Early in the meeting Judge Meldrum was presented with a bouquet as a token of the kindly feeling of the people toward the county court.

Do you believe in SIGNS?

PRODUCERS AND CONSUMERS.

Both Are Interested in a Change in Market Methods.

There is nothing more apparent to an observing man who has looked into the fruit growing business of this Coast and the modes of packing, shipping and selling than the business is not properly adjusted.

Thousands of tons of fruit are wasted annually that consumers would be very glad to get. The grower could make a profit and the carrier get his share and still sell the fruit at reasonable prices.

There is no possible way of preventing glutted markets except by organization among growers and such controlled by a general management for each state or large city market.

Fruits and vegetables are very different from other products. They must be sold when mature. If all growers decide to sell in the same market a glut is the result.
