CANBY

Dr. John Fuller

The city council, at a meeting held on Thursday, Oct. 5th, planned to have engineers survey the city in preparation for a new lighting system, to supplant the old one, with which Canby has been annoyed for many months.

The expected consumation of a contract by and between the city of Canby and the Molalla Light & Power company, referred to in last week's issue, failing to mature, and the patience of the city council having been exhausted, in an endeavor to arrive at a just settlement of the lighting proposition, which has been hanging fire for more than a year, it has been decided to build a new system and make no further effort toward relieving the owners of the old plant. The charter under which the Molalla Light & Power Co. was serving the city having expired, and there being no legal authority for imposing their services upon the city, the citizens of Canby, they will, perhaps, be notified to remove their poles and wires from the city property, to make room for establishing the new plant.

On Saturday night, Oct. 21st, the Odd Fellows will hold a district convention at Canby. A large delegation is expected and preparations are being made for a big time.

Politics and campaign thunder are breaking out in Canby. J. R. Murphy, of Portland, fired the first gun in a forceful speech at the Artisan hall, on Monday night. His speech was against the proposed compulsory public school training bill and in behalf of the parochial school system. It is hoped that some hanger for the other side of the question will appear in Canby and unload before election day. There may be a crust on both sides of the pie. We believe all children should have religious training. That is what the church, Sunday school and home are for.

Mrs. Sopher of Newberg is spending a few days visiting friends in Canby.

OBITUARY

A. H. Knight is on the sick list.

Miss Jennie Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson, of Canby, died at the Oregon City hospital, last Sunday afternoon.
