoned words.

The pantomime artist was a "hypocrite" because he played an under part to the "critic." Later, when the speaking and acting were done by the same person, he was called the "hypocrite." Now any one who plays a part not his own is practicing hypocrisy.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

ANCIENT MEALTIMES.

When They Rose at 5, Dined at 9 and Supped at 5.

The change in mealtimes is evidenced by the old rime: To rise at five and dine at nine, To sup at five and bed at nine, Will make a man live to ninety-nine.

But one suspected that the change is in the names of the meals rather than in the hours. Our ancestors would have termed our luncheon dinner and our dinner supper.

It is a curious fact that in some of the Oxford colleges, where the founders made allowances for the meals of the students, a much larger sum is allotted for supper than for dinner, implying that the former was the more substantial meal. Taken at 5 or 6 o'clock, it was really "early dinner."

Some particulars of the mealtimes of our ancestors may be found in William Harrison's "Description of England," published in 1587:

"With us the nobility, gentry and students do ordinarily go to dinner at 11 before noon and to supper at 5 or between 5 and 6 at afternoon. The merchants dine and sup seldom before 12 at noon and 6 at night, especially in London. The husbandmen dine also at high noon, as they call it, and sup at 7 or 8, but out of the term in our universities the scholars dine at 10.

As for the poorest sort, they generally dine and sup when they may, so that to talk of their order of repeat it were but a needless matter."—London Chronicle.

Melbourne, a City That Planned. There is and always has been a great amount of public spirit in Melbourne, due, in large part, to the Scotch element that has predominated from the beginning. "The first citizens, led by Scots, as a rule, set to work with magnificent faith in the future. A city was planned worthy of being the capital of 10,000,000 people, and the public buildings were designed on the same generous scale. The soil on the site was deep and rich. That suggested tree planting, and most of the streets are today relieved by handsome foliage, and the parks which ring the city round have trees worthy of the forests of Europe. The avenue of elms in Fitzroy gardens certainly represents that tree at its best.—Bishop E. E. Hoss in Dallas News.

The Blind Man's Lantern. A blind man in Kibon (a Caucasian village) came back from the river one night bringing a pitcher of water and carrying in his hand a lighted lantern. Some one meeting him said: "You're blind. It's all the same to you whether it's day or night. Of what use to you is a lantern?" "I don't carry the lantern in order to see the road," replied the blind man, "but to keep some fool like you from running against me and breaking my pitcher."

Not a Gay One. "Do you believe all men are gay deceivers?" asked Mrs. Twobible. "No, indeed," answered Mrs. Dubwaite. "There's Mr. Dubwaite, for instance."

"Yes?" "In his efforts to deceive me he even goes so far as to shed tears!"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Antagonists. How many who have deemed themselves antagonists will smile hereafter when they look back upon the world's wide harvest field and perceive that in unconscious brotherhood they were helping to bind the selfsame sheaf?—Hawthorne.

No Escape. Bella—I understand your sister married a struggling young man? Gus-Yes; he struggled hard, but he couldn't get away from her.

Man is an imitative creature, and whoever is foremost leads the herd.—Schiller.

Mrs. Stellwell Honored. Mrs. Stellwell was accorded Mrs. Jennie Stellwell at a very pleasant surprise party held on Saturday afternoon at the home of her sister, Mrs. R. M. C. Brown, 302 Molalla avenue. Many pretty tokens, as well as a beautiful floral piece, were presented to the honor guest. Sixteen friends of Mrs. Stellwell were present during the afternoon and they spent several most enjoyable hours at games and music. Light refreshments were served.

LEAGUE SENDS INQUIRY

Prohibition Organization Would Know Candidates' Views

It is evident that the activities of the Anti-Saloon league of Oregon did not suffer from the enactment of the prohibition measure for that organization is taking a keen interest in the present political affairs. The league has been in communication with all candidates for legislative positions with a view to ascertaining their ideas as to the amendment of the prohibition laws, and the letters sent out by the league contain a number of questions pertinent to the issue.

Among the questions upon which the league will base its support of the candidates for legislative offices, the following are included in the letter recently distributed: "Will you vote against all attempts to increase the percentage of alcohol allowed in beverages under the present dry law? Will you vote against all attempts to permit the sale of other uncompound intoxicants, or to increase the amount of pure ethyl alcohol permitted to be sold to any one person within any 28 consecutive days, unless upon written statement of a reputable licensed and regularly practicing physician that a greater amount is necessary for external use or application only?" Finally, after a series of other questions, the inquiry asks: "Will you vote for a measure permitting any person or organization, in the name of the state, either through the district attorney or by private attorney, to bring action, at the cost of the state, for the abatement of the liquor nuisance?" It is said that an amendment similar to the latter is what finally had so much to do with the success of the prohibition laws that have been in force in Kansas for a number of years. The Oregon league lays considerable stress upon this section of its letter of inquiry.

UNIQUE SET OF TABLES

Government Bureau Adopts New Vital Statistics System

The United States bureau of the census is soon to issue a unique set of tables, the first of their kind which have ever been prepared by the United States government. These tables, which were compiled in the division of vital statistics, show death rates and expectation of life at all ages for the population of the six New England states—New York, New Jersey, Indiana, Michigan, and the District of Columbia (the original death registration states)—on the basis of the population in 1910 and the mortality for the three years 1909, 1910, and 1911. They are similar to the "life tables" prepared by life insurance companies, but differ from them in that they relate to the entire population of the area covered, whereas the life insurance tables relate only to risks selected through medical examination and otherwise.

According to these tables the average expectation of life, at birth, for males is 49.9 years; for females, 53.2 years; for white males, 50.2 years for white females, 53.6 years; for native white males, 50.6 years; for native white females, 54.2 years; for negro males, 37.7 years; for negro females, 37.7 years. Females are thus longer lived than males to the extent of more than 3 years, and in the case of the native white and negroes, and other facts brought out relate to infant mortality, median age at death, and difference between city and country life.

WIDE SURVEY PLANNED

Prominent Engineers Undertake to Organize Survey Boards

The names of 250 prominent engineers who are to organize state boards throughout the country to make a complete survey of American manufacturing and producing resources, as a first step toward industrial preparedness, were announced by the committee on industrial preparedness of the naval consulting board.

The engineers have been appointed state directors by Josephus Daniels, secretary of navy, after being chosen by five engineering societies who have pledged their membership of 30 to aid the movement.

The state directors who will serve without pay also become associated members of the naval consulting board, of which Thos. Edison is chairman. They are instructed to organize as speedily as possible and begin, with the assistance of field aides chosen from the membership of these societies, an inventory of the manufacturing and other industries that could be utilized in case of war. This work will be done under the direction of W. S. Gifford, supervising director of the committee.

For Oregon the board of directors appointed includes George C. Mason, Bert C. Ball, O. B. Goldwell, Portland; A. M. Swartz, Corvallis; O. F. Stafford, Eugene.

The Courier is $1 a year if paid in advance.
