HUMANE HORSESHOES.

A German Idea That Is Worthy of Investigation. Americans will soon take a lesson in making horseshoes from the Germans. It will be a startling lesson, too, for the blacksmiths in the Rhine country have discovered a decided innovation in hoofwear. Instead of the horseshoe being simply a curved piece of iron the Germans now make part of the shoe of rope. The accompanying picture was drawn from a model of the new shoes sent to Volney W. Foster, of Evanston, Ills., from Germany, and is a good representation of the invention. The shoe is made of malleable iron, and on the botcom is a deep groove running from end to end.

In this groove tightly fits the new feature of the shoe-a piece of tarred rope. The rope is about threequarters of an inch thick. The strands are firmly twisted, and the application of tar makes the bit of hawser tough and durable, yet soft enough to afford the horse a relief unknown with the ordinary SHOWING THE GROOVE. shoe. The shoe is fastened to the hoof by four nails driven through the rope on each side. The tarred rope resting on the pavement gives the horse a firm grip on the ground, and as it makes the shoe much lighter and infinifely more comfortable than the solid iron its advantage is readily apparent. The new invention increases the horse's pulling power and saves its hoof a deal of the hard ware which cannot but result from the iron shoes pounding the rough pavements.

Several thousands of the rope shoes are in use now in Berlin, and the results are eminently satisfactory. The horses soon find that they do not have to throw their front feet sprawlingly forward to obtain a pulling hold on the pavement, They can place their hoofs squarely down, the rope bottom of the shoe clings well to the ground, and they thereby get a stronger purchase on the load behind them. The new shoe is in reality a shoe and stocking combined-the stocking being worn outside instead of inside the shoe. The rope also lessens the benumbing shock caused by the sharp clang of iron against stone to a great degree, and enables the horse to perform its work with much less fatigue.

The rope, it is said, will stand four weeks of hard usage, when it can be easily replaced at a trifling expense. Its use does away with the calks which are now made at the ends of horseshoes to prevent the horse from slipping. It may be that in this country during the season of

snowy, slippery streets some such contrivance as calks would be necessary to the new shoe, but they could be placed on the German invention as easily as on the ordinary shoe. The idea is clearly humanitarian, inasmuch as it does so much toward diminishing the discomfort necessarily suffered by animals wearing the iron shoes, and as it lightens the labor of pulling the invention will undoubtedly soon be adopted by thoughtful horsemen on this side of the water. American blacksmiths, too, can doubtless improve the German idea by making the shoes lighter and more workmanlike,-Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

A Chicago Market Report.

Seldom has so much trashy stock been seen on the market. Good to prime steers were scarce and such sold at steady to a shade higher prices, while the yards could not be cleared of the common kinds at ten cents per 100 pounds decline.

To look through the pens at the Chicago yards almost any day one would be forced to the conclusion that western farmers had ceased using well bred bulls altogether. That there is a woeful lack of quality in current receipts is everywhere conceded. Prices are not such as to induce farmers to carry many cattle, and the approach of cold weather witnesses free marketing of all sorts of "tail ends" to clear the farms of surplus stock before the winter is upon us.

A snowstorm west of the river admonishes that either shelter or feed (or both) may soon become a necessity. Hence the rush of the culls to the shambles. If it will not pay to feed good cattle it certainly is the part of wisdom to get rid of the old cows, scalawag steers and razorbacked heifers. "Fewer cattle and better" is the order of the day, The long legged, hard hided sort are not the kind to meet existing market condi-

What we need is a larger number of short legged, early maturing bulls in Fuller. service and more high pressure feeding of well bred calves on the farm where they are dropped. Young steers of the "pony" pattern, quickly ripened, will give some sort of return for their keep. Try it.

About Gray Horses.

The Breeder and Sportsman says that on the trotting turf the gray horses have been the stanchest and sturdiest of race horses. "Superintendents of street car stables will tell you that gray horses will do more work and last longe, than those of any other color. Whether worked to street cars or express wagons, the family carriage or the plow, they have been distinguished for beauty and

GOOD ROADS FOR ILLINOIS.

Governor Aligeld Advocates a System of Good Highways for the Entire State. In a recent interview on the question of good country roads Governor Altgeld expressed himself as follows:

"I regard the question of good roads as one of the most important that now confronts the people of Illinois. The state should take hold of it with resolution and upon a broad gauge plan. There is no adequate reason for the impassability of many of our common roads. The west has built great cities, railroads and workshops. Illinois has been in the front rank in all of these improvements. There is no excuse for her being behind in her road policy, particularly as her agriculture is the basis of her prosperity. It seems almost incredible that we have made so little progress in the business of roadmaking. This question should interest the farmer more than any one else, for the reason that he suffers much actual financial loss from bad roads.

'As a result of impassable roads the farmer is often prevented from marketing his grain when and where it would bring the best prices. In other words, he must sell when he can get to a selling place and not when the best price is obtainable. The railroads also are deeply interested in securing good roads. As things are now the railroads are swamped with grain for shipment when good roads enable the farmer to deliver his grain to them, but let the weather make the roads bad, and the farmer, being unable to haul over them, ceases to bring his grain to market, and the railroad and its cars are idle. For this reason alone many railroads are compelled to have an unnecessarily large number of cars. Bad roads congest the grain business into the periodic spells of good roads, and this necessitates higher charges for the service of transportation when it is rendered. In addition to all this teaming over bad roads is hard on the horses, hard on the wagon and hard on the farmer himself."

What have you to say concerning the expense of building good roads throughout the state?"

That is a most difficult problem to deal with. However, it may be set down as a principle of right and justice that those who are benefited by the good roads should pay for them. But a good road policy would be of general benefit to the entire state. It might be, therefore, that some of the expense should be borne by the state at large. In addition each county might have a local tax for the same purpose. Townships likewise should have a tax. But it would be unfair to a township to compel it to build a lot of bridges over a stream mainly for the benefit of people all over the county. It would be for such a purpose that a general county tax might be levied. In addition to this, property, forms espe cially, that are conspicuously benefited. should be made to pay a special assess-ment. All of this, however, is very crude. I only suggest it as perhaps a feasible plan. I would not like to be considered as having reached final conclusions on this phase of the matter."

"Would a good road policy upon the part of the state greatly increase state taxes?

'That would depend upon the policy adopted. If we were to undertake to build good roads all over Illinois at once the cost would be great and would necessarily heavily increase taxation. But such a policy could not be agreed upon or maintained. I apprehend that with a careful and economical administration of the state affairs general taxation need be but little increased, if increased at all, in order to begin a road policy. And it should be considered that money expended in permanent improvements, such as good roads, is not like money thrown away upon payrolls of useless employ-

"Have you given the matter of roadbuilding any consideration?"

"Only in a general way. I have kept track of the question as it has been treated in the newspapers and magazines and have been much interested by it. It appears that a good roadbed and roadway about fourteen feet wide-that is to say, double track-can be built for about fifty cents a linear foot. This would be about $2,500 a mile. Where a general system of roadmaking would be gone into, however, I am inclined to believe that this expense might be greatly reduced. But, even at fifty cents a foot, two roads spanning an ordinary county at right angles could be constructed for less than $200,000. The interest on such an investment would be about $10,000 a A properly constructed road would not require much expenditure for repairs for a long time."-Chicago News-

A Christmas Killing.

A young married man living on a fashionable street who wanted to make himself of some use in domestic affairs bought a live turkey for the family Christmas dinner and undertook to chop off its head. As the weather was cold, instead of killing the turkey out of deors he took it into the kitchen and with block and hatchet heroically decapitated it. The whole household had been summoned to witness his skill as an executioner. No sooner was its head off than the decapitated turkey gave chase to members of the family. Out of the kitchen into the dining room, and up on the table, and into the sitting room, and into the parlor, and onto the furniture and against the curtains, and out into the hall, where, in an exhausting effort to climb the front stairs, it yielded to the inevitable, turned over on its back, gave a few last protesting kicks, and died. But there wasn't a drop of blood left in that bird's body. It had bled copiously, and had literally painted the lower part of the house and a good portion of the furniture and the carpets and the curtains and the wall married man has a long life before him and a lovable wife to share it with him, but she has now this terror hanging over "John," she said, "if ever you again do such a thing as to cut off the head of a live turkey in the house I'll-I'll look for a more sensible man when I marry again."-Saratoga Cor. New York Sun. A Fine Collection of Butterflies.

The California Academy of Sciences contains one of the finest collections of butterflies and moths in the world-certainly the finest on the Pacific coast. This collection was made by Dr. H. H. Behr, who began the work in 1844 and who has been steadily adding to it ever since. Quite recently Dr. Behr presented to the academy, which means the people of California, the accumulated riches resulting from his labors of nearly half a century

Previous to 1844, Dr. Behr made another collection which he presented to the Duke of Saxony-Anhalt. It is now in the museum at Kothen, Saxony. The oldest butterfly in Dr. Behr's later collection was caught in Batavia in 1844. Since this date the enthusiastic scientist has pursued his researches in Europe the East Indian archipelago, Manila. the Sunda islands, the Cape of Good Hope, the Isthmus of Panama, Brazil. Mexico, Australia and the United States. By exchanging with other collectors he has obtained specimens from all parts of the known world. Some of the finest and rarest are from the Amoor river. The collection includes nearly 20,000 specimens, of which about 6,000 are still unclassified. The number of determined species is 4,901. Of these 1,200 are Californian. -San Francisco Chronicle.

A New Postoffice Experiment. Let no man say that St. Martin's le Grand has not taken enterprise to its bosom. That much criticised department has just begun to experiment with a sort of automatic postoffice, and the front of the Royal exchange has been selected as a likely place for it. It is a further extension of the great principle of the penny in the slot. You drop in your penny, and in return you get an envelope and a correspondence card. At the same time a bell is automatically rung in the nearest postoffice.

You write your urgent message on the card, put it into the envelope with the fee, at the rate of threepence a mile, and drop the communication into the letter box. A messenger arrives in a few minutes and takes the letter to its destination by omnibus, railway or cab. This is a capital idea, likely to be especially useful in so busy a locality as the Royal exchange. But if it succeeds there, it ought to be, and no doubt will be, extended to other places in London.-St. James Gazette.

The World's Fair in England. A foretaste of the Chicago exhibition was given this week by Mr. Dredge, at the Society of Arts, when this gentleman gave a lecture, to the accompaniment of the magic lantern on the exhibition as it is and will be. So many romancing tales of the greatness of the show have been exported from America that a feeling of doubt as to where fact left off and fancy began has been in many minds. Mr Dredge's lecture and Mr. Dredge's magic lantern slides, however, put it beyond a doubt that the show will be almost as big as it is painted. The buildings themselves appear to be even more substantial than all accounts have made them. and there is no doubt that the exhibition will really be "the greatest show on earth."-London Court Journal

Sunday Opening of the Fair.

"How do you stand on the question of opening the World's fair on Sunday?" said Representative Butler, of Iowa, to Representative Crain, of Texas, on the floor of the house yesterday.

"I am in favor of it, so as to allow the workingmen an opportunity to see the exposition," was Mr Crain's reply. Well," said Mr. Butler, "I have been making a canvass of the house on the subject and you are the 275th man I have asked. So far the vote stands 3 majority for Sunday opening."-Wash-
