THE END AT LAST.

Mrs. Harrison Passed Away
Tuesday Morning.

SURROUNDED BY HER FAMILY.

Although Unable to Speak the Sufferer Was Apparently Conscious to the Last.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Another change for the worse in Mrs. Harrison's condition, and a more serious one than any that has yet occurred, set in this morning about 10 o'clock. As the church bells began to ring, the watchers became aware of the approach of one of those sinking spells, which have once or twice previously brought the patient to the verge of dissolution. From this relapse there was no rally as on previous occasions, but the decline of the vital force, perceptibly though gradually, continued throughout the day. The president, who never left her bedside all day, was joined in his sad watch by other members of the family. None ventured outside of the White House doors, either for church or any other purpose. The sufferer lay all the time on her right side too weak even to cough, one of many indications that the end could not be far away. Motionless since the early morning, except for a slight nervous twitching, consequent upon the extreme nervous prostration which in her case has been more pronounced than is customary in tubercular diseases. Meantime, it was apparent to the physicians that the cavity of the pleura was again filling with water, which in time will stop the action of the heart, and that an operation, such as that they performed at Loon Lake to relieve the watery pressure, was utterly out of the question, because of the enfeebled condition of the patient.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Mrs. Harrison is no more. At 1:40 this morning came the end. For the second time in the history of the White House a president's wife has died within its walls. Mrs. Harrison at noon was still conscious. A little before that, the president, leaning over her, asked if she wished for anything. With the old-time smile, that the approach of death only made more tender and trustful, she answered low, but very distinctly, "No, dear." Apparently she was conscious. There was little change during the afternoon, but every chance was for the worse, and the watchers were fearful that death would ensue about sundown.

From 4 o'clock well into the evening, the president and all members of his family remained at Mrs. Harrison's bedside. As the day waned and the sun sank behind the western hills, the anxiety of the watchers became more and more intense. The shadows deepened, the sun sunk to rest, night came, and yet the end was not. Some one had sent to Indianapolis a bulletin announcing Mrs. Harrison's death. The premature report spread rapidly over the country from west to east, and there began to flow upon the wire messages of condolence addressed to the president. Halford promptly authorized a denial, but it did not overtake the original story, and messages continued to arrive in numbers.

Just after 6 o'clock Mrs. Harrison suffered another sinking spell. But the sick woman still had sufficient strength to rally once more.

[Mrs. Harrison was born in Oxford, Ohio, on the 1st of October, 1832. Her name was Caroline Lavinia Scott, and she was the daughter of John W. Scott, who was professor in Miami university at the time of her birth, and afterward became president of the seminary in Oxford. She graduated at the seminary in 1852, the same year that Benjamin Harrison took his degree at the university, and was married to him October 20, 1853. She was devoted to music and painting, and was besides a diligent reader, giving part of her time to literary clubs, of which she was a member of several. Mrs. Harrison was a manager of the orphan asylum in Indianapolis and a member of the Presbyterian church, teaching a class in Sunday school until her removal to Washington. She was a devoted wife and mother, all her affections being centered in her home and family. As mistress of the White House, she was noted for kindness and affability as a hostess, and her sense of the practical led to many changes and improvements in the presidential mansion. The people of the whole country will deeply sympathize with the bereaved family in the distressing affliction that has fallen upon them.]

Getting at the Truth.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—A circular recently published by the manufacturers' National League of the executive committee, of which T. C. Platt is chairman and which is designed to supply the missing data of Commissioner Peck's report, requested business men to furnish statistical information regarding their commercial progress under the McKinley tariff law, and also asked for the percentage of increase in wages in the nine months of 1892, ending September 30, over the corresponding period of 1890 and 1891. The replies in this circular cover all branches of trade in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, and show a varying increase of both wages and business in most instances. The figures obtained have been tabulated and arranged and handed over to the national committee.

Fierce Storms on the Atlantic.

QUEENSTOWN, Oct. 23.—Incoming vessels report terrific weather. Strong easterly winds caused the Cunard steamer Anurania to be several hours overdue. The bark Chieftain, from San Francisco, reports she encountered a fearful gale September 29. She was washed by huge seas until she almost founders. Her sails were blown to shreds, the coverings of the hatches were blown away, and portions of the copper on the port side were torn off, the result of which was an alarming amount of leakage. Her bowsprit and deckhouses were also badly damaged.

Steak Thieves Were Abst.

WASHINGTON, October 23.—Several of the party of Washington guests at the world's fair dedication in Chicago last week, were sufferers at the hands of sneak thieves or burglars. Marquis Imperial, secretary of the Italian legion, lost $55 in cash, a pair of diamond studs, a pearl pin, and the jeweled insignia of several orders with which he has been decorated. One of the ladies lost a valuable pocket-book containing $25 in money and two or three pieces of diamond jewelry.

The Portuguese Elections.

LISBON, Oct. 23.—The general elections were held in Portugal today. Four monarchists and two republicans were elected for Lisbon, and three monarchists and one republican for Oporto. The returns so far indicate that the cabinet will have a large majority. Senor Carvalho, ex-minister of finance, and Senor Benburay, a banker, were elected after a heated contest. Election riots occurred in Dientra and other places, and many persons were injured. The riots had to be suppressed by troops.

Disaster on the Great Northern.

SPOKANE, Wash., Oct. 24.—One of the most appalling accidents in the history of Washington railroads occurred this morning at the point where the Great Northern railroad crosses the Wenatchee river the second time. The bridge over that stream collapsed while a construction train was crossing. Seven men were killed outright, five fatally injured, and six others were so seriously hurt that some of them may die.

Many Prisoners Escaped.

SHERMAN, Tex., Oct. 23.—The sixty federal prisoners in Grayson county are almost in revolt. Two made their escape today, using a rope of blankets to descend from the upper story. One, Tom Moore, is a murderer, and the other, McGill, was condemned for a lesser offense. This makes three deliveries within a week and eleven fugitives at large. Moore was captured today.

Damaged by Frost.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Oct. 23.—Advices were received here today from Zacatecas, Mexico, saying that a killing frost has visited that section, and that the new corn crops are completely destroyed. The calamity, coming at this time, will have the effect of increasing the present suffering, on account of the shortage in the crops, unless relief is obtained from charitable sources.

Great Scarcity of Water.

READING, Pa., Oct. 23.—The extent of inconvenience and suffering caused by the great scarcity of water at points north of here can scarcely be imagined, and it is stated that at some points it is actually necessary to guard the locomotive tanks to prevent the people from carrying off the water. Mountain fires have broken out several places.

A Loaded Barge Capsized.

ASTORIA, Oct. 23.—The large Columbia sunk at the Union Pacific wharf at 3 o'clock this morning with 550 tons of wheat on board, and Captain Marshall Short of the steamer Oklahoma, and a deckhand, August John Peterson, were killed by the accident.

Canadian Appointments Confirmed.

OTTAWA, Oct. 22.—Today's Canada Gazette contains the announcement of the appointment of Hon. T. M. Daly as minister of the interior, and Hon. Edgar Dewdney as lieutenant-governor of British Columbia.

Cesar's famous "Veni, vidi, vici!" came, I saw, I conquered—might be an appropriate motto for Ayer's Sarsaparilla. We charge nothing for the suggestion. This great blood-purifier conquers wherever it comes, and is now absolutely without equal in the world.

HAS PLENTY GUNS

China Talks Real Sassy about Uncle Sam.

WILL RETALIATE ON AMERICANS.

Will Also Levy a Heavy Tax on American Imports so as to Injure this Country.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22.—Wah Kee, the Chinese newspaper published in this city, printed yesterday what purported to be a mail summary of news from China by the last steamer. Among the articles was one published as a supplement to the paper, and believed to be inspired by the Chinese government, and to be in the nature of confidential instructions to the Chinese in the United States. It is suggested that they make, speedily and as emphatically as possible, certain representations at Washington. The first proposition advanced is that every Chinaman in this country is compelled by the Geary law, to register within a year, with the alternative of going to jail and being expelled from the United States. Concerning this proposition the article, as translated, reads as follows:

"China has plenty of wealth, plenty of guns and big ships of war of modern construction, and plenty of soldiers. China is not afraid of the United States and can cope with her in war, but China does not want to fight with the United States for there are so many other means of retaliation."

It goes on to state that the people of the United States were nervous after the New Orleans affair, when it was learned that Italy might send war ships to these shores to demand satisfaction for the slaughter of her citizens, and that the United States began to hastily construct battleships and guns. China, it says, has both these, but the United States is not ready. If the Chinese registration act is persisted in China will insist that Americans resident in China shall register and wear tags, on a penalty of imprisonment and expulsion. China will also impose a heavy tax on American imports, particularly flour and cotton.

Another Revolution Expected.

PANAMA, Oct. 22.—Advices from Jamaica tell of a grand Cuban revolutionary parade and festival Oct. 10, when definite constitutional and party flags were announced and formally adopted by the Jamaica branch of the revolutionary party. Delegate Marti from Cuba said that soon a strong revolt would break
