Cataract Washer

She Sits and Sews While the Washer Goes

The worst part of housework is the washing—when done in the old way, on the rubboard, rasping the dirt and soil out of each piece separately, by hand. If you have a hand machine it will help out, but even then someone must push and pull the handle back and forth, and, although it is not hard, it becomes arduous before the family washing is completed. Then, the wringer must be turned by hand, and this is by far more tiresome than operating the washer.

Hand operated machines have been done away with in the factory, in the office, and in the institution, and, in fact, everywhere. Men now use machinery operated by power. Why should women not do likewise.

"Mrs. M. S. Davis, 1607 10th Ave., N. Nashville, Tenn., writes:

"After having been a constant sufferer from catarrh for more than twenty years and after trying almost every remedy advertised, and having lost all hope, I very reluctantly began the use of Peruna about two years ago. Everybody says I look younger now than I did twenty years ago, and I actually feel younger and better, and weigh more. I am recommending it to my neighbors and all with whom I come in contact."

TWELVE OREGON FARMERS GROW CERTIFIED SPUDS

Twelve Oregon potato growers reached the standard of excellence required in growing certified seed potatoes, in 1918, and have received certificates. Seven of them grew their certified crops in Benton county, three in Lane, one each in Linn and Marion. The largest crop was 1950 sacks produced in Lane county. The total production was 5380 sacks.

The purpose of seed certification is to supply growers with potatoes that are disease-free, true to variety type, and of desirable market qualities. The ultimate aim is to improve the quality, yield and market value of the Oregon potato crop and restore it to its former vantage point of preference over all others.

Any grower with a good strain of potatoes may enter his field for certification. He must handle his crop in accordance with the recommendations of the official inspector, who will visit his field twice a year and inspect the plants. If not too badly mixed or affected with too much disease the crop is continued for certification.

After the potatoes are dug, sorted and stored, they are given final inspection and if passed each sack will be tagged with the official certificate and may be offered at certified prices. Fees for certification run about $2 to $3 an acre.

A bulletin giving particulars has been published by the O. A. C. Extension Service and may be had free on application. Its writer is M. B. McKay, official inspector and associate plant pathologist.

OREGON JERSEY WIRES CELEBRATE BIG VICTORY

Having put Oregon at the head of Jersey producing states the country over, Oregon Jersey breeders celebrated the victory by a rousing jubilee, May 20-24. M. D. Nunn, president of the American Jersey Cattle club, and other noted Jersey specialists have come to help the local live wires put it across.

The jubilee was opened with a trip over the Columbia river highway Tuesday, followed by a visit to nearby Jersey farms. A banquet was held in the evening. The remainder of the time is being spent in visiting and inspecting some of the championship herds from those of Portland to that of the agricultural college at Corvallis.

Vive la France, a four-year-old Jersey owned by Pickard Bros. of Marion county, has not only broken the four-year old world record but also the record for the breed. She has produced more butter fat than any other cow of any breed in the first three milk periods.

The Oregon breeders believe that climatic conditions and careful selection of foundation stock has put the state in a class by itself as a Jersey center, and are preparing to make the most of these favorable conditions. With eight out of 12 class records held by Oregon, others are in early prospect.

Favors Irrigation Measure

The irrigation measures to be voted on in June are of vast importance to the entire state, declares J. W. Brewer, farm help specialist for Oregon. If enacted they mean adding millions of acres to the farming areas and the tax rolls. "Anybody can follow," he says, "but it takes a real man or a real state to be a leader. Let's start things."
