AN OBJECT LESSON.

The collapse of the populist attempt to secure control of the Kansas legislature by revolutionary means may be said to furnish a striking and profitable illustration of the fact that no political party can prosper in this country by antagonizing the laws that are made for the safety and advantage of all classes. No experience of that kind has ever yet succeeded. According to the St. Louis Globe Democrat it is possible, of course, for such a movement to gain considerable headway, and to produce more or less disturbance in affairs of government, but it is certain to be defeated in the end. As a rule, in fact, it defeats itself. It is illogical, and when it comes in contact with logical force and appliances, its strength dwindles and it can go no further. The Kansas populists were in the wrong to begin with, and there was no succeeding chance for them to put themselves in the right except by the process of surrender. Their triumph would have been a victory over the established system of society. They assumed the authority to upset fundamental conditions for the purpose of accomplishing a superficial object, and they failed because the undertaking could not be defended upon any ground of legality or propriety. The vital question in the case was ignored by them until their folly reached its climax, and then there was nothing left for them but humiliating submission to the laws.

It is to be hoped that this experience will have the good effect of convincing the populists, not only in Kansas, but throughout the whole country, that their party can not afford to repudiate the highest obligations of citizenship in its efforts to gain political advantage. If it is to endure and grow, it must regulate its operations in such a way as not to menace public order and safety. The law-abiding sentiment is the predominant one in the United States, and anything that looks like anarchy is sure to encounter fatal opposition. Men have the right to believe what they please, but they have no right to enforce their belief by intimidation and violence. They must confine themselves to peaceful and legal expedients in their plans of conquest. It will not do for them to organize a strike in politics, and snip their fingers at the laws and the courts. If their doctrines are sound and wholesome they should be willing to rely upon the ordinary instrumentalities for making converts to a cause and bringing about its success. They cannot expect to gain sympathy and assistance by resorting to arbitrary measures. It is permissible for them to change the laws if they can properly get the power to do so, but they must not become law-breakers. Under no circumstances can they be allowed to substitute their private opinions and preferences for existing legal provisions and requirements, and the sooner they accept this fact and make it a part of their political philosophy the better it will be for them in every respect.

GROVER CLEVELAND is again president of the United States, and with the advent of a new congress on the 4th of March, at which time several new senators were seated, the government in all its branches passed into the hands of the president's party, which now becomes responsible not only for the administration of affairs, but for the enactment of such measures as are in accord with the party's principles. Mr. Cleveland is expected by his followers to give an administration thoroughly democratic and fully in accord with their wishes, but even the best informed do not pretend to say that that will be, except that "it will be a change." Neither does the inaugural throw any very clear light upon this question. He touched in a kind of fashion upon three prominent issues in national politics. These are the currency, the tariff and the restraint of commercial combinations formed for the purpose of limiting production and fixing prices. In respect to currency he evidently believes in a dollar of uniform value, but the messages afford no clew to any plan he may have in mind to maintain gold and silver at the same money value. When however a president announces his purpose to maintain two kinds of money having an unequal commercial value in equality he in effect declares for the dollar of the highest value. In respect to the tariff nothing is said that would imply his belief in a tariff for revenue only. He wants tariff reform, and considers the democratic party pledged in the most positive terms to that doctrine. But his message throws no light upon the kind or degree of tariff reform he wants. In respect to the employment of the legal machinery of the government to break up combinations to limit production and establish prices he is explicit. These combinations he regards as conspiracies.

Whether he will be able to command a policy that will break them up is very doubtful, as any effort in this direction will meet as much opposition in the democratic as in the republican ranks.

REPUBLICANS were interested spectators at the contest in Salem last Saturday between the governor and the celebrating democrats. While it was not their fight they were generally glad to see the boys that wanted to celebrate get away with the governor and have their fun. The contest was provoked by the governor when he refused to permit the cannon to be used to fire salutes in honor of President Cleveland's inaugural. Such an order was uncalculated for and the contest upon the part of the governor, undignified and unbecoming to the chief execution of the state of Oregon.

Listen to this from the fastnesses of Coos county, being an item from last week's Marshfield Mail: "There were 25 passengers on the train Tuesday between Coquille City and this place." Allow us to congratulate. Some day the representatives from Coos county to the legislature, asylum and penitentiary will be able to get to Oregon without going around by Alaska.—Statesman.

Up! On what does the Statesman predicate this prophecy?

With the breaking out of small pox at Clackamas, this city should be alert to take due precautions in time to prevent any danger of its visiting this city. The people of Clackamas will probably be cautious or suspend communication with contiguous territory till all danger is past, but if they do not, the city authorities should prevent its obtaining a foothold here if it can be done.

The editor of the Reform Journal of Portland, while taking a retrospective view of his own career last week, wrote: "Whenever a man can't get anything else to do he starts a reform paper and works and howls, and his later days are more tiresome than the first." Stick to it, brother; we quite agree with you.

GROVER CLEVELAND is again president of the United States and is expected to give to the unwashed administration of public affairs after their own hearts, which to the politician means the offices.

BAKING POWDER.

Recent Authorities About It.

The Scientific American, the Sanitary Era, the Indianapolis Board of Health, the Wisconsin Food Commissioner, and many other recent investigators, have stigmatized the use of alum or ammonia in a baking powder as injurious, and have published from time to time lists, calling the attention of the public to brands containing these drugs.

It would seem as if some makers ought to have the honesty or good sense to make a pure powder, foreseeing that although a smaller percentage of profit is made, it must eventually result in increased sales, and consequently greater gain, and yet, after looking over the records, we are forced to the conclusion that "Dr. Price's cream" is pretty much the only brand that can be relied upon unless one wants to be drugged daily.

Some of the powders which are the most widely puffed and heralded with "government chemists" (?) and other more or less spurious testimonials are found to be the very ones which contain either one or the other of these impurities.

Some fancy the charms of the lily-white maid,

Of ethereal form and languishing eye,
Who faints in the sunshine and droops
in the shade,
And is always "just ready to die."

But give me the girl of the sunshine face,

The blood in whose veins courses
healthy and free,

With the vigor of youth in her movements
of grace,

Oh, that is the maiden for me!

She is the girl to "tie to" for life. The sickly, complaining woman may be an object of love and pity, but she ceases to be a "thing of beauty" worn down by female weakness and disorders, subject to hysteria and a martyr to bearing-down pains. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a sure cure for these distressing complaints, and will transform the feeble, drooping sufferer into a healthy, happy, blooming woman. Guaranteed to give satisfaction in every case, or money paid for it refunded.

A Million of Friends.

A friend in need is a friend indeed, and not less than one million people find just such a friend in Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds.—If you have never used this Great Cough Medicine, one trial will convince you that it has wonderful curative powers in all diseases of Throat, Chest and Lung. Each bottle is guaranteed to do all that is claimed or money will be refunded. Trial bottles free at Geo A Harding's drug store. Large bottles 50c. and $1.00.

PRECIPITATION, 1892.

Comparative Tables Showing Rainfall for 1892, and in the Fifties.

The following record of precipitation was made by the Willamette Pulp and Paper Company on the west side of the Willamette river at the locks. Data from Portland is given for comparison.

1892.	Oregon City, Or.	Portland, Or.
January	4.70	4.70
February	2.08	2.48
March	3.14	2.82
April	5.42	4.82
May	2.20	1.57
June	1.53	1.41
July	0.87	0.70
August	0.50	0.17
September	2.13	1.03
October	2.03	2.10
November	6.23	4.34
December	14.38	9.60
Annual	54.53	33.58

NOTE.—The precipitation is recorded in inches and hundredths, and includes rain, melted snow, sleet and hail.

†Includes 29 inches of snow fall.

‡Includes 10 inches of snow fall.

The precipitation at Portland for 1892 was 33.58 inches or 32 per cent below the normal amount as deduced from 20 years' record. Considering that the same percentage of decrease occurred at Oregon City, it would make the annual precipitation at Oregon City to be 50.80 inches. The annual at Portland is 46.34 inches.

In the 50's Rev. G. H. Atkinson made meteorological observations at Oregon City, and the following is a copy of his precipitation record:

Months.	1851.	1857.	1868.	1859.	Av'ge.
January	13.63	4.05	6.12	7.93	5.43

Annual	31.26	43.00	47.61

The foregoing was furnished us by the Oregon State Weather Bureau. This Bureau is doing a valuable work for Oregon by its collection of data relating to the climate and crops of the state. The statistics given above will tend to settle many an argument relative to our rainfall. If any of our readers have any climatic data relative to the climate of their section, we should be pleased to have a copy of it for our use and for the office files of the Weather Bureau.

Crescent Debating Society.

The meeting of the Crescent Literary and debating society held at Jones' Mill on Friday evening was well attended, many persons had to stand up during the evening, not being able to find seats.

The literary program was well rendered and heartily enjoyed by those present. Little Lena and Master Denver Nemyre from Oregon City sang the song "Talk is Cheap but That Won't Keep a Wife and Little Baby" so well as to be called back the second time. The Negro song by Phillis Tatro sent the audience off into such fits of laughter that it was some time before quiet could be restored.

The dialogue "The Yankee Aunt" was a decided success, as well as the instrumental solo by Phillip Tatro, and recitations by Miss Eliza Barrett and G. R. H. Miller.

In the debate the subject, Resolved, That the world's fair should be open Sundays was decided in favor of the negative.

Mothers' Recommendation.

We are acquainted with many mothers in Centerville who would not be without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house for a good many times its cost, and are recommending it every day. From personal experience we can say that it has broken up bad colds for children.—Centerville, South Dakota, Citizen. 50 cent bottles for sale by Geo. A. Harding, druggist.

The Rush Has Begun.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Crowds of distinguished visitors began to storm the White House early today and Mr. Cleveland was obliged to forego his work and listen to words of congratulations from the governors of states, senators, representatives and a host of others. Soon after 9 o'clock brass bands began to play in the vicinity of the White House, and, stepping out to their music, came political organizations.

Notice to Ladies.

Will the ladies of Oregon City please take notice that I am prepared to go out sewing. My terms are one dollar per day. Anyone wishing to employ me can call at the Evangelical parsonage. AMELIA ERNST, 41

They promise to pay you $500 if they can't cure your catarrh, no matter how bad the case is. It isn't mere talk—it is business. You can satisfy yourself of it, if you're interested. And you ought to be, if you have catarrh. It's faith in their medicine that's behind the offer. It has cured thousands of the worst cases, where everything else failed. You can be cured, too. If you can't, you get the money. They're willing to take the risk—you ought to be glad to take the medicine. It's the cheapest medicine you can buy, because it's guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned. You only pay for the good you get. Can you ask more? That's the peculiar plan all Dr. Pierce's medicines are sold on.

Friend of Woman.

The very remarkable and certain relief given woman by Moore's Revealed Remedy, for it has been a grand thing for me, for it has cured me of headaches, from which I have suffered whenever I became chilled, for the last fifteen years. I have suffered perfect torture for twenty-four hours at a time, sometimes reaching for three hours without any rest and unable to get help from any of the numerous remedies tried. Now I am free from this suffering, for at the first symptom of "Moore's Revealed," and that is the end of it. It has also cured me of constipation. My husband says it has saved his life, and he would not be without it. We are both so happy over it we cannot say enough in its favor, and advise all our friends to use it.
