Rand Stricklin's Arm Broken.

Dr. O. W. Yeargain was called to Highland on Saturday to attend Rand Stricklin who had been kicked by a horse. He found the bones of the elbow broken in several places in what is known as a multiple fracture. The bones were set as well as could be and on Tuesday Mr. Stricklin was brought to town. On account of the complex nature of the fracture he is likely to be troubled with a stiff arm. The accident occurred while Mr. Stricklin was helping to break a horse to the saddle. He was leading the animal when it turned and forcing him into a corner against the fence kicked on the elbow.

HENDERSON HANGS.

So Says the Jury Composed of Twelve True Men.

BACON AND GARDNER CONVICTED.

The Henderson Trial for the Murder of Cy. Suter—Sentences to be Passed on Saturday.

Not since the trials of Kistmacher eight years ago has as much interest centered about a trial in Clackamas county as was evinced in the trial of Wm. Henderson for the murder of Cy. Suter. The trial was a brief one, there being but little contradictory evidence. After the witnesses had testified there were no long questions of law to be argued by counsel, so that altogether the trial consumed but one day, the forenoon of which was taken up in securing a jury. At 8:30 p. m. the case was given to the jury and two hours later Judge McBride was sent for to hear the verdict, and at four minutes past eleven the verdict, "Guilty as charged," was read to the prisoner.

REVIEW OF THE TESTIMONY.

On the 18th day of last September a party was in Susbauer's saloon in Canby playing cards, among these being Wm. Henderson, the defendant, and Cy Suter, the murdered man. A dispute arose relative to the game, and Henderson charged that Suter cheated. The game was broken up in angry disputation. Friends tried to smooth over the trouble, but for a time without success. Finally Suter seemed to conclude that there had been trouble enough, and walking over to Henderson he said: "No, Billy, we won't have any trouble about this." A moment later and he was writhing in agony from a mortal wound, Henderson having drawn a knife from his sleeve which he plunged into Suter's bowels, cutting a gash out of which the intestines protruded. Suter attempted to strike him with a chair but was prevented by Dimick the bartender. At the same instant Henderson made another pass at Suter's back but failed to reach it. Henderson then ran out of the saloon, went to Dr. Chas. Knight's office and told him that a man was in the saloon badly cut. He then took to the woods in which he probably wandered for about ten days when he went to Portland where he was at once recognized and arrested. Since then he has lain in the county jail.

At the opening of the trial Henry McGinn moved for a continuance which motion was denied by the court.

JURY AND WITNESSES.

The jury consisted of the following well known citizens: Enoch Midlam, John Daly, W. H. Savage, Marion Johnson, C. A. Holmstrom, J. A. Jones, John Forsythe, John D. Rusk, Charles Hettman, S. F. Marks, Thos. Daniels and Wm. Ranch.

The following witnesses were subpoenaed: For the state, W. E. Carlil, J. L. Thomas, A. B. Dimick, J. L. Shank, J. L. Ball, E. N. Foster, J. N. Tracey. For the defense, H. Kellogg, James Wright, H. Miller, Lew Shanks, Ray Fisher, C. R. Noblitt and Stingley. While the opportunity for lengthy pleas was wanting, there being no question of law involved and but little contradictory evidence, the counsel on both sides made the most of the case.

Prosecuting Attorney W. N. Barrett opened for the state with a clear and concise statement of the case which he presented forcibly and efficiently. Hon. Henry McGinn, one of the best criminal lawyers in the state, alone conducted the defense. His plea was a strong presentation of the few facts favorable to his client and was delivered with forcible effect. Many in the packed court room believed after his speech that the verdict would not be murder in the first degree. Geo. C. Brownell had been engaged by the Suter family to aid the prosecution, and he made the closing speech, which was a careful review of the testimony and a fluent appeal for justice and the maintenance of the law.

Judge McBride in his charge to the jury left the question of evidence entirely to the jury, but instructed them plainly as to their duty under that evidence after they had considered it. At 8:30 the jury retired to weigh the evidence which two hours later resulted in a verdict condemning the prisoner's neck to the halter.

At the conclusion of the trial Judge McBride went home, but was sent for at 10:30 and returned to the court room. Henderson was sent for and came pale and agitated into the room where he joined his mother who had been pacing the floor. The roll was called while Henderson visibly paling sat in his chair with trembling lip and hand. Being told to stand he promptly rose and listened to the verdict, "We, the jury, find the prisoner guilty as charged." At these words Henderson turned white as a sheet and sank into his chair. Other than this neither he nor his mother gave any visible sign of the effect of the verdict. For a moment all was silent in the court room, then a subdued murmur of comment arose, but this was checked when Henry McGinn asked to have the jury polled. This was done without changing the verdict. He then asked for time to file a bill of exceptions and to move for a new trial, which was granted by the court and Saturday morning set for time of sentence.

HENDERSON IN JAIL.

After a brief conference with his attorney, Henderson separated from his mother and was taken to his cell where he spent a quiet but almost sleepless night. W. T. Whitlock and Peter Nelson were on watch all night by order of the court, but to them he would not talk except to say he expected to get a new trial.

This is the first conviction of murder in the first degree that has ever been had in Clackamas county.

A WITNESS IN JAIL.

James Wright, a witness in the Henderson case, came on the stand drunk and was promptly sentenced by Judge McBride to 20 days in jail for contempt of court. He will enjoy Thanksgiving behind the bars with ample time for meditation and sobering up.

Notwithstanding the fact that the circuit court adjourned last Thursday evening and did not re-convene till Monday morning, the week closing Wednesday evening has witnessed important trials.

Sunday evening Judge McBride went to Salem to exchange benches with Judge Geo. H. Burnett of the Third district as each had several cases docketed in which he had been interested before going on the bench. Judge Burnett came down from Salem Monday morning and remained till Tuesday night. As Gardner and Bacon were convicted under him he will return to pass sentence on Saturday. Judge McBride was in his accustomed place on Wednesday morning when court convened and immediately took up the Henderson trial.

BACON AND GARDNER CONVICTED.

On Monday morning Judge Burnett called the case of the State vs. Bert Bacon. The trial lasted during the day, the jury retiring at evening. After being out several hours they returned a sealed verdict, which proved upon opening to be "conviction of an attempt to commit rape." Tuesday morning the trial of Gardner began. The testimony was more definite in regard to his connection with the crime and he was convicted of rape.

REVIEW OF THE CRIME.

On the 10th day of last March about nine o'clock in the evening while Mrs. Newman was at church Bert Bacon and Bob Gardner entered her house and the room where Myrtle and Berta Newman and the baby were sleeping. Taking the baby from the arms of Myrtle they threw a chloroformed handkerchief over her head. The crying of the baby awoke Berta and she started to rush from the room. They threatened her with death if she left or cried out and made her return to bed where she buried herself in the clothes. All this time the chloroform had been kept over Myrtle's face and she was pretty well under its influence. While in this condition they attempted to carry out their foul purpose and the evidence went to show the success at least to a partial extent of their dastardly purpose.

The evidence was more conclusive in showing the presence of Gardner than of Bacon, and the jury in the latter case compromised in their verdict by declaring Bacon guilty of an attempt to commit rape. The penalty for this is the penitentiary for not less than one nor more than ten years. Gardner in being convicted of rape, will be sentenced to not less than three years and not more than twenty years in the penitentiary. They will be sentenced Saturday morning at 8:30.

Before Gardner's trial his attorneys and the family tried to get him to plead guilty but he would not.

W. N. Barrett and C. H. Dye appeared for the state. In the suit against Bacon C. D. Latourette and G. C. Brownell were retained by the defense and Gardner had C. D. Latourette and W. H. Walker.

A Fiend Captured.

Sheriff Smith, of Astoria, returned from Port Townsend last week with Israel Gregg, the fiend who outraged a young girl at Mishawaka about six weeks ago. The authorities at Port Townsend recognized him from his description and took him in tow till Sheriff Smith could get the necessary papers to take him.
