CUT OFF HIS ARM.—The Roseburg local Saturday afternoon ran over and mangled the left arm of a man who was lying beside the track between the Clackamas and Oregon City. He was in an unconscious condition and taken to Good Samaritan Hospital, in Portland where his arm was amputated. Sunday he was able to give an account of himself, and told rather a strange story in regard to his mishap. His name, he said, is Clarence DeVore of Quincy, Ind. He was walking on the line of the Southern Pacific towards Oregon City and met a man who told him he was two or three miles from that place. He started to go on, and remembers no more till he found someone trying to pour whisky down his throat and saw that his arm was crushed, and when he fully recovered consciousness he was in the hospital and his arm was off. He said he had $10 in his pocket when he met the man, but no money was found when his clothes were examined. He imagines that the man he met struck him on the head, knocking him senseless, and then robbed him and left him by or on the track. This is the account substantially as given by the Oregonian, but Dr. O. W. Yeargan who happened to be on the train, was first at the side of the wounded man and with his pocket knife cut away the hanging arm and took up the bleeding arteries. He says there was a deep cut back of the right ear, which looked as though it might have been made by some one in striking him, which gives color to the man's story.

PLAYED WITH THEM.—This is the heading which the San Francisco Call gives to an account of the base ball game of last Thursday in which Sacramento engaged Los Angeles. The one who did the playing was one own Damman who went from here to sign with Sacramento. The Call says: "Los Angeles ran against a snag today in the shape of Damman, the young southpaw Manager Moore recently imported from Oregon. The visitors thought they were going to wipe the earth with the youngster, but instead he played with them. The new man has wonderful curves. Empire Sweeney could not see many of the balls which twisted over the plate, therefore he gave Damman somewhat the worst of it in his decision on balls and strikes. But that made no difference anyhow, as the Angeles could do little or nothing with him when hits were needed."

FORMERLY LIVED HERE.—The Sunday Oregonian says A. J. Adams, convicted of the seduction of Emelie Nobs, under promise of marriage, was sentenced to two and a half years in the penitentiary by Judge Munly yesterday. He was allowed 30 days in which to file a bill of exceptions. His bail was fixed at $2000. Adams was at one time quite well known here and will be remembered as having worked for a while for Sidney Smyth surveying. Three years ago last May he was spoken of in connection with the democratic nomination for surveyor and was understood to have been working for it, but in this he was not successful. A gentleman from this city who heard the evidence says that the case was a very aggravated one and that there was no excuse for Adam's conduct.

THE LOWER TREESTLE.—Last Monday work was begun just below Fourteenth street on the lower trestle by the digging of holes in which to set the piling which is to be placed for the trestle to rest upon. This piling will be set in ground by digging instead of driving, and as the height of it is not very great this way of setting will do very well. The piling which is of cedar was received from Washougal and men were busy on Monday taking it from the river. The men who are doing the work are camped in tents on Fifteenth and John Adams streets and it looks somewhat as though this might be another job in which Oregon City men need not apply.

Receipt, note and order books at the Enterprise office.

THE OREGONIAN.—As the magnificent nine-story building in which the Oregonian is printed is the finest building in the city and the finest newspaper building on the coast so the paper itself has always been ahead of the times in advocating those measures which are for the best permanent good of the city and state while in point of ability editorially it stands at the head of Pacific coast papers. All this has required not a little work and money the latter being dug by hard knocks out of the enterprise itself, which by good management and diligence has been made a paying one where others have failed. That the Oregonian has an interesting history no one who will stop for a moment to consider will doubt. The great daily has very appropriately just issued a historical souvenir history covering the several steps from its shanty existence of 1850 down to its palatial home of 1902. This sketch is interesting from the first page of the cover which shows a segment of the big fire proof building in which the paper is printed through the 32 pages of interesting historical review and illustrations to the last page of the cover which presents photographic views of the several editions issued as they appear when folded by the great and wonderful press which prints them at the rate of 24,000 an hour. The book is a work of art and its greatest pride is that it was all done in the office of the paper whose name it bears.

MUST BE SEEN.—"Jerry," the well-known Oregonian reporter who was in the city the first of the week says of the works on the west side of the river: "A visit to the falls at Oregon City is necessary to enable any one to comprehend the magnitude of the work being done there by the Portland General Electric Company. There are over 200 men at work, and next week about 100 more will be put on the job. The massive headworks of concrete are completed. They are 25 feet in height, firmly anchored with many tons of iron bars, and contain a long row of arched gateways for the turbine wheels. A large number of these big wheels are lying on a platform near the locks, and thousands of tons of sand and barrels of cement are stored along the line of the huge wall to be built. This is now in progress and a powerful rock crusher and capacious concrete mixer enable many cubic yards of concrete to be laid in a day. The work surpasses in magnitude anything of the kind ever attempted in this section, with the exception of the Cascade locks."

FOR LOW WATER NAVIGATION.—The removal of the deck houses from the Three Sisters has had the effect to reduce her draught three inches. She drew fourteen inches originally, and now draws but eleven. The company will undertake to run her all summer. She has been provided with a steam windlass, which no other boat on the river has ever carried, and with which, by running a line to shore, she can easily haul herself off in case she runs aground of a sand bar or other obstruction. During the low water the steamer herself will be expected to carry only a light load, the principal carrying business being committed to a big barge which she will habitually tow. By this means the company hope for the first time in the history of Willamette river boating to run Corvallis all summer.

OSWEGO FURNACE FIRED.—The Iron Worker of last week says: The furnace started up again after being shut down for some weeks. A barge arrived last week from Puget Sound loaded with lime rock. The same tug some time since brought around the barge Ludlow with nine hundred tons of iron ore from Redondo Island in the gulf of Georgia, north of Nanaimo. With iron arriving periodically from the new mines in British Columbia and a prospect of a still higher grade of ore from Lower California, it is said the prospects are good for the continuous working of the furnace and pipe works of Oswego.

BIG TREE STORY.—A. F. Miller of Sellwood and in charge of Oregon's forestry exhibit at Chicago, is responsible for the statement that he has located a tree in Oregon which is sixteen feet in diameter twenty-five feet from the ground and ten feet in diameter 205 feet from the ground. He also says that Oregon has not over twenty-five redwood trees. Mr. Miller is well posted on the woods of Oregon. On short notice and with limited resources he has got a most creditable display of Oregon's timber in the forestry building.

THROWN FROM A BUGGY.—An accident occurred Monday on the county road leading out of Portland just beyond Sellwood resulting in the injury of a lady who lives in Willsburg but whose name could not be learned. She was driving along coming this way and met an electric car, which frightened her horse a little, whereupon she seized and bit him with the whip, causing the animal to start up suddenly, throwing her out of the buggy, one of the wheels of which ran over her, hurting her back.

SEAMEN TAKE NOTICE.—The Oregon City Transportation company will sell tickets good until September 30th to all points on North Beach via steamer Ocean Wave. Baggage checked and transferred without extra charge. This is a great convenience and will save the annoyance of looking after baggage. Buy your tickets from the agent at the Oregon City dock.

WORK OF THE WATER COMMISSION.—At a meeting of the water commission held last Saturday night in addition to entering into a contract for a new pump they decided to advertise for the sale of the $10,000 bonds authorized by the council. With the proceeds of these bonds they will pay for the new pump, build a reservoir if a suitable site can be found at reasonable cost and otherwise improve the service. It is their intention to have the main on Main street lowered where necessary at the time of the improvement of the street and to have sub-mains laid to the side streets so that it will not become necessary to tear up the improved street as soon as it is in place.

THEY CRUCIFIED HIM.—There have been two arrests in Oswego of parties for the murder of the Chinaman, Hun, and there seems to have been no sufficient grounds for the arrest of either. At least the people of Oswego are of that opinion for last week on Thursday night they gathered and crucified in effigy W. H. Welch who made the arrests. There is considerable feeling there on account, it is claimed, of the way in which the arrests have been made, as it is alleged he makes the arrests first and looks for evidence afterwards. This they claim, is liable to cause too many innocent persons trouble, besides injuring their good name and reputation.

A NEW PUMP.—The contract has been let by the board of water commissioners for a new pump which is to stand a pressure of 300 pounds and to have a capacity of 1,000,000 gallons per day. The pump is to be built by the Union Iron Works of Portland and it is expected that it will be done and set ready for use by October. The old pump is entirely inadequate to the demands now made upon it and to be required to depend entirely upon one pump is to invite disaster upon our city.

DOCK WAS KILLED.—Last Sunday morning Dock, C. O. Albright's fine bird dog was lying out in the street right across the rail on the motor line when the car came up from Portland and from the fact that he made no effort to get out of the way of the car as it approached, it is thought that he was asleep, for the car ran over his body cutting it in two and killing him almost instantly. The dog was a general favorite and was especially prized by the family.
