Local and County Items of Interest to Courier Readers

LOGAN

The one all absorbing topic of conversation, the thing that drives even grim war from our minds temporarily, is the weather. Even the calmest of us are getting restless under the gloomy clouds. We oldest inhabitants cannot recall a season quite so persistently wet and nasty just at this critical planting time. Our theory is that we had an unusually dry winter and this is the balance of the account, which we hope will soon be closed for a new entry.

Considerable crushed rock has been applied to the main road in places. We hear that labor shortage retards the crushing of rock at the Stone quarry.

Some have been mudding in grain and potatoes on the odd day that comes between two rainy days, having become desperate from long deferred hope.

The continued rains have furnished enough water to fill the hole in Fisher's mill dam so the old stones can be used again. Some good from the ill wind.

Mrs. L. E. Robbins is at home now, somewhat improved in health.

Mrs. M. E. Riehoff is sick again, we are sorry to announce.

The clipper birds were very busy clipping off the blossoms of the early cherries and some of them had their waxy destructive appetites clipped out the cherries that missed them are ours, anyhow, though later kinds seem to be yet on the food supply list.

C. Schuebel was the only road bond speaker at the Logan meeting, and they say he waxed eloquent in persuading the voters to bond the whole state to build fine roads for certain already favored sections that need them the least. Rather a selfish viewpoint, it seems to us. Give us market roads first, and then we will look through your telescope.

We offer a suggestion to conserve the most important food supply, to conserve health and economize at the same time. Simply grind the whole wheat into flour, which would add one third to the supply, give a more nutritious article of diet, which is more palatable, and greatly preferred.

STAFFORD

A number from this vicinity attended a farewell party Friday evening given to Mr. Wanker and family, of Hazelia, who were about to move to near Medical Lake, and report a very enjoyable time.

On Sunday, the 29th, friends and relatives of Fred Elligen met at his house to partake of a wonderful dinner, such as country housewives know how to prepare, and celebrate his 65th birthday. The wedding cakes, of which there were two large affairs, ornamented with numberless pink candles, were especially toothsome. About 55 invited guests were present. Purple pansies and white narcissus composed the color scheme. The Misses Esther Peters, Eva Seadling, Agnes Peters and Mrs. Otto Peters rendered several excellent musical numbers. We listened to excellent recitations well rendered, and recalled old times, canvassed the bond question, discussed the war, and returned to our homes feeling better to have been there. Mr. Elligen received many appropriate presents and cards suggestive of the occasion, and a beautiful gold ring appropriately inscribed was placed upon his finger with a short speech by Carl Elligen in behalf of his children.

Miss Eva Holton went to Marion county on Monday to visit friends for a week.

Mrs. Gage bought a much needed driving horse on Monday and upon going out to put it into the stable five hours later found she had two instead of one.

Everyone is expected to meet and help clean the two graveyards Friday, the 25th, if it does not rain. A picnic dinner will be served with hot coffee. If rain interferes, bring your sickles, scythes, grub hoes, etc., on Decoration day. Committees have been appointed and we hope to make our city of the dead a better looking place.
