Canby Grammar School Graduates 38

At the commencement exercises of the Canby public school on Thursday, May 25th, thirty-eight young people bid farewell to their tutors in the grammar grade in a very impressive exercise held in the school hall.

With colors of maroon and gold and a class flower of red carnations and the motto "Beginning, not ending, the class of graduates were introduced by Prof. Howard Eccles in a short, but impressive talk. This was followed by a beautiful and well executed drill by the little tots of the first grade. A song and drill by second and third grades and patriotic exercises in two parts by the third and fourth grades.

Following a sketch in "Mother Goose" and "The lamp went out" by the fifth and sixth grades "Columbia the Gem of the Ocean" was sang by the pupils and audience, all standing in patriotic recognition.

Clifford Samuelson gave the salutatory in an impressive way. Blanche Kendall gave the introduction of class '22. Lavern Eckerson rendered a piano solo and Hugo Schaubel read the class history. "Class prophecy" presented by Pearl Stoller was both interesting and amusing and was well flavored with wit and thought. A special song by the eighth grade girls and the valedictory by Dorothy Pitts were well received by the six hundred or more people, who were present to enjoy the entertaining exercises and rejoice with the teachers who so faithfully performed their tasks through the school month of 1921-22 in the progress of a Canby school has made and the intellectual development manifest in this commencement exercises.

Those graduating from the eighth grade this year, were: Clifford LeRoy Samuelson, Pearl May Stoller, Mabel Gertrude Smith, Blanche Vera Kendall, Dorothy Mae Pitts, Lola Belle Griffith Marabel Bates, Cleo B. Coltrin, Raymond Weygandt, Agnes Margaret Thompson, Ella Johanna Thompson, Ernest Willard Erickson, Clarence Peter Stoller, Chalmers Cleo Sauters, Verna Julia Yeary, Verena Olive Leach, Sarah Margaret Rice, Leonard Gilbert Boe, John Harrison Sweet, Edith Marie Hawes, Geneva Esther Lien, Omar Charles Crumley, Elmer William Rice, Earl Stanley Skinner, Bernice Meda Arneson, Caroline Lois Dodge, Ella Agnes Sauers, Lavern Emma Eckerson, Gerald Knight Bair, Ellen Christine Jacobson, Harold William Buhman, Hugo Adolph Schaubel, Christina Catherine Rueck, Gilbert Satter, Lillian Elizabeth Olson, Edward Norman Hagen, Gladys Marie Sather, Aniat Louise Hulras.

We feel proud of these young people as all patriotic citizens should feel for that development of interest which will make for future manhood and womanhood of our country.

They are the rosebuds to bloom for the future decoration of our nation. And we wish them success in their further efforts to grow in physical and intellectual strength so that when their self-sacrificing fathers and mothers will have passed beyond the shifting scenes of time they may be well

Canby High School Graduates Twelve

Friday evening, May 26, marked a period in the lives of twelve young citizens of Canby long to be remembered by them and not to be soon forgotten by their parents. It marked the second milestone on their journey toward a goal which every ambitious young man and woman hope to reach. As the days of the Crusades, 1096, and on through the twelfth century prepared the minds of European countries for the Renaissance period in which the world should witness a new birth of intellect; so the hard fought battle through which these twelve young people have passed in the grammar and high school studies reached their climax in a graduation exercises held at the high school gymnasium last Friday night. The large hall was crowded to capacity by interested people of Canby and vicinity, to witness the ceremony of placing upon the heads of these young students the diadem of victory. In the opening exercises a piano selection was played by Prof. Franklin Laumer the tutor for the student body in this fine art.

The salutatory was given by Eva Kraus with becoming grace and dignity, which was followed by Mildred Henriksen in a presentation of the class history.

An inspiring song entitled "Class of '22" was sung by the graduating class and for thought, diction and feeling, was well received. In a composition written and presented by Pauline Raddatz on "In prophecy 1932" the graduates composed the class were carried on wings of imagination in various professions and callings. The writer has forgotten some of the prophecies made as to members of the class by 1932 but there is an echo in my ear, which sounds like Eva Krause was to be queen of the "Rose carnival at Portland." Louis C. Lorenz, the world's greatest traveler is riding on the back of the Sphinx through the Sandy deserts of Egypt. Mildred Henriksen, with bright ideas and jolly disposition has become the birds of paradise to sing sweeter songs; Charles Bates has won fame in the wireless industry, and climbing to the top of the north pole sends a wireless to his wife and ten children who have gone on a visit by air plane to the planet Mars, with best wishes from Dr. Cook; Miss Eleanor Lent is seen sailing up the Nile in a modernly equipped boat to sing the sweet songs of civilization into the hearts and lives of the people yet to be redeemed.

Myles E. Noble standing among the Nobles occupies the exalted position of chief of police of the city of New Era, while Noel Oathes is captain of a fleet of air ships doing a thriving business from the Panama Canal zone, through central and south America to the mouth of the Amazon. Some prophecies, I'll tell the world.

In an original poem Louis Lorenz demonstrated both originality and depth of thought. The "class will" by Dorothy Vaughn; the valedictory by Cora Ausve and music by the high school girls sextette were all presented in an impressive way and appreciated by those in attendance.

Rev. Caradoc Morgan of Oregon City made the class address, which was thoughtful and timely and much appreciated by the thinking people who heart it.

Following are the names of the graduates who were presented with diplomas by Mrs. P. Gregory Cartledge, high school principal; Eva E. Kraus, Louis L. Lorenz, M. Eleanor Lent, Mildred Henriksen, Noel Oathes, Dorothy J. Vaughn, Cora E. Ausve, Charles F. Bates, Easter Noble, Violet L. Ledford, Myles E. Noble, and Pauline Raddatz.

Miss Cora Ausve received the scholarship offered by several Oregon colleges for highest grade. Her average being 94.51 per cent.

games to their credit so far this season. The Clackamas bunch met defeat on the Canby diamond Friday, May 21st, 13 to 4. On last Friday a very enthusiastic game was played between our grammar school team and Gladstone. And while the score was 6 to 5, in favor of Canby the contestants on both sides showed skill and activity. It was a good clean game and aroused a feeling of admiration in all who saw it. The game was played on the Canby diamond, and witnessed by a large crowd.

Lacy Wallace of the Gladstone team did the "Babe Ruth" stunt in making a home run. We have our hats off to this young "Babe Ruth". Both Canby and Gladstone have one win, to their credit. And the next game will decide as to who shall hold the cup for the season.

Red Flower is Changed to White

A peculiar feature has occurred in the gardens of Mrs. Andrew Koehler and her sister-in-law, Miss Koehler, of this city, when a variety of flowers known as the "ten-week stock" has changed color from a bright crimson to a snowy white. Last year these plants were profusely covered with the bright colored flowers, and in their stead this year only white blossoms appear, both single and double, and the gardens containing these plants had been the pride of the neighborhood in Canby, the colors of which could be seen for a distance and admired by many passing this week.
