THE BEAVER CREEK ROAD.

Some of the energetic people of the county who are anxious to have the country developed and recognize the great advantage of good roads to any section of the county have been trying to arouse a general interest in the matter but they report an adverse sentiment in localities where it ought not to exist. They state that parties who are owners of large farms which will be greatly benefited by the building of the proposed roads are refusing to contribute a cent although they are abundantly able. It ought to be a matter of local pride with all good citizens to take hold of the road matter and to secure good roads and those, whose places are to be directly benefited by reason of the immediate contiguity of the road which is so located that it can be utilized at all times in conveying produce to market, should be the first to take hold of the matter and not permit those who do not own the property along the road to move in the matter.

There has lately been a move on foot to secure the improvement of the Highland road for a couple of miles out beyond the Maple Lane bridge and there has been considerable interest on the part of some who will not be benefited by an increased valuation of their lands, but others have thus far not shown that interest which they ought by reason of their property relation to the road. Good roads add greatly to the selling value of lands in their vicinity and they add to their material value to the resident who does not care to sell, but who has occasion to travel either with produce which he is taking to market or in going to and from town. When therefore, as in this state and county there is no general law known to be available by which roads can be permanently improved by the county and private subscription has to be employed to secure it, those who live along the road which is sought to be improved should seize the opportunity offered by the general interest aroused and have the work done as it can be done at such a time at less expense to them than at any other time. It pays to strike while the iron is hot.

FOR WILDCAT MONEY.

The New York Press which represents a safe and conservative element, says relative to the repeal of the state bank tax:

Ex-Speaker Crisp, after prolonging hesitancy, has broken the barriers of the silence which has shrouded his candidacy for reelection long enough to say that while he favors the repeal of the Silver Purchasing act, he is also strongly in favor of the repeal of the 10 per cent. tax on currency issued by state banks. Representative Wilson who is the declared choice of the Administration for the Ways and Means Chairmanship, has also declared that he favors removing the prohibitive tax on state bank issues. Representative McMillin, who has been selected by the administration as the parliamentary leader on the floor of the House, has expressed himself in a similar manner.

These utterances by men who are to be so prominent and powerful in the organization and proceedings of the Fifty-third Congress will not reassure the country. The promise of wild cat currency, the stability of which must depend upon the State Legislatures, will be a disastrous substitute for silver certificates issued against a real, even if depreciated, metal. A silver dollar and a silver certificate are worth at least the market value of the bullion each contains or represents, and their legal tender quality has thus far made them acceptable for their face value in domestic transactions.

State bank currency would represent whatever the vagaries of local statutes might define. Its real value would depend upon the humors of sentiment in Southern and Western states and upon the strength of the cry for "cheap money." Not only for the repeal of the Sherman act, but for protection from wildcat money, the country must look to the republican minority in congress.

The work being done by the Portland General Electric Company on the west side of the river is all of the most substantial character, which shows conclusively that it is intended to stay and that it is meant for use and not for show. Any resident of Oregon City who will take the pains to make a careful examination of the work being done by the company must be convinced that the future of the city at the Falls of the Willamette is assured. Cities of mushroom and paper growth are not built as this place, and, while to many of us the growth may seem slow it is well to bear in mind that much preparation is necessary for establishing large enterprises, and the present period is one of preparation only, which is certain to be followed by one of rapid and prosperous growth. All this takes time but all indications point to an era of rapid growth which will come almost unawares upon the unthinking public who have not considered the plans from the beginning. But not so to the men who have for a long time been laying the wires which will ultimately result in the building up of the greatest manufacturing city on the coast. That the work is being well done shows for itself. That the plans will not miscarry is evidenced by the success of those of the past.

There should be a good attendance of farmers and fruit growers at the meeting of the county horticultural society on Saturday, as with the location of Clackamas county and the advantages which it possesses for fruit growing it is of the utmost importance that that industry be developed to the fullest possible extent; and the way to secure the best results in that line is by concerted effort. This can best be done through the organization of the fruit growers themselves who should be aided in every possible way by all who have the best good of the county at heart. There is no better way at a comparatively small outlay to increase the market value of land than by securing a large acreage of profitable fruits. Combine this with a manufacturing district such as is rapidly being built up here at the Falls of the Willamette, and we have at hand the forces calculated to make Clackamas county the richest and best county in the state. The hearty support of the society which meets on Saturday of this week will help very materially in bringing about that condition, and the sooner it can be done the better it will be for all parties concerned, and none should be found hanging back to permit others to do the work which should be done by all.

A cyclone on Sunday at Chicago and a holocaust on Monday, resulting in the death of a couple of score of victims, are among the casualties of the past week. The latter is one of the results of the cheap building incident to the great show, and shows that too much care cannot be exercised by those who have enterprises like the World's Fair to look after.

New York merchants are, some of them, inserting gold payment clauses in their contracts. This has been the practice with all parties loaning money in the West, and if this silver agitation continues the parties who control the money of the country are likely to adopt such a provision in all money transactions.

On account of short crops the German Minister of Trade will propose a suspension of duties on breadstuffs. That means an added demand for American cereals, as Germany's European neighbors have little if anything to spare.

TAXING MORTGAGES.

To WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:—There is an effort being made, in a very curious manner, to collect all delinquent taxes on mortgages. Now as this is a very irregular thing to do, and all these who have not paid will be taken in detail, one by one, and will have no chance to defend themselves except at great cost, it is advisable for all so situated to meet and arrange for a test case of this matter. The expense would be very small to each. All who are willing to enter into an arrangement of this kind will please send their names to Benjamin Jagger, P. O. box 139, Oregon City, before July 18, 1893, who will notify them through the papers when and where to meet.

The property of B. Jagger has already been attached in a very irregular manner by a lawyer into whose hands the county court has put this matter, and the methods which he employs are very reprehensible.

CHICAGO'S BIG FIRE

A Building Burns at the White City and Many Men Perish.

A HEAVY CYCLONE SWEEPS IOWA.

Great Loss of Life and Property—Damage Done in One Minute.

CHICAGO, July 10.—The fear that has existed for months in the minds of the citizens of Chicago found realization today in the frightful holocaust at the World's Fair, that claimed nearly two score of victims and for a time threatened destruction of the entire white city. The disaster was all the more dreadful because of its sudden transformation from innocent flames into a death-dealing catastrophe.

The structure that burned was the cold storage warehouse, one of the smallest buildings of the fair but not belonging to the exposition, being used for an exhibit of the Hercules Iron works, and where their ice and refrigerating machines were manufactured. The building contained a skating rink, three 120-ton ice-machines, some forty barrels of linseed oil which added fuel to the flames, and in it there was stored large quantities of meat, fruit, etc. That the fire was not communicated to the other World's Fair buildings is due to favorable winds.

The scene of horror was witnessed by many thousands of people who flocked to the locality when the alarm was sounded, and strong men wept and women fainted as one life after another was snuffed out within full view of the multitude, but beyond the reach of human aid.

The fire was not generally observed until about 1:15 P. M. and within thirty minutes the great loss of life occurred. At the first signal the firemen rushed up the huge shaft surrounding the smoke stack and when at the summit began preparations to fight the flames, which first appeared at this point. Before the hose could be coupled a cry of horror from the crowd below caused the firemen to look down, for the whole shaft below was encircled with flames. The men stood stolidly for a moment in full realization of their danger. Then one grasped the rope which had been lowered for the purpose of raising the hose, and, half sliding, half falling, reached the roof ninety feet below, in a bruised and burned condition but still alive. The crowd below became wild with excitement and weeping women and frenzied men rushed around wringing their hands and moaning in anguish over their inability to render aid.

Suddenly every eye was turned upward by the preparation of a man to jump. He gave a quick, spasmodic leap and turned over and over half a dozen times before he struck the roof ninety feet below. When the body struck the roof there was a frightful crash and it bounced far up again into the air. From this time on bodies rained from the steeple, as after the first wild leap, one man after another jumped in quick succession as the flames closed in below and the heat became more intense. The very horror of death riveted every eye to the scene, and, while men and women shouted hysterically, guards were almost powerless to keep the crowd away from danger. The spectacle became more horrible as the minutes passed and for the last man on the cupola was reserved the fate most horrible of all.

After his companions leaped to apparent death and as he was hesitating the whole shaft began to tremble and vibrate. The lone fireman understood the ominous warning and gave a wild leap but too late. At the very instant he sprang the whole structure collapsed and this human being, quivering with life and wildly grasping for support in the frenzy of despair, was seen to drop into the labyrinth of flame and fire and disappear into the roaring furnace below.

As a fire trap the cold storage warehouse could not have been more perfectly constructed. It was 250 feet long and 150 feet wide, made of wood and covered with staff. The main body of the building was five stories high. In the center rose the smoke stack in the shape of a cupola 200 feet high. Its base was about thirty feet square and ninety feet up there was a balcony from which rose a tower culminating in the smoke stack where the fire was first discovered. The interior of the tower was wooden beams and framework on which staff was laid. It is supposed that the framework around the mouth of the chimney caught fire from a defect in the flue.

Cyclone in Iowa.

FORT DODGE, Iowa, July 7.—Seventy-four people dead, at least five more to die, and over a hundred injured, is the result of a cyclone that started at Quincy and ended with this awful record at Pomeroy last night.

At the latter place forty are dead and over a hundred and five blocks of residence are demolished, nothing remaining but kindling wood. Two hundred families are homeless, many having lost their all. Business blocks are badly damaged and the new postoffice, drug store and seven churches are completely demolished. The loss in Pomeroy will reach fully $500,000. All is chaos there. The residents still alive are in a dazed condition, and it is very difficult to get any information. The storm came from the northwest and did the terrible work in literally one minute's time. A great amount of damage is done to crops and the path of the storm is strewn with the carcasses of animals and in every direction there is nothing but wreck and ruin. Immediately after the storm passed, the cries and moans of the injured and dying were heartrending. Willing ones began the work of rescue. Their work was sickening as people were found literally torn to pieces, some with legs or arms drawn, others suffering from terrible wounds with the very life oozing out. Many of the dead are so disfigured that they are unrecognizable.
