Women Interested in Towner-Sterling Bill

Mrs. Edward Franklin White, chairman of legislation of the General Federation of Women's Clubs and assistant attorney general of Indiana, called attention to the fact that the United States Government now spends four times as much per head on the cattle, horses, sheep and hogs of the country as it spends per capita on its school children, and that the women of the General Federation feel that the children should at least be on a par with fish, hens and hogs.

They are much concerned over the critical situation of the Towner-Sterling bill which provides for a Department of Education with a Secretary in the Cabinet and for federal aid to the states in the promotion of education, including the training of teachers, the teaching of adults, vocational training, and assisting in payment of teachers' salaries.

Some twenty amendments offered to this bill in the last Congress have been incorporated in the new bill introduced in the Sixty-seventh Congress. It rests now in the committee on the reorganization of departments, where it is being considered with another bill for a Department of Public Welfare, in which education will have only a part. The women of the Federation feel that it should not be subordinated to other departments and should be dignified by a separate place in the Cabinet, as is done in other countries, with a trained educator at the head.

All women who desire to aid in the passage of this bill can do this by writing to Hon. Walter F. Brown, Winder Building, Bureau of Efficiency, 17th Street N. W., Washington D. C., chairman of the committee on reorganiza-

"Turn to the Right" Is America's Greatest Comedy

Clean, Sparkling Play of Winchell Smith and John E. Hazzard Given at Chautauqua by Keighley Players of New York City—Play Is Declared to Be a Powerful Sermon

"Turn to the Right," declared by competent New York theatrical critics to be America's greatest comedy, will be one of the feature attractions at Chautauqua. It is to be presented here under the direction of Wm. Keighley, well-known New York actor-producer, with a company of well-known Broadway players. The story was written by Winchell Smith and John E. Hazzard, and is "sweet as honey," clean, wholesome, with a sparkling humor that is irresistible. It is the story of an erring boy's regeneration through the Christian influence of his old-fashioned mother. An honest-hearted, exuberant youth leaves his country home to seek the city's riches. He returns stained with a prison record. The sweet environment of a typical American home, the influence of a kind, old-fashioned mother, unite in swinging the boy back along the right path, with two of his prison "cronies" who had looked him up to "pull" another "job." It's a wonderful story—a sermon, if you please—and it will be presented with the usual fine settings and costuming that characterize the plays produced by the Keighley Broadway Players. "It's a peach of a play," said the New York World, following its premier appearance there a few years ago.

Hill of Portland told of the securing by the Clackamas County delegation of the grocers picnic for Gladstone Park. The Booster club quartet augmented by a jazz orchestra furnished the musical entertainment for the evening.

THE BURDEN OF TAXES

Before the war the government of the United States spent about one billion dollars a year for all purposes, including interest on the public debt. In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920, the first full fiscal year after fighting stopped, the government spent in round figures six billion four hundred million dollars. In the fiscal year 1921, that is, up to June 30, 1921, it spent $5,115,927,088.30, and in the fiscal year of 1922, which will end on June 30, 1922, it will spend more than four billion dollars, says Secretary Mellon of the Treasury Department.

These figures include interest on the public debt which amounts to about one billion dollars, but include nothing for sinking fund or other debt redemption. Including both interest and sinking fund, the government will spend more than four times as much the fiscal year 1922 as it spent yearly before the war.

These expenditures and these heavy charges are a part of the price of victory. Your whole present problem is to curtail them. It concerns you to know just how these immense sums were gathered and how much you paid and are paying toward them, for of course we, the tax payers, the men and women with jobs, the men and women who have what the census calls gainful occupations, paid every cent of it. It was our money until the government took it.

Let us examine the fiscal year 1920. I have not the detailed account for 1921, but it was slightly less than the year previous, as the year ending June 30, 1922, will be a slightly less burden on us than the year preceding. According to a careful analysis made by the late Dr. E. B. Ross, of the United States bureau of standards, a government scientist who was deeply and intelligently interested in the subject, every man, woman and child in this country contributes an average of fifty-three dollars in taxes to the support of the national government. Actually it is nearer fifty-four than fifty-three dollars, but I am taking the smaller sum for the sake of the round number. That is, the average family of five persons pays $265 a year out of its earnings to the federal government alone, in addition to what is paid for state, county and city taxes. The estimated average yearly income of a family of five is something more than $700. But before any of that $700 is spent $265 must be turned over to the general government to run the business of the United States.

MAYOR ACQUITTED ON ASSAULT CHARGE

A jury in Judge Noble's court on Wednesday acquitted F. M. Hendrickson, mayor of Molalla, of the charge of assault preferred by Gordon J. Taylor, editor of the Pioneer Press. Mr. Taylor testified that Mr. Hendrickson attacked him without immediate provocation upon his entering the defendant's store to inquire about some printing; and that the aggressor grabbed, slapped and knocked him down into the street by striking him in the chest.

Mr. Taylor testified also that he had suffered physical injuries which had caused him pain and suffering. Dr. Mount testified in this connection that he had examined the plaintiff later and found that three ribs had been loosened from the chest wall. Several witnesses testified for Mr. Taylor with reference to what occurred outside the store. Mr. Hendrickson claimed that Taylor treated him defiantly; that he took hold of the plaintiff's shoulders, shoved him out of doors across the sidewalk where he fell into the street. His testimony and that of his witnesses differed from the claims of the plaintiff and his witnesses in the matter of the amount of force used. Hendrickson claimed also that Taylor tried to strike him with a mallet and with his hands both of which Taylor vigorously denied.

The defendant showed contempt for plaintiff during his testimony referring to his as "cattle". The affair is the culmination of a dislike engendered by articles in Taylor's paper criticizing the defendant's official conduct. Fear Extinction of Chamols.

Extinction of chamols in the mountains of Savoy in Italy and Switzerland, is threatened, just as the buffalo disappeared from the western American prairies, and animal lovers there are preparing to petition their governments, demanding the protection of the chamols. An investigation of the Grenoble district showed that the war was responsible for the new devastation of the chamols. Before the war only a few mountaineers took out hunting licenses. In fact, comparatively few of them could bear the expense of buying a good rifle. After the armistice, however, thousands of veterans returning to the Savoy mountains took with them rifles and good supplies of ammunition, which proved useful in combating the increasing cost of living. So general has hunting now become in the mountains that departmental officials say that unless these nimble animals are protected for at least two years they will become extinct inside of 20 years.
