Brighter and Happier Hours in Your Kitchen
How can you make the hours spent in your kitchen BRIGHTER and HAPPIER?
Cooking is not REALLY drudgery.
There is real satisfaction in being able to make good bread, or cake, or biscuits.
DOING THINGS WELL is a very great happiness in itself.
The most agreeable tasks are those that bring certain results. And when you can SEE these results for yourself and SHOW them to others, you are justly PROUD.
Why, then, are you sometimes disheartened because you must spend at least PART of your time in a kitchen?
Why do you sometimes almost wish that STOVES had never been invented—or that YOU, at least, might be released from having anything to do with one?
WHY?
Ask Yourself These Questions—
Is not my frequent distaste for the kitchen due to the fact that my kitchen is often hot and stuffy?
Is it not the accumulation of DIRT and SOOT on pots, pans and stove that discourages me?
Might not ONE cause of unhappiness be the STOVE itself?
Isn't it heat and the dirt that comes from the STOVE itself?
Isn't it heat and the dirt that comes from the STOVE that gives me back-aching worryment?
Might not the elimination of these "stove worries" also eliminate my FAILURE?
Might it not make possible much greater success with my cooking, thus assuring me real and lasting happiness in my everyday house-work?
It would pay you to find out what ELECTRIC COOKING will do to put an end to these failures and relieve you of the uncertainties and discouragements of your kitchen hours.

FLOW THE GARDEN.

Loosening the Soil Has a Beneficial Effect on Future Crops.
Winter plowing of the garden is of extreme importance in Oklahoma, for it offers a practical method of helping solve the drought problem. The loosened soil is in an ideal condition to absorb water. The winter snows melt and are absorbed, scarcely any of the water that falls as rain is lost, and as a result a vast store of moisture is available later in the year when rains are scarce and the plants need water. Likewise winter plowing is beneficial in other ways. The alternate freezes and thaws break up the soil particles, liberate plant food and put the ground in an ideal physical condition. Insects in large numbers are killed by the cold winter weather, and the trash which lies upon the ground rots and becomes available for plant use. Moreover, ground which is winter plowed warms up early in the spring and in rainy seasons can frequently be planted before it is possible to do spring plowing.—C. W. Rapp, Department of Horticulture, Oklahoma Agricultural College.

DASHEEN A TUBER MUCH LIKE POTATO

The dasheen, a root crop introduced into this country from Trinidad within recent years by the United States department of agriculture, is now grown by a considerable number of farmers and truckers in the south and promises to become a valuable member of the group of domestic vegetables, such as the potato, which furnish starchy foods. The dasheen is itself primarily a tropical plant. It can be grown successfully, however, not only in the warmer portions of Florida, but in other sections of the south as far north as South Carolina. The edible portion of the plant includes a large central corm and a number of tubers, of much smaller size, attached to and around the corm. In food value the dasheen is comparable to the potato, though it contains a small proportion of water and a greater proportion of protein, starch and sugar than the latter. The new vegetable may be prepared for the table as potatoes usually are or may be made into flour and used in baking. The dasheen is grown from whole tubers weighing a few ounces. They require a frostless season of at least seven months with plenty of moisture. A moist but well drained, rich, sandy loam has been found to be satisfactory soil for dasheen culture. A large proportion of either clay or muck in the soil produces strong flavored, tough corms which are often unfit for table use. Large crops are produced under such conditions, however, and make excellent stock feed. The crop is planted in February in southern Florida and as late as the early part of April in South Carolina. The plants are spaced about 3 1/2 by 3 1/2 feet. Dasheens may be dug for home use by the middle of September, and the main crop can be harvested at any time after the last of October.

CLUMP OF DASHEEN TUBERS.

Silage Keeps Two Years.
Referring to silage carried over from one year to another, M. N. Nathaniel of Henderson county, Ill., reports in the Drovers' Telegram that he had silage left in the spring of 1914 which he fed out in the early months of 1916. The only waste was a thin crust on top. "The silage was just as good as though it had been put in a few months previously," he said. "This is one of the great advantages of this feed."

AROUND THE DAIRY.
Fear, cold, any kind of discomfort, is expensive in a dairy herd. Comfort always means profit. It is up to you if your cows do not turn you a profit.

Never mix warm and cold cream or sweet and slightly tainted cream.
Wooden pails should not be used for milking, as they easily become sour and cannot be thoroughly cleaned.
No loud talking should be permitted in the stable, and it is best that the cows be milked by the same persons in the same order at each milking.
Regularity in milking aids in developing a tendency to prolong the period of lactation.

Three Declare Intention
Declarations of intention to become citizens were filed in County Clerk Harrington's office Friday by Arthur D. Flannigan, Canadian; Felice Menconi, Italian, and Peter Maletis, Greek. Flannigan has been in the United States since 1896 and is engaged in the furniture business in Oregon City. Menconi is a laborer and Maletis a farmer.
