EAST CLACKAMAS

J. E. Enghouse was transacting business in Oregon City, Monday.

Mr. Kelnhofer visited his ranch on Bennett avenue Monday.

Clarence says he is not guilty of seeing little bright eyes home the other night. He accused us and we are willing and ready to rectify any mistakes that we make.

H. Van Water, wife and sons were shopping in Portland last Saturday. Van says he does not mind going to town but he does not like to look like Santa Claus coming home. They went via the Carver jitney.

The E. C. S. club will meet with Mrs. J. W. Bennett next Wednesday.

Mrs. Clara Strunk of Portland visited home folks last Sunday.

Mrs. Clarence Kohl of Oregon City, was a visitor over Saturday night and Sunday at Cedar Springs ranch.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Duce were Portland shoppers last Monday.

Miss Lucile Bennett and Miss Elsie Van Water were bathing at the Van Water ranch Saturday.

Mrs. Harvey Sandstone of Portland was a visitor with Mrs. Haworth over Sunday.

Mrs. Cummins and Donald Cummins, of Portland, were visitors over the week-end with Mr. Finzer of the west side.

Mrs. L. Erickson, of the west side, entertained company Sunday from Portland.

Charles Lischke is still playing wood rat in the Jones camp in North Stone.

The commodious passenger coach on the Carver line of the P. & O. C. railway, has received a fresh coat of paint which adds greatly to its appearance.

Stone is going to let the eagle scream on July 4th.

We note what the Stone correspondent has to say in regard to changing the name of Stone to Carver and do not blame them, for after one is used to one name it is pretty hard to change to another.

John Heinrich was seen burning the air on Main street Sunday in the direction of the road leading north-west of the creamery at Stone.

Elmer Shearer was among the throng at Clackamas Sunday. Some throng, eh?

L. M. Haworth was taking in the sights at Clackamas Sunday.

W. Osborne was hauling passengers from Clackamas to Milwaukie Sunday. Conveyances were in great demand and the rain spoiled the day for some.

M. S. Shearer had a head-on collision with a meek and lowly bicycle in the crowds at Clackamas Sunday. No damage, only Shearer got some of the Clackamas soil on his outer garments.

Next Saturday evening is the date for the special election of two school directors for the ensuing year.

The autos are good rock throwers, as they have most of the rocks thrown from the roads from Portland to Clackamas and Oregon City since the troops are camping at the rifle range at Clackamas and most of the ranchers are glad of it.

Henry Klinkley was seen carrying a white umbrella with a nice long handle at the rifle range on Sunday.

The late rains may have inconvenienced some but have done great amount of good to crops of all kinds, more especially grain. With the soil moistened the way it is we could stand quite a spell without rain, for there seems to be a plenty of moisture to make the early grain mature now. Of course the late grain must have more rain or it will be short.

Mr. Editor, we are very timid about asking people out, but we will extend the invitation to you to come out and eat Royal Ann cherries with us and take chances of your eating plenty. They are getting nice and juicy. We also extend the invitation to some of our eastern friends. If you cannot accept the invitation we will agree to eating your share, and think of you while doing so.

We would not be surprised to see a new house go up on south avenue, but in the meantime we shall hold our tongue until we see further developments.

The P. & O. C. railroad will operate its trains from 22nd and Powell streets, Portland, to Stone, near Bakers' bridge, for a while at least.

The grape crop looks very promising at present.

Well, the old town of Clackamas saw something last Sunday that it never saw before in its history; namely, the largest assemblage of people within its borders at one time. It was estimated there were 3000 automobiles there and that was not far from right because we have seen a few at one time, but never saw anything like the number of autos that were assembled near the grounds.

HAZELIA

A. E. Helms and son, Charles, were in Portland Friday.

A. Neilson was transacting business in Portland Thursday.

Jim Finn was visiting friends at Hazelia Sunday.

Mrs. H. T. Duncan was a visitor at the home of Mrs. H. Baker Saturday.

LOGAN

The golden gate has opened at last for Eldridge Newkirk and the aged and long-time resident of Logan passed through and disappeared from mortal vision. Henceforth he will dwell only in the memory of the many who have known him during some or all of the many years since he came to Logan, before the place was known by that name, and commenced the long task of making a good farm out of the raw material. He raised a large family of useful citizens and did well his part in the work of the world.

George A. Kohl is building a barn and hurrying it along to be ready for the crop. Henry Kohl seems to be the boss carpenter and Thomas Fairclough has been helping him.

Bert Corless is building a barn for Ben Swales and Will McCubbin is also building a barn.

The Clear Creek creamery ball team is handing out defeats to Portland teams right along now. On the 18th it beat Portland Heights 20 to 8 and on the 25th Meier & Frank had the small end of a 22 to 4 score.

F. P. Wilson is driving an auto now. Pretty soon we shall have to change the rule and note those who are not on the list as being more unusual, commencing with the humble scribe.

Oh! The democratic tariff has ruined the sheep industry and knocked wool down to 33 cents per pound. Turn the rascals out!

F. Moser and J. C. Kirchman have made quite a change in the land they bought from the Strowbridge estate. Next year and every year thereafter, they will pay a heavy fine for their improvements, unless the voters get wise.

A cold bath every morning is the best complexion remedy.

POULTRY and EGGS

SUGGESTIONS FOR REARING CHICKENS

[Prepared by United States department of agriculture.]

Brooding with hens is the simplest and easiest way to raise a few chickens and is the method which is used almost exclusively on the average farm. Artificial brooders are necessary where winter or very early chickens are raised, where only Leghorns or other nonsitting breeds of poultry are kept or where large numbers of chickens are raised commercially. Sitting hens should be confined to slightly darkened nests at hatching time and not disturbed unless they step on or pick their chickens when hatching. The eggshells and any eggs which have not hatched should be removed as soon as the hatching is over. Hens should be fed as soon as possible after the eggs are hatched, as feeding tends to keep them quiet; otherwise many hens will leave the nest. In most cases it is best that the hen remain on the nest and brood the chicks for at least twenty-four hours after the hatching is over.

Brood Coops.

Hens will brood successfully ten to fifteen chicks early in the breeding season and eighteen to twenty-five in warm weather, depending upon the size of the hen. Powder the hen with a good insect powder before moving her and the chicks to the brood coop. The hen should be dusted every two weeks or as often as necessary until the chicks are weaned. If lice become thick on the chickens, or if they are troubled with "head lice," a very little grease, such as lard or vaseline, may be applied with the fingers on the head, neck, under the wings and around the vent.

Brood coops should be made so that they can be closed at nights to keep out cats, rats and other animals, and enough ventilation should be allowed so that the hen and chicks will have plenty of fresh air. The hen should be confined in the coop until the chickens are weaned, while the chickens are allowed free range after they are a few days old.

The brood coop should be cleaned at least once a week and kept free from mites. If mites are found in the coop it should be thoroughly cleaned and sprayed with kerosene oil or crude petroleum. From one to two inches of sand or dry dirt or a thin layer of straw or fine hay should be spread on each with a capacity varying from 200 to 1,500 chickens.

Temperature of Brooders.

The best temperature at which to keep a brooder or hover depends upon the position of the thermometer, the style of the brooder, the age of the chickens and the weather conditions. Aim to keep the chickens comfortable. As the operator learns by the actions of the chickens the amount of heat they require, he can discard the thermometer if he desires. When too cold they will crowd together and try to get nearer the heat. It is impossible to state for each case at what temperature the brooders should be kept to raise young chickens; however, it will run from 90 degrees up to 100 degrees in some cases, as some broods of chickens seem to require more heat than others, an average being 93 to 95 degrees for the first week or ten days, when the temperature is gradually reduced to 85 degrees for the following ten days and then lowered to 70 or 75 degrees for as long as the chickens need heat.

Feeding Young Chicks.

Young chickens should be fed from three to five times daily, depending upon one's experience in feeding. The young chicks may be fed any time after they are thirty-six to forty-eight hours old, whether they are with a hen or in a brooder. The first feed may contain either hard boiled eggs, Johnny cake, stale bread, pinhead oatmeal or rolled oats, which feeds or combinations may be used with good results. Feed the breadcrumbs, rolled oats or Johnny cake mixtures, moistened with water, five times daily for the first week, then gradually substitute for one or two feeds of the mixture finely cracked grains of equal parts by weight of cracked wheat, finely cracked corn and pinhead oatmeal or hulled oats, to which about 5 per cent of cracked peas or broken rice and 2 per cent of charcoal, millet or rape seed may be added.

After the chicks are ten days old a good growing mash, composed of two parts by weight of bran, two parts middlings, one part cornmeal, one part low grade wheat flour or red dog flour and 10 per cent sifted beef scrap may be placed in a hopper and left before them at all times. As soon as the chickens will eat the whole wheat, cracked corn and other grains the small size chick feed can be eliminated.

Five charcoal, grit, oyster shell and clean water should be kept before the chickens at all times, and cracked or ground bone may be fed where the chickens are kept in small bare yards, but the latter feed is not necessary for chickens that have a good range.

Exterminate Poultry Vermin.

The roosts should be well sprayed with some good solution to keep out the lice and mites. If you do this a couple of times a week you will have but little trouble with the vermin. So many people complain about lice. If they would go at it and give the house a thorough cleaning and then keep it clean they would have no difficulty about lice.

Give the Chickens Range.

A good place for the growing chicks is in houses colonized out in a large orchard or woodlot, where they have plenty of range, grass and shade. If a brook or stream should wind its way through the orchard or woodlot the location would be about ideal. Keep the grass cut short.

POULTRY NOTES.

Green food helps to balance the diet of chicks, and they need an abundance and variety of green feeding stuffs.
Boiled rice, cooked and seasoned with a little salt, pays when fed to the young chicks.
Chicks more frequently pant for breath in a brooder that is badly ventilated than in one that is overheated.
Brooders must be kept at a comfortable temperature at all times, because warmth is the baby chick's only chance for survival.
After the nineteenth day it is never advisable to let curiosity run a good hatch. The incubator door should never be opened until the hatch is over.

TALK SEGREGATION Oswego Paper Attempts to Start Something Crude

Although the best reception that could be accorded the following ravel would be to totally ignore it, there is interest in the attempt of the editor of the Oswego Times to start something he cannot finish. The outburst is occasioned by the reception accorded a group of Oswego citizens which appeared before the Oregon City council last week in an attempt to have the city ordinance governing jitney operations set aside for the special benefit of the Oswego district. The something that the Oswego paper wants to start is revealed in its own story:

"Two moves are on foot for segregation of territory in Clackamas county. Western Clackamas county generally, is not satisfied with administration of affairs in the county and persistent ignoring of its interests, and is working on a division. It is proposed to merge either with Multnomah or with Washington county. Many argue that there would be greater benefits accruing from the former, as road taxes would be lighter and there would be some chance of getting necessary work done.

"Clackamas county does not seem particularly interested in the west side of the river, and dissent from constant ignoring of our interests is crystallizing in a sentiment for division.

"At Hillsboro and Forest Grove, where the matter has been taken up, there is a strong sentiment in favor of adding this portion of Clackamas county, as we are in direct connection with them by rail, and have mutual interests.

"Interests of the P. R. L. & P. company, which seem to be the dominant feature in all legislation in this county would be eliminated, and co-operation with the county seat of Washington county is assured from the start.

"Definite action on the matter of division may be looked for soon as it is ascertained which county would be the best to tie to. With many it is hardly a matter of choice—anything, it is claimed, would be better than present conditions in Clackamas county."

BEARS BANISHED

Mascots for G Company Forced to Vacate New Home

This is a bear of a story about bears. Its principal characters are Justice of the Peace John Sievers and two "cute" little cub bears captured last week in the primeval forests back of Estacada. The setting for the first scene is in this same forest, where a hardy ranger captured, with his own bare hands, the two three-months-old cub bears that share glory in the drama with the Oregon City Justice.

The second scene is set on the streets of the county seat, where Justice Sievers laid bare his plans as he bore down upon local business men, inspired to charity and financial freedom by the military spirit that has aroused the nation.

Sixty dollars were collected for the purchase of the cubs from their captor and the animals were forthwith delivered. A delegation of local business men gathered on Thursday evening and with O. D. Eby as orator for the occasion, escorted the bears to the concentration camp at Clackamas. Amid much interest the cubs were presented to Company G, as official mascots for the organization from Oregon City.

The boys bid high for the privilege of sleeping with the bears and immediately called upon the cook for bear food. But the good hearted citizens, and the men of Company G, forgot the unwritten law of the military business. The commanding officer discovered the presence of the menagerie within the boundaries of the camp and he speedily ordered them banished from the scene.

Thus ended the first lesson. The curtain dropped with a thud over the patriotic spirit of Oregon City's ardent business men as the cubs started their return journey to the forest primeval from whence they had been taken to their warlike hosts. All that remains of the bear story is the bareness of the purse of one justice of the peace, who is short in personal finance to the extent of $20 as a result of the transaction.

Suffered Great Pain!

Letter Tells of Long Looked-for Prescription.

Dear Mr. Editor—I am making a personal appeal to your readers who are bothered with kidney and bladder trouble and rheumatism to give up the use of harsh salts, or alcoholic kidney medicines and in their place take a short treatment of "Anuric" and be convinced of its wonderful virtues as I was. I suffered great pain, had a great deal of irritation, water became foul. I tried everything advised but with no results. I sent for a box of "Anuric Tablets" and soon discovered that they brought relief. I have used them since, and now the water is natural, my health good, and appetite splendid. Some of the doctors pronounced my trouble enlarged prostate. Now I have no more trouble and I most assuredly feel that this latest discovery of Dr. Pierce's is the best remedy for bladder and kidney troubles that I know of. If I can induce anyone to give it a trial, I feel that he will thank me for calling attention to this great boon that relieves this seemingly worst of all troubles that human flesh can fall heir to.

(Signed) H. H. FLEISHER.

Note: Up to this time, "Anuric" has not been on sale to the public, but by the persuasion of many patients and the increased demand for this wonderful healing tablet, Doctor Pierce has finally decided to put it into the drug stores of this country within immediate reach, or send 10 cents for a trial package.

Simply ask for Doctor Pierce's Anuric Tablets. There can be no imitation. Every package of "Anuric" is sure to be Dr. Pierce's. You will find the signature on the package just as you do on Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, the ever-famous friend to ailing women, and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, proven by years to be the greatest general tonic and restorative for any one.

At any rate don't give up hope of being cured of your malady until just a few doses of "Anuric" have proven that it will make you feel like a different person.

Error—Please insert this letter in some conspicuous place in your paper.

TWICE PROVEN

If you suffer backache, sleepless nights, tired, dull days and distressing urinary disorders, don't experiment. Read this twice-told testimony. It's Oregon City evidence—doubly proven.

J. F. Montgomery, W. Oregon City, says: "I had been troubled for some time by kidney and bladder annoyances. I had a dull ache in my back across my kidneys. I used one box of
