As the republican party is very vigorous and lively in Clackars as county it follows that some state are trying to make it appear that the of its members who were candidates for Exympton make it appear that the Exympton is opposed to native Organization combation for office were disappointed for office or something. Nothing of the sorely disappointed, however, must acknowledge that the body acted wisely and that all sections of the county have adequate representation on the licker. There is probably no one man in the county who would have made just the selections the convention made, but the sentiments of the people at large were focused here and it is only fair to assume that the action of the convention truly represents the views and preferences of a great majority of the people of the

The Canby Saloon Matter,

Again the ENTERPRISE gives space to a communication from Camby relating to the saloon matter that has agitated that community considerably of late. The writer of the letter evidently feels that his indignation is righteous but he expresses himself with due temperance and in a number that commands more than a passing notice. Inasmuch as he seems to carry the opinion and leave the inference that this paper is in favor of the saloon a clear statement upon this point may not be out of place here.

The Extensuse does not "justify the action that brought this undesired thing" to Canby. The position we have maintained from the first is that the Camby people who are opposed to the saloon have just cause for complaint; that Sushaner practiced a sharp, shrewd trick upon them, taking a mean advantage that enabled him to slip through the law and get a license. Nobody has any doubt on this point. But in criticising the county court for granting the license the critics should remember that the circumstances of this case were unusual and peculiar. A fine legal point is involved in it and, as the ESTERPRISE said at first, it is possible that the court erred in its construction of the law in this case. It would not A little dog lay is the gutter one day be the first time mistakes in the construing of statutes had been made.
