THE SILENT OF DUTY—BY D. V. C., CONCLUDED.

School visits by the Directors—This is duty almost entirely disregarded by the directors of our city and country schools.

At which point there is a lull in the conversation, during which each surveys the other. Suddenly the knight of the tobacco quid turns interrogator:

"Howdy." "Howdy." "Traveling?" "Travelin' rite smart."

At this an insane desire takes possession of us to reply like the schoolboy, "It might be Jones, but it ain't," but we tell him our name, after which the way is open for an endless string of inquiries.

At night we camp at the only water hole we have seen during the day and are soon joined by three bands of movers.

LOQUACIOUS SQUATTERS.

Queer Folks One Meets While Traveling Over Stretches of Prairie.

Journeying across the prairie in which ever way the road runs, we at length overtake the strangest looking cavalcade imaginable—a dilapidated wagon with a dirty, ragged cover, drawn by an ill assorted team of a very small horse and an oversized mule long since fit subjects for the bonnyard.

As we rode up the following dialogue ensued: "Howdy." "Howdy." "Traveling?" "Travelin' rite smart."

At this an insane desire takes possession of us to reply like the schoolboy, "It might be Jones, but it ain't," but we tell him our name, after which the way is open for an endless string of inquiries.

MAID AND MISTRESS.

THE LATEST NOVELTIES IN CAP AND APRON.

Fashion's Decrees Are Constantly Varying Even with the Nursery Maid—Pretty Caps and Aprons—A Simple House Dress for the Mistress.

A fashionable nursery maid can't dress as she may choose. Think of what that is to a woman. Every woman, no matter what her station in life, has some little hobby in dress.

has not this privilege. Her gowns, her cap and her apron must be made in the style which the lady of the house considers correct.

Fashion does not always cater to the fitness of things. However, this year's styles in caps and aprons are pretty, and the variety is large enough to suit the various moods called upon to wear them.

Another apron worn by the fashionable waitress is made in the same style, only with much wider tucks.

It is possible that the average woman in looking at the pictures or reading descriptions of house dresses is inclined to think that they are very elaborate, and she cannot compass the making of one.

dress, that makes it becoming, and I do think that as it is the people we love whom we see at home it is more than worth while to pay due attention to the gown that is to be worn before them.

French Knack in Dress. The French woman excels all other women in her attention to the details of dress.

Last Winter's Gown Made New. The very little amount of velvet that it requires to make any of the pretty Bolero, Figaro or Eton jackets places them within the means of the most modest purse.

Enemies of the Oyster. One to two million oysters are produced from a single parent, and their scarcity is accounted for by the fact that man is not the only oyster eating animal.
