PATRIOTIC PROCLAMATION
Governor Withycombe Sets Week for Sober Consideration of Duty

Whereas, Loyalty and patriotism are virtues which every true American is proud to possess and glad to express, and

Whereas, it is plainly evident that the existing military resources of our government are totally inadequate for the proper protection of the country, and

Whereas, we, as a nation, are opposed to the maintenance of a large standing army and infinitely prefer voluntary military service to compulsory organization, and

Whereas, our best opportunity for voluntary patriotic service is offered by the national guard, which today stands sorely in need of upbuilding if it is adequately to meet the requirements which may be placed upon it, and

Whereas, I believe that a spirit of patriotism not surpassed in fervor or intensity at any time in our national history lives in the hearts of the people of this great state of Oregon, which only awaits the call for an expression,

Now, Therefore, I, James Withycombe, as governor of the state of Oregon, suggest that the need of the national guard for recruits offers worthy opportunity for the display of practical patriotism, and I urge young men to fulfill the obligations of our national citizenship by rallying to the flag, thus setting an example worthy of our best traditions and indicative of their certain continuance;

And I further proclaim the week beginning March 25, 1917, as "Patriotic Week" for the state, to be devoted to the sober consideration of present day patriotism and urge that all officers of the Oregon National Guard make special effort to recruit their companies to full capacity by the end of that time.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the state of Oregon to be hereunto affixed this 21st day of March, 1917.

JAMES WITHYCOMBE,
Governor.

THE FASHIONS

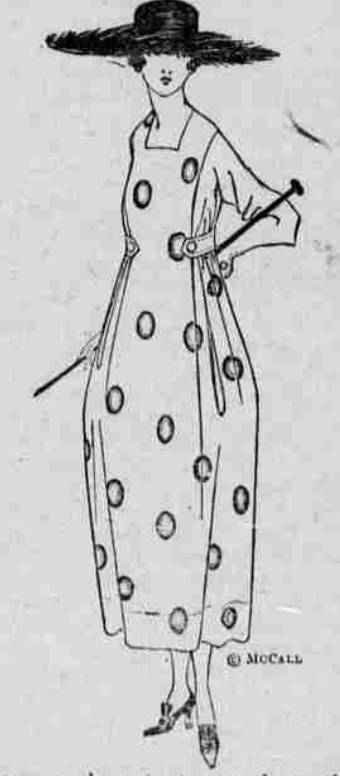

There will be two fashionable silhouettes this spring. The slim silhouette, with its straight, clinging lines will continue to be first in favor, as it has been all through the winter, but the new barrel skirt will give women a chance to indulge in the bouffant effect, which will, doubtless, be welcomed by those who have complained of being tired of the eternal straight line.

True to its name, the new silhouette is in the outline of a barrel, bulging at the hips and drawn in at the waist and ankles. There are many ways of accomplishing this puffness over the hips. One is by the clever draping of the material at the waistline somewhat after the fashion of the "peg-top" skirts that were used some years ago. This type of the barrel skirt is shown in the sketch, which illustrates a dress of figured pongee with sleeves and belt of plain pongee in natural color. The skirt again very fashionable in Paris and New York. Solid black and white checked materials with rather large checks are considered smart for coats, both for the long separate coats and for shorter coats to be worn with white serge skirts.

The Importance of Ribbons

Ribbons are coming in for a great deal of prominence this season. They are not used only for small accessories such as girdles and collars, but have become much more important and have been employed for parasols and hats. Very wide striped ribbons combining three or more harmonizing colors have been used very effectively to make parasols and to cover the entire crown and top of the brim of light-weight straw hats for sports wear. Matching parasols, hats and handbags made of ribbon or the pretty figured silks, are seen over and over again.

Narrow grosgrain ribbon is employed in rows, one overlapping the other, to cover the crowns and brims of some hats. Sometimes two colors are used alternately. The brim of a white Panama hat was covered in this way with old gold and dark green ribbon, only the crown remaining in view to tell that the hat was a Panama. An idea for remodeling your last year's Panama, you will, not doubt, think. Another Panama was faced with black velvet under the brim and the crown draped with black and white silk with a tassel placed at one side.

ALBRIGHT RELEASED

Errant Councilman Gets Off When He Fights Charge in Court

After four hours of deliberation, a jury in Recorder Loder's court on Saturday found John F. Albright, former city councilman, guilty on a charge of intoxication, with a recommendation for leniency. The case went to the jury after 3 o'clock, and the jury did not come in until 7:30. Albright was sentenced to 30 days in jail and to pay $10 for costs. The sentence was suspended.

Albright pleaded not guilty to the charge, and had soldiers from Vancouver, Wash., and local friends to testify for him. The city put on contradictory evidence in the person of Leslie Wells, who was arrested with Albright. The jury was composed of George Hall, E. B. Anderson, Henry Hughes, Charles Miller, Otto Blomberg and Chester Lageson. City Prosecutor George Story and Paul Fischer prosecuted the case, and J. E. Hedges and George C. Brownell defended Albright.

Another petition is that of Louis Servas of Gladstone, a native of France, who came to America from Belgium in December, 1884, and had been in Oregon since 1894. He is 48 years old and is janitor in the Gladstone schools. The third is Gottlieb Beetschen of Milwaukie, a native of Lenk, Switzerland, who came to America from Belgium in October, 1889, coming direct to Oregon. He is 49 years old.

Ernest Dye

Word has been received at Clackamas announcing the sad death of Ernest Dye of Rochester, N. Y., at the home of his parents at West Bloomfield, N. Y., February 23. Deceased was a victim of typhoid pneumonia, taking ill December 8 and suffering two relapses. Earnest Dye was a native of Oregon and was born at Rock Creek, near Clackamas 22 years ago. He spent his early boyhood at the family home, attending the Stone public schools, where he endeared himself to his school mates. Five years ago the family removed to New York state and Earnest took up work in Rochester and at the time of taking ill was qualifying as a religious lecturer. He was a member of Plymouth church of Rochester and a member of the order of Masons of the same place. Besides his grieving parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Dye, he leaves a sister, Mrs. Ruth Briggs, two brothers, Ramond C. and Arthur H., and many friends in New York and Oregon, who mourn his untimely death.

SMOKE EATERS QUIT

Five—All Handsome and Clever—Throw Filthy Weed Away Forever

A little law and order is good for the best of men. It has developed a fine show of will power in a quintet of sterling young bloods in Oregon City. It happened in this way; Charles Sievers, understudy to George C. Brownell and little brother to the justice of the peace, had to pay for cigars for himself and four worthy mates on the ship of joy every time they met. He balked, declared a boycott on the cigar makers' union. Then Judge John N. Sievers, whose middle name is reputed to be Nathaniel, came to the support of his little brother—as the good judge should. He calmly kicked at having his office permeated with cigar smoke more than ten times a day—for the crew of the joy ship met frequently when Charles had the price of the stogies.

"We'll just show 'em we don't have to smoke! We'll quit," announced the crew. "We have will power, we don't have to smoke." The result of this convincing line of argument is that George Hall, gas man (vocal and cooking); Charles Sievers, embryonic barrister; Thomas A. Burke, known to fame as the son-in-law of Harvey A. Cross; Chief of Police L. A. Blanchard, gentleman of leisure, and D. E. Frost, constable, deputy sheriff, juvenile officer and public speaker, have severed diplomatic relations with Lady Nicotine. They haven't smoked—in public—this week and if the supply of will power holds out they will not smoke again until—

George Hall has gained five pounds since he swore off and he already weighted 300 pounds. Jack Frost has talked twice as much as he ever did to fill in the gap in his face that was vacated by an occasional cigar; Charles Sievers is thinner than he was a week ago and more charmingly beautiful than ever; Chief Blanchard—well, Mrs. Blanchard says he's a regular grouch; and Thomas A. Burke—he can't get more fat on and stay in the same clothes—is considering applying for a space in "Who's Who," since he has proved absolutely that he has a will of his own.
