Two Lies Nailed.

Shortly after the nomination of Mr. Henry Jewell for representative there were heard reports of his having been engaged years ago in most extraordinary transactions.

These rumors were so well circulated in town that many people not personally acquainted with Mr. Jewell began to give them some credence.

Letters notifying Mr. Jewell of the state of affairs failed to reach him on account of being sent to the wrong post office.

Inasmuch as there has been pretty industriously circulated, with the apparent purpose of defeating my election as representative, one report that I was caught in the act of selling butter in which mashed potatoes were concealed, and another report that I had sold a stack of hay in which a stump took a large space, I hereby declare that I never sold butter with potatoes in it and of course was never arrested or fined for such offense, or any other.

to establish the fact and to make him suffer for it. In the absence of any such proof no man with any regard for honor will continue to give currency to such scurrilous lies.

There is hardly a question that the evil reports were started by persons who would like to see Mr. Jewell beaten at the polls. This sneaking, wolfish method of pulling a man down is repulsive to every instinct of the true American citizen.

Issues of the Campaign.

There are four issues in this campaign that stand out prominent and clear, and in which every voter feels a personal interest. These are county roads, the matter of taxation, the protective tariff and the silver question.

In the respect of the administration of county affairs the ENTERPRISE has heretofore presented some significant facts by way of comparison between republican and democratic methods, and it will have more to say on the subject.

But the tax matter will never be satisfactorily adjusted until the present state laws on the subject are radically changed. The people are not suffering from high taxation so much as they are galled by the injustice of the present laws which enable so many wealthy persons to escape paying anything.

The tariff and the money question both present intricate problems for students of the dismal science of political economy. But he who runs may read that the greatest prosperity this country has ever enjoyed has been under protective tariff and honest money.

The Sheriff's Campaign Tactics.

A good deal of misinformation is emanating from the sheriff's office these days. Most of this effervescence pertains to the regular republican nominee for sheriff, Mr. Eli C. Maddock.

It is stated that Mr. Maddock is not a taxpayer or that he pays only $1 of tax; that there is something crooked in his returns to the assessor; that he is a bad man generally, etc.

Sheriff Samson must be held responsible for this disgraceful bushwhacking. Not that all the falsehoods and insinuations and noisy mouthings that characterize this guerrilla attack come direct from Mr. Samson personally, but it appears to be all countenanced by him.

Of course if Mr. Samson chooses to oppose the election of Mr. Maddock it is his inalienable American right to do so. Whether his reasons for such action are good and sufficient is none of the people's business.

It is not a little odd that the lips of a few men should outweigh and nullify a statute. While it is well that the nominations for office should be made in as public a manner as possible—there is no question on that point—it is difficult to see how an election can be held in Oregon City entirely outside the state law. If compliance with any portion of that act can be compelled why is not compliance with the whole (except where it conflicts with the city charter) equally compulsory? For example, if one man declares the law inapplicable because it may not suit his convenience to make nominations or prepare ballots or have booths as required by it, may not another with equal propriety declare it inapplicable because it may not suit him to have his vote challenged and to have to swear it in according to the form prescribed in the law?

FLEECED wool is worth from eight to sixteen cents a pound in Oregon this spring, with a tariff of thirteen cents a pound on importations from foreign countries.

THE Flower that blooms in Chicago, tra la, will scarcely be that from New York.

VERILY it is prophesied that Samson shall not slay Eli with the jawbone of ass.

A CHANCE FOR OREGON CITY.

The Merchants Should Make an Effort to Get the Trade now Made Possible.

PLEASANT HILL, Or., April 23.—[TO THE EDITOR.]—I see by your paper, and by the boat's bills, that the Manzanillo will begin to run regular trips between Mission Landing and Oregon City, connecting with the Altona and Ramona.

The value to the country along the route can hardly be estimated. If the boat is patronized to such an extent that she will stay on the run it will increase the value of all the land near the river, as quick transportation will give us a chance to raise and market a different class of produce.

I hope that Oregon City too will reap a benefit from the new route. I would like to suggest to her merchants that now is a time to secure a trade that they have not had heretofore and to get that trade they will have to show the people that they can furnish them what they want as cheap as the same article can be had in Portland.

NEWSPAPER SAYINGS. Minneapolis Tribune: When Mr. David Bennett Hill arises in a national democratic convention and places Mr. Grover Cleveland in nomination for the presidency there will be a great hustling for ascension robes, for verily the end will be nigh.

New York Tribune: Ex-Secretary Whitney knows just the proper time for a dark horse to take a trip to Europe if any American statesman does.

Newspaper Notes.

The St. Helens Mist, published by John Beagle, has discarded patents and now is all home print. It shows commendable enterprise in this improvement and the people of Columbia county ought to appreciate their new paper.

E. L. Thorp, formerly publisher of the East Portland Vindicator, has resumed control of that paper and seems determined to make a success of the business. The paper started out last week with number one of Second series.

Several parties in Salem have imported a carload of quassia wood for the purpose of making an infusion for the destruction of hop lice. The wood looks like scraggy stumps of vine maple and will be cut up into shavings which are soaked in water, mixed with whale oil soap, and then sprayed over the vines.
