The way to build up Oregon City is to give Oregon City people your patronage.

The Motor Line Proposition.

The plan of building a narrow gauge railroad to be operated by steam motors, suggested in Mr. Hardesty's communication to the board of trade, is somewhat novel but not so impracticable as it might seem at first thought.

The cost of such a road fully equipped for business ought to be less than $100,000. A company giving satisfactory assurance of good service could get important business to encourage the enterprise.

The Australian Ballot and the City Election.

At the last regular council meeting in this city the mayor was instructed to confer with the city attorney as to the bearing of the Australian ballot law upon the forthcoming city election.

Now if Palmer, Boies, Russell, Gorman, Flower, Gray and the rest of the boys will only keep off the grass the Cleveland political lawn will be in tip-top condition for the Chicago convention.

PRES OPINIONS.

Philadelphia Record: It will be interesting to see the department of justice make the lumber trust walk a plank.

Mr. Bingham, the Portland attorney who is the reputed father of the Australian ballot law, writes City Attorney Cross that the law was not intended to govern municipal elections and that he cannot see how it can be made to apply without logging in the council and recorder powers now belonging exclusively to the county court and county clerk.

While it may be true that the Australian ballot law was not designed to govern municipal elections it is also true that if it be wholly ignored the Oregon City election would be a mighty loose affair.

The Democratic Ticket.

The republicans are pleased with the ticket nominated by the democratic convention in this city last week.

CONGRESSMAN JOHN L. WILSON of Spokane has again gotten himself noticed by having a scuffle with some of the grandis at the treasury in Washington.

Correction.

THE GOOD OLD TIMES.

A Congressman Remembers and Tells about the Days of Revenue Tariff.

Mr. Joseph D. Taylor (of Ohio)—"I can remember very well when I was a boy that the neighbors used to gather around my father's fireside and talk about their mortgages and debts.

"When I was a boy we hauled wheat to the canal, a distance of forty miles, and sold our wheat at 37 1/2 cents a bushel, and I can remember the time when there was absolutely no market at all for wheat.

"Another Member—"Why didn't you eat them?" [Laughter.]

Mr. Joseph D. Taylor—"There was no market whatever for them. Do not talk to me about mortgages and debts. In that part of the country at that time everybody was in debt.

"Mr. Chairman, these older men who lived in the rural districts know that I am telling the truth. The farmers know it. Farmers tow have carriages, spring wagons, carpeted floors, papered walls, comfortable homes, comfortable clothing, and a thousand conveniences and comforts which they did not have then.

"There was not a young man in my neighborhood who had a good overcoat before he was twenty-one years of age. The first one I ever had I bought when I was about this age; and I bought that on credit. At that time everything was bought on credit, and debts and wages were paid by orders to the stores.—Congressional Record April 8.
