CAUSE AND CURE OF BIGOTRY

2. A DIVINE SAVIOUR. Revelation teaches that God has sent Christ Jesus to provide salvation for sinful man.

3. THE NEW BIRTH. Science would have us believe that man is the son of an ape. If this is true he can't be the son of God and the son of a monkey by the same birth. "That which is born of the flesh is flesh." Revelation says man was created in the image of God, but that does not make him anything but a creature with Godlike spiritual faculties. But, "As many as received him, to them gave He the right to become sons of God, even to them that believe on His name." (Revised version). "That which is born of the Spirit is spirit." Without this spiritual birth man is but an intellectual animal, a creature of God. These things are not matters of philosophy, but of life and experience.

4. THE SPIRIT-LED LIFE. The Holy Spirit begins his inner work in the believer at the new birth. "If a man have not the Spirit of Christ he is none of his." He imprints the character of Christ upon our characters, and leads us to bear the fruit of the Spirit in our lives.

5. THE ETERNAL HOPE. This is the only thing in the list of great essentials. But there are some dozen leading theories about sin; some eight as to HOW Christ saves; several about just how God brings about the new birth; at least a dozen as to how the Holy Spirit enters men, and HOW he deals with them, and several as to what is going to take place by and by. An old darkey introduced a white brother who was going to preach for him by saying:

"Bredden, dis yere highly educated white man am gwine to let you know de unknowable, to explain de unexplainable, and to unscrew de unscrutable."

This is just what these theories as to HOW God does things are trying to do. No man can explain the natural life. No man can tell how it comes into being. How then can he tell so surely how God has accomplished the Spiritual birth that every man is a heretic who differs from him. Christ says "The wind bloweth where it listeth and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh and whither it goeth. So is every one that is born of the Spirit." I knew all about how it took place twenty years ago. Had my whole system of theology worked out. But now that I have had another twenty years to think about it I am willing to let the other fellow have his say about it, too, and to say: "Maybe, brother, you are nearer right after all than I." The essential is: has he got the life? "By their fruits ye shall know them." One man is satisfied with one surrender to God's spirit, and daily lives God before men. Another claims a second definite work of sanctification. A third says he has gone on and has received a third "baptism." But all three show equally by their love for God, their regard for their neighbors, and their straightforward lives that they have the Spirit's presence. Why quarrel over HOW they got it? Perhaps God does not need two shots at some man before He can bring him up to the standard of the Kingdom, and three at some other, while others get it in one. I have noticed that a great many professors of those "higher blessings" lived a long way below the average Christian standard before they got it. I don't care how they explain the fact of the Spirit's dealings with them so long as they accord me the same privilege. All I care about is the FACT as manifested in the life. Are they more loving Christians, kinder in thought and more tender in sympathy? Then I am willing to accept the fact that they have the blessing, and I worry very little about how God gave it to them.

different the man God sees really is, even from the man as he sees himself. The old Scotch poet reasoned well when he said:

"Oh, wad some power the giftie gie us

Tae see oursel's as ithers see us." And if we do not know ourselves how can we know the deeper things of the mysterious workings of the Almighty God?

Dear Lord: Thou who knowest all that is in man—all his shortsightedness, and prejudice and unreasoning bigotry—help me to realize more fully the essentials of Thy life in my life. Make us all more tolerant of each other's explanations as to how Thou doest things, for some day, dear Master, we will have to bow before Thee in acknowledgement that we knew very little indeed of the methods of Thy working, and that we have lost much of the joy of Christian fellowship because we were too narrow to look beyond the walls of our own puerile reasonings.

LOAN BOARD MEETS

Hon. Wm. G. McAdoo Joins Hearing at Portland

A hearing of great importance to farmers, farm organizations and cities of Oregon will be conducted by the newly appointed Federal Farm Loan board in the federal building at Portland, Ore., on September 7. This hearing is to secure information to guide the board in determining the boundaries of the twelve Federal Land bank districts into which the United States is to be divided for the application of the new rural credits legislation.

The members of the Federal Farm Loan board who will conduct the hearing are Hon. Wm. G. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury; Geo. W. Norris, Farm Loan commissioner; Herbert Quick, Capt. W. S. A. Smith and C. E. Lobdell.

The board has requested farmers and farm organizations of Oregon to furnish facts concerning the need of cheaper farm loans and it has asked interested cities to present claims for the location of one of these banks. This will be the only hearing in Oregon.

The new Federal Farm Loan act will do for the farmer what the Federal Reserve act is doing for the business man. Under it the government provides the machinery for assembling capital to be loaned to farm owners or intended farm owners, on first mortgage farm security. The loans cannot exceed 50 per cent of the value of the land, nor 20 per cent of the value of the permanent improvements. The loans will be made at a low rate of interest, not yet determined, but not over 6 per cent, and provision is made for the borrower to pay off the loan and interest in small annual or semi-annual payments through a period of forty years or at his option. Farmers, to take advantage of the law, must associate themselves in groups of ten or more and form Farm Loan associations and then make application to one of the twelve Federal Land banks. The land will then be appraised and, if it meets requirements, the loans will be made.

The new legislation is expected to prove a great boon to those sections of the country where development has been arrested because of high interest rates and it is predicted that it will have the effect of making agricultural prosperity permanent and uniform; stabilizing land values, and greatly improving general farm conditions.

Secretary McAdoo predicts that the banks will be ready for operation January first or shortly thereafter.

Elworm Disease in Northwest

The occurrence and spread of the bulb and stem infesting nematode or elworm (Tylenchus dipsaci), which has been recently found producing a serious disease of clover in the state of Oregon, should receive general attention, especially in the northwest. Since it was discovered in hycinth bulbs at Bellingham in 1913, it has been observed each successive year causing damage to strawberries, onions, or clover in other localities of the Pacific northwest.

Various means of controlling the pest have been tried, but the most satisfactory as well as the most practical method consists in the proper system of crop rotation in combination with sanitary measures. By planting infested fields for two and better still, three successive years to crops which are immune or resistant to the nematode, the pest will be starved out to such an extent that little infestation will occur on a susceptible crop planted the following year. To make the rotation effective, it is highly important that all weeds or other plants which might harbor the parasite be scrupulously eliminated. For this reason, it is advisable to plant the immune crops in rows so that clean cultivation may be practiced. The following plants, most or all of which are adapted to the Pacific northwest, have not been reported as subject to the nematodes and are, therefore, suggested as rotation crops: Corn, cowpeas, soy beans, millets, tomatoes, asparagus, cabbage, lettuce, cantaloupes, and celery. Almost any other crop not listed above under the head of susceptible plants could also be used.

ENDORSES SCHOOL

State Superintendent Asks Public Support for New Normal

J. A. Churchill, state superintendent of public instruction, is asking the voters of the state to support the initiative measure on the ballot this fall providing for the establishment of a standard normal school at Pendleton. The state superintendent's last report shows that only thirteen per cent of the grade teachers of the state are normal school graduates and he, more than any other one man, appreciates the need for more competent instruction, particularly in the rural schools.

"Oregon's greatest need for its rural schools is the teacher who has had full preparation to do her work," he said in making public his endorsement of the measure. "Such preparation can best come through normal school training."

"I trust that the voters of the state will assist in raising the standard of our schools by establishing a State Normal school at Pendleton. The location is central, the interest of the people of Pendleton in education most excellent, and the large number of pupils in the public schools will give ample opportunity to all students to get the amount of teaching practice required in a standard normal school."

Mr. Wilson has hewn to the line, has kept the faith.

FINDING BUYERS

R. E. Rodgers Tells in Farm and Fireside How to Sell Produce

The job of raising and harvesting most farm produce always requires a certain amount of planning and brains. But the job of selling is where most of us fall short, and the peculiar thing about it is that we usually know it. We pay the price the dealer asks for what we buy and take the prices the dealer offers us when we sell.

Our particular line of farming runs to vegetables and small fruits. In the vegetables we sell more onions than any other thing. For a year or so after we started this crop we had to deal with commission men in Toledo, Cleveland and Pittsburgh when we had a surplus. Since our local market seldom used more than 600 bushels in the year we usually had a surplus. So the plan of discovering a market for this crop and others whereby we could sell direct to the grocer or user of the produce occurred to us.

It so happened at this time that a coal miner from the southern part of Ohio moved in our neighborhood and was able to suggest names of men located in the thickly populated mining districts of Ohio who were absolutely straight in their dealing and who bought large amounts of farm products.

Correspondence was started, and 200 bushels were sold the first trip. Many satisfactory deals were made after this. Even this year this man telegraphed us for a car.

There are several advantages in such a deal. We usually ship the onions sacked. He sells to the trade, and is able to keep these empty sacks for us and returns a couple hundred sacks after a few weeks at a freight expense of 25 cents. Since sacking costs us about three cents a bushel, it pays to look after this. Having a store of his own, there is no drayage to pay for at the other end. The money is ready as soon as the produce reaches him. In fact, we could draw on him at our bank with the shipping bill and contract before the goods were delivered to him.

Direct sales are the only outlet for the farmer so far as I can see. There is the same chance to buy directly, but that is another story. Look around a bit before you consign the next bunch of farm stuff to a dealer who will deduct commission, freight and drayage. Possibly you'll save a good many dollars.
