CHANCE FOR G. O. P. TO PROVE ITS SINCERITY

The election of "Senator" Truman H. Newberry, of Michigan, contested by Henry Ford, will give the Republican majority of the upper house of the new Congress an opportunity to show the nation how much purification has been accomplished in that party since it relinquished control eight years ago. Because of the slender Republican majority in the Senate—two—there is little doubt in Washington as to the ultimate outcome of the affair. Public insistence, however, is likely to force a complete investigation of the huge campaign fund that the Newberry managers admit having expended.

Apparently a cheerless and profitless task will confront the Republican-controlled senate committee on privileges and elections. If Newberry should be ousted the majority's control would hang on one vote for some time, and that one might not "stand hitched." Moreover, several Republican senators publicly or privately have been outspoken in their denunciation of the slush-fund methods in Michigan last year.

"If this enormous expenditure of money in senatorial campaigns is to go without challenge by Congress, then a poor man has no chance ever to secure a seat in this body and simply the rich can purchase a seat here," said Senator Kenyon, of Iowa, on the floor of the Senate when he heard the report that $176,568.08 was admitted to have been spent in the Newberry primary campaign in which ex-Governor Chase S. Osborn and Henry Ford were contestants. Of this amount, $99,900 was furnished by John S. Newberry, a brother, presumably without Senator Newberry's "knowledge or consent" to quote his own words relative to this campaign fund.

L. D. Dickinson, Republican, who was reelected Lieutenant Governor in the same campaign, called upon Newberry to "withdraw from this campaign and save the everlasting disgrace to the party and the state from a pollution that would stay for years." Mr. Newberry did not withdraw, this being another case of not "with my knowledge or consent."

"If Mr. Newberry should be elected, Michigan will have an election scandal worse than the Lorimer scandal in Illinois or the Stephenson scandal in Wisconsin. If this is to be the policy permitted in Michigan, then none but millionaires, or men with millionaire friends who will pay the bills, need apply for the office of governor or United States senator, for only they can pay the price." This was the summing up of the situation by Merlin Wiley, Republican member of the Michigan legislature and manager of the Osborn campaign, after a detailed indictment that pointed out the obviously huge expenditures necessitated by the Newberry army's scale of operations.

The trail of William Lorimer that finally was followed back to certain corporate interests of Chicago was far less clearly marked than that of Truman H. Newberry, who has two hurdles to leap. The first, the federal law, says regarding campaign expenditures:

"No candidate for senator shall give, contribute, expend, use, or promise or cause to be given, contributed, expended, used or promised in procuring his nomination and election any sum in the aggregate in excess of the amount which he may lawfully give, contribute, expend, or promise under the laws of the state in which he resides: Provided, That no candidate for senator of the United States shall give, contribute, expend, use, or promise any sum in the aggregate exceeding $10,000 in any campaign for his nomination and election."

The second hurdle is the Michigan statute, which did not prevent the expenditure of more than $176,000 in Newberry's behalf, though reading as follows:

"No sums of money shall be paid and no expenses authorized or incurred by or on behalf of any candidate to be paid by him in order to secure or aid in securing his nomination to any public office in excess of 25 per cent of one year's compensation of the office."

Certainly both statutes are explicit enough to demand a thorough overhauling in the open of Michigan's inside political methods.

SICK COW CAUSE OF DEATH OF BABIES IN HOME

The epidemic at the Waverly Baby home, which resulted in the death of 14 babies, was due to milk from a diseased cow, according to a report made to City Health Officer Parrish Monday by Dr. E. C. Pernot, city bacteriologist.

On May 28 a city milk inspector was sent to the home to make an inspection of the cows, and found one cow cut off from the herd suffering from an inflammation. The cow had not been used for some time, it was said.

Tests and cultures made by Dr. Pernot, he reports, prove to his satisfaction that the trouble at least originated with the use of milk from this cow, and that the disease might have been transmitted to others by contaminated fingers.

"It is highly probable," reports Dr. Pernot, "that before the condition of this particular cow was noticed that some child became infected and that the organisms passing through the child increased in virulence and were transmitted to others by contaminated fingers or other means."

"The same streptococci found as the cause of the babies' illness was found in the milk from the diseased cow. A rabbit inoculated with these organisms developed a large internal abscess. These organisms are not fatal to either guinea pigs or rabbits, but cause serious intestinal disturbances in infants."

"Microscopic examination proved that barley gruel used with the milk contained too many coarse particles from the barley, which acted as an irritant on the inflamed bowels. This, however, was no fault of the person who prepared the food, as these particles were not detectable with the naked eye."

"In conclusion I am of the opinion that the disease among the children had its origin from the diseased cow, as we have had cases of a similar character before, and traced their origin to some cow in the herd that furnished the milk."

Mrs. D. C. Burns, president of the Waverly baby home, said Monday that Dr. Pernot's report was her first knowledge that a diseased cow might have been the cause of the epidemic. She said that milk from the cow in question had not been used from the moment that it became apparent that the cow was suffering from a disorder, and that all the cows at the home are inspected at intervals by city milk inspectors.

Dr. Parrish said that he had every reason to accept the report of Dr. Pernot, but that he could not see that anyone in connection with the home would be entitled to criticism, as the cow had been cut from the herd even prior to the first report of sickness, and that at the time of the first call by the medical authorities the sick cow had been unused for such a lengthy period that it was virtually placed outside of all deductions.—Oregonian.

BETTER CARE OF SHEEP PAYS OWNERS IMMENSELY

Seven farm sheep demonstrations were held last year in Missouri—flock owners cooperating with sheep specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture and the state agricultural college—the results of which, among other things, showed that it pays well to give sheep proper care. In two of the demonstrations, where grade animals were kept, one flock produced 108 per cent of lambs, which means that some of the ewes had twin lambs, while the other flock produced only 59 per cent of lambs, which means that a large number of the ewes did not produce any or that the lambs were too weak at birth to be saved. The wool from the first flock was sold at 66 cents a pound, while the wool from the second flock brought 64 cents a pound. The cost of feed of the first flock amounted to $7.05 for each animal, while the sheep of the second flock were fed at a cost of $1.34 each. The total cost, in the first flock amounted to $8.36 an animal, as compared to $2.57 for the second flock. But the net profit a head—the point which is most important to all sheep raisers—was $5.74 in the first flock as compared to $2.22 in the second flock, and the net return on the investment amounted to 21.77 per cent in the first flock as compared to 15.23 per cent in the second flock.

New Record in Tick Work

If the cattle-fever tick had any head for figures it would know that it is losing its fight to continue sucking millions of dollars' worth of blood each year from southern cattle. But it has no head for figures and can not know that it might as well quit now, and therefore must be exterminated. The cattle dippings in April of this year totaled 5,339,015—more than in
