VICTOR Records at REDUCED PRICES

Victor Double-faced Records are now on sale at pre-war prices.

10-inch double-faced Records 75c. 12-inch double-faced Records $1.25.

The Victor Talking Machine Co. was the last to advance record prices and then only 10c. All other records went up to $1.00. The Victor is the first to reduce but the others will soon have to follow.

Improvements in standard types of Victrolas without increase in price, and the introduction of new models figured on anticipated normal condition rather than on present costs—puts the entire Victor line on a lower price basis and emphasizes again the leadership of the Victor Talking Machine Co.

We have the only Victor Agency in Clackamas County.

Between You and Me "Joe Jolly"

Any person who takes a special delight in seeing his neighbor down had a glorious celebration on that eventful Monday, the 16th, when the ice storm visited Oregon City. Likewise, persons engaged in uplift work found their services in need all day.

The children seemed to take the most fearful hazard, because there were so many of them and as they live in a region where ice is not common, they are not schooled in the ways of protecting themselves. It was a pity how their poor little heads would bump the ground, after which their dismal wails did not proclaim happiness.

Furthermore, if a child grows up realizing how his life is interwoven with those about him he will be safeguarded against selfishness, and if he is taught to think about work and play in their relationship to each other, over emphasizing either will be prevented.

"Sy" Thornton of Bennett barber shop fame, was landed in the city last week Thursday in a hilarious condition. He deposited twenty-five "bucks" with hizzoner the next day and proceeded to celebrate in his usual style which wasn't duly appreciated by night officer Hemmingway who returned him to the city's hospitality. When he faced the tenderhearted court the following day he was detached from $25.00 bail and requested to appear for final consultation on Monday this week—and the request is all there is to be found. Sy has gone—somewhere, somehow, and it is devoutly hoped—for SOME TIME.

Giving Thanks

By Alice Wingate Frary All thoughtful parents, I am sure, wish their children to have "wide interests and simple pleasures." Indeed the two go together, for the farther into the activities of others the child's sympathies carry him, the more wholesome pleasures he is bound to discover for himself.

"Peter, Peter, quickly go To the fields the grass to mow" shows the best how many workers contribute to his well being. It can not fail to interest a child when he knows the cow must be fed to furnish the milk he so much likes, the butter churned and his rolls baked from the soft white flour the miller has ground.

"Thanks to all are gladly said, Baker, thank you for the bread. Thanks dear mother shall not miss. Given with a loving kiss."

limit of his strength for a trivial end. He was to keep his powers at their highest, then give himself utterly when a worthwhile occasion arose. Even young children can be taught to keep an idea of balance, and will be richer and happier for the knowledge.

The broader the education of the parents, the more they will have to pass on to their children. Once open your child's eyes to the ways by which he is provided with food, clothing, transportation, heat, light, and other comforts, and if he has a normal, eager mind he will as he grows older find means of supplementing what you have given him the inestimable advantage of a fair beginning, he will see and understand the evidences of cause and effect in his life.

But perhaps the greatest advantage we give our children in showing them the relationship of incidents and circumstances in their lives, is the habit of appreciation. Then naturally follows gratitude to the Heavenly Father. Why should every good thing be taken for granted? Saying "Thank you" is more than an amenity. They will be better members of society for having learned to express gratitude, with the knowledge of a reason for "Giving Thanks," in the understanding gained of
