ALL AROUND THE FARM

SELECTING THE STALLION.

Sire's Influence Is Predominant and He Should Be Chosen With Care. [Prepared by United States department of agriculture.]

The stallion is the key to successful horse breeding and therefore should be chosen with the greatest care. The influence of the sire is predominant, because he directly affects a greater number of offspring than does the single female. Horse breeders should recognize the fact that it is not a pay-long croup, short, smooth coupling and well sloped shoulders, the head ing proposition simply to breed mares to any stallion that may be available. A sound, pure bred stallion should be used if the best results are to be ob-

The stallion selected should conform as closely as possible to the breed and type of the mares that are to be bred. Stallions of pure breeding are, by virtue of their unmixed ancestry, possessed of greater pre-potency than are grades or scrubs and will therefore invariably impress their offspring with their breed characteristics and individual merit.

A low service fee is too often the deciding factor with many farmers and mare owners in the selection of a sire. A low service fee ought never to be a temptation, but, rather, should be taken as a warning. A low fee is usually a sign of an inferior stallion. Colts from inferior or scrub sires will sell for much less than those sired by the sound, pure bred stallion.

Sound, high class horses are the ideal farm power, and good mares bred to pure bred sires of the same breed and onformation pay good profits not only in the colts they produce, as has been shown, but also in the labor they perform. Poor horses render poor service and often cost more to keep than they are worth. The loss in feed consumed and lack of labor performed by the inferior and scrub horses of the country is enormous. This expense can be greatly reduced if farmers and mare owners will breed their mares to the right sort of stallions and produce the kind of horses the farm rejuires and the market demands.

The time to begin is now. All inferior pure bred colts and all grade and mongrel colts should be castrated. Only the best mares should be retained and these bred to sound, pure bred sires. One of the best ways to stimulate interest in the breeding of better horses is to arrange to hold a fall colt show. A string of promising colts will afford striking evidence of the result of breeding the best and prove a splendid advertisement for the com-

REARING SPRING PIGS.

Youngsters Should Have a Dry Bed and Be Carefully Fed.

A comfortable house with dry bedding means much to the spring pigs, writes J. Coleman in the Farm and Fireside. In fact, all other conditions may be perfect, and yet if this point is neglected failure may result.

The pigs will soon learn to eat. The amount of feed can be increased as they advance in age, but they shouldn't be fed more than they will clean up nicely. An occasional scalding and sunning of the trough will keep it clean.

The first four months of a nig's life determine largely what his after success is. Never let him lose his pig fat during this time. Prepare for ample grazing as soon as the soil is warm enough by sowing rape or rape and grain mixed. This can be grazed by the pigs within six to eight weeks after sown. Allow them to run on any green crops, especially clover or vetch, as soon as they will graze.

A succession of field grazing crops maturing through the summer and fall will supplement their daily grain ration and will enable them to produce their gain at a profit. Pigs fed on grain alone, with little or no grazing crops, will return little or no profit.

Cleaning Alfalfa of Weeds. Alfalfa which is two or more years old should be thoroughly disked or harrowed after the first cutting. Fields which are absolutely weedless do not need much disking or harrowing, but the ordinary field, where blue grass, redtop or similar grasses have come in, should be given a thorough disking or harrowing. On the average farm the disk is the best available tool which can be used, or the spring tooth harrow will do. The object is to tear out the grass.-American Agriculturist.

HELD AT GOLDENDALE

Young Man Charged with Ransacking is from Oregon City

A man giving his name as John Ployt was arrested Sunday at Goldendale, Wash., by Sheriff Ira Henderson on the charge of entering and ransacking the house of Joe Young, SHOOTING PAINS a farmer, eight miles east of Goldendale, during the owner's absence. Ployt had a military registration card issued in precinct No. 2, Oregon City, with serial No. 50 and said that his draft number was 1694. He also had an employe's identification card issued by the Oregon City Woolen mills April 5 last, No. 324. Ployt told the officers that he left Oregon City and came to Shipherd Springs to take treatment for stomach trouble and that he was on his way across country to the Yakima valley to seek outdoor work in the fruit orchards. He says he went into the Joe Young house to get something to eat, having walked up into the Klickitat valley from Fallbridge Sunday.
