The new school house at Oswego is enclosed and so far along in construction that one can see that it is going to be a very neat and ornamental structure when done, one that our sister town may well be proud of.

Seven-roomed house and 1 1/4 acres of improved land on Clackamas Heights, near graded school and postoffice. Worth $1260 will sell for $850. Offer to hold good till August 1st. Call at Park Place store for particulars.

Mrs. M. E. Case was the lucky purchaser of several of the finest lots in Falls View the past week, those which she secured being among a number which C. O. T. Williams had reserved from the original plat for himself.

Sunday Mrs. H. S. Strange was called to Corvallis by the severe illness of her mother, Mrs. Caleb Davis, who died the following day. Mr. Strange left Monday night to attend the funeral which was held on Tuesday.

Nothing pleases a person so well when away from home as to get a well cooked meal served in a clean and appetizing manner. The Portland restaurant by the excellence of its meals and table service can please the most fastidious person. Give it a trial. tf

For several years many of the good citizens of Canemah have desired to replace their old school building with a large and more pretentious building, but have until now been unable to do so, but this year the people have decided to build and are now waiting for plans for a neat, commodious, and airy building which they expect to have under way in a few weeks.

At a recent meeting of the state horticultural society at Salem it was proposed that a state fruit show be held. The secretary read a paper on the subject and said: Roughly estimated there are at the present time 100,000 acres planted to fruit in Oregon, the largest portion of which is in young orchards. An estimate of $100 per acre net when the trees are six years old means an annual income of $10,000,000.

The case of E. T. Jennings vs. Addie C. Jennings, which involved the title to certain property which had been deeded to the defendant by her father before his death, was decided in the supreme court the past week in favor of Miss Addie Jennings, the verdict of the lower court having been affirmed. The verdict will render general satisfaction hereabouts where the case is generally understood. C. D. Latourette was associated with Judge Bonham of Salem in the defense.

The plan for the road between the west end of the bridge and the lower Tualatin bridge has been changed so that instead of going up over the hill and following the line of the electric line it will take pretty much the course of the present county road till it reaches the old wood yard and from there it will keep to the left of the present road, which will give a thoroughfare more nearly straight and on better grade. It is the intention of the company to improve this road so that it will be an excellent driveway from the bridge to the Tualatin. The reason that this change was made in the location of the road was on account of the rock croppings which interfered with grading and made it very expensive.

A Jacksonville dispatch to the Oregonian says, W. L. Miller left for Oregon City this evening to take a position by appointment of his brother, Col. E. A. Miller, in the land office at that place. The young gentleman was born in Jacksonville, has received a fine education in literature and law, is a polished writer and fine speaker, and is thought to have a bright future before him.

A Dangerous Preparation.

Last Friday I. D. Surfus who lives on the Latourette farm south of town was preparing a mixture for spraying the orchard, the chief ingredient of which was coal oil, when an accident occurred which resulted in the serious burning of several members of the family and came near to burning the house and barn besides. He was preparing the mixture by heating it on the stove and the fumes had filled the room with gas when some of the mixture was spilled on the stove and in an instant the room was filled with flames. Mr. Surfus had hold of the dish in which the mixture was being prepared at the time of the accident and immediately started to carry it out of doors and in spite of the flames which were burning his hands terribly he hung on to the dish until he got it out of doors. Zella the 6-year-old girl was the worst burned as her clothes all caught fire and she would have perished but for the prompt action of Mrs. Surfus who seized the burning girl and carried her to a tub of water and plunged her in. In doing this Mrs. Surfus' arms were badly burned. Zella was so badly burned about the legs and feet that the skin came off almost entirely, so that it was feared that she would not recover but she seems now to be getting along all right. Vest, aged 14 had to cross the room while it was in flames and was somewhat burned but not seriously. Mr. Surfus is burned mostly about the hands and arms and has to carry one arm in a sling.

The house would have been burned down but for the fact that it was lathed and plastered so that there was not much inflammable material for the flames to work upon, and in spite of the injuries which the members of the family had sustained they immediately began to throw water into the room and so put out the fire. The room was much blackened and scorched but otherwise aside from the furniture not much damaged. When the accident happened the dog was in the room and he too caught fire whereupon he rushed out and ran toward the barn and lying down when within about fifteen feet of it rolled over and over and put out the flames but in doing this he set the grass afire and it had to be hurriedly put out to save the barn. Altogether it was a close call all around and considering the nature of the accident it was a fortunate escape for all concerned.

Emmet Means Drowned.

A letter from Mrs. Means, who last spring went to Los Gatos, Cal., states to friends in this city that again she has been called to pass through great sorrow in the death of her son, Emmet, who was drowned on the 5th of July at Bonner, Montana. Only a very few months since Henry died and now Emmet, who was her main support, is taken. He was 22 years and 9 months old and was drowned while at work in Montana and buried there. Mrs. Means will have the deep sympathy of those who knew her so well here, in this her double affliction. The members of the Baptist church of which she was a worthy member will remember her most kindly in her sorrow.

Yours truly,

GILMAN PARKER, Pastor. Oregon City, August 1, 1893.

Millions of Logs Coming.

The snagboat Corvallis, which has been actively engaged in building wingdams at the mouth of the Luckiamute for the past week, has been compelled to suspend operations for three days to allow a drive of 1,500,000 feet of logs to pass. This drive is steadily increased as it floats down, and by the time Salem is reached it will contain several million feet. When the drive gets below Salem the steamboats will have to be very cautious in their trips, as they are likely to run foul of the logs, some of which are large enough to cause damage.

In Memoriam.

Died, at his mother's residence in Mount Tabor, Don Sharp, on Tuesday, 8 o'clock a. m. July 25, 1893, of diphtheria and was buried at the Damascus graveyard in the evening of the same day.
