WATER PLANTS.

Varieties Suited to Growth in Tubs and Pools.

Of recent years attention has been repeatedly called to the odd and beautiful water plants offered by florists. Where one's grounds include a stream or pond these water plants are an effective feature, which, once introduced, is rarely ever dropped. Formerly these plants were of rare occurrence on grounds of limited extent, owing to the lack of facilities for growing them and also the high cost of the plants. Lately the demand has been such, however, that florists are providing varieties easily cared for and at prices within the reach of the average gardener.

The Nymphaea Zanzibarensis, or blue and red African water lilies, grow rapidly and bear a profusion of flowers measuring about one foot across. This variety blooms freely all summer from either seed or tubers. The larger the supply of water the larger the flowers, but fine effects may be gained by starting the tubers in a dish of mud and water and later transplanting to an ordinary sized tub.

AFRICAN WATER LILIES.

The ancient Egyptian lotus, planted in rich mud with one or two feet of water, flowers the first season. Either in ponds or tubs this plant is in bloom from July to October.

The water poppy is an easily cultivated plant and may be grown in a shallow tub or pan. It has small, oval leaves and large, showy flowers of a bright lemon color, standing a few inches out of the water and produces freely all summer.

The water hyacinth is a curious plant which floats in the water by means of its curiously inflated leaf stalks, which resemble bladders or balloons filled with air. A large mass of feathery roots grows downward, their ends entering the soil. It forms a rosette of its curious, shining green leaves and throws up spikes of flowers resembling in form a spike of hyacinth bloom. This can be grown in the open air in summer and in the window in winter in anything which will hold water. The most beautiful effect is produced by using a glass vessel of some sort, with shells and white sand arranged in the bottom as to conceal a small amount of soil.

Other varieties grown with comparative ease are the white pond lily and the golden water lily.

Improving Strawberry Beds.

Many varieties of strawberries are like to become too crowded in the rows the second season and consequently give only small, inferior berries. A remedy for this, according to a Rural New Yorker correspondent, is with a sharp hoe. As soon as the first crop is off, cut a strip about 9 inches wide out of the center of each row. This gives us two narrow rows instead of one wide one. Keep this narrow strip clear of runners like the walk, and you will be surprised at the nice lot of berries on the inside edges of these rows the next season. These strips being very narrow, of course no pickers are allowed to walk in them, and thus no berries will be stepped on.

Layering the Carnation.

Young plants are perfectly hardy, but when old they are injured in the winter. Vick recommends procuring a succession of young plants either from seeds or from layers every year. Layering should be done in midsummer. Simply cut a slit in a young shoot to obstruct the flow of sap and then remove the earth a few inches in depth and press down the branch so that the slit will open and cover it with soil. Roots will push out where the cut was made, and thus a new plant will be formed.

Rose Caterpillars.

The worms that eat rose leaves and ruin the appearance of the foliage thereby may be destroyed, says Vick, by crushing them between the thumb and finger, or they can be in a great measure destroyed by dredging the leaves with white hellebore or mixing it with water and sprinkling it on, or a solution of whale oil soap will be almost sure to rid the plants of them. Kerosene emulsion is also effectual.

Points About Fruit.

Meion vines must be well watched and protected from bugs. Netting or wire screens are preferred by some gardeners to any application of insecticides.

Use bordeaux mixture for blight on tomatoes.

Spraying the fruit trees with bordeaux-paris green mixture is the remedy for scab, insects, etc.

The cranberry forms a symmetrical little tree under culture, and with its bright red fruit is a pleasing ornament on the lawn or in the shrubbery.

Partial shade is the best condition for preventing mildew on the gooseberry, which is the greatest enemy to its successful cultivation.

The dewberry is not much cultivated, but it fills the season nicely between strawberries and raspberries, and the mode of culture is somewhat like that of the strawberry.

The plum curculio must be baffled by jarring or repelled by smudging.

Ventilation of Bee Cells.

The amount of air needed by bees varies greatly according to circumstances. When they are excited and full of honey, as is the case with a working swarm, the amount of air needed is very great. If they can be kept quiet, a very little air will suffice. In winter bees are in a semi-dormant state, and the amount of air necessary for their maintenance is very slight. Special ventilation, simply for the sake of securing fresher or purer air, seems to be almost unnecessary. The few beekeepers who plead for special ventilation do so almost wholly upon the ground that they can thereby more readily control the temperature.

If the bee repositories are built sufficiently underground it does not seem as though ventilation would be very much needed for controlling temperature. When bees settle down into that quiet state essential for successful wintering, their need of air is very slight indeed. When their winter nap is ended, and spring arouses them to activity and to brood rearing, more air is needed. It is then, if ever, that special ventilation is a benefit; but as all that is needed can be so easily secured by the occasional opening of doors or windows at night, if it ever becomes really necessary, it scarcely seems worth while to go to the expense of laying subearth pipes. I should not do it or advise it, writes W. Z. Hutchinson, of Michigan, in The American Agriculturist.

A Practical Lesson in Poultry.

The following from a Canada farmer and reported from the Ottawa station will be read with interest by readers who desire to know what a small number of hens will do when well cared for and fed.

Eggs laid by fifteen Plymouth Rock hens:

January.....	214
February.....	144
March.....	293
April.....	290
May.....	249
June.....	211 one hen killed.
July.....	197
August.....	187
September.....	159
October.....	75
November.....	41 hens molting.
December.....	37
Total.....	2022

Total cost of feed for the year, $17.00. Four of the hens raised thirty-nine chickens. The cost of the chickens' feed is included in the above amount. One of the pullets began to lay when 5 months and 3 days old.

The Dwarf Palm of Algeria.

The dwarf palm, which furnishes considerable quantities of fiber, grows in great profusion in Algeria and is one of the principal obstacles to the clearing of the land, so thickly does it grow and so difficult to pull up. Its roots, in shape resembling carrots, penetrate into the ground to the depth of a yard or more, and when its stem only is cut it sprouts out again almost immediately. As its name indicates, this palm is very small, and can only attain a certain height when protected, as in the Arab cemeteries, for example.—Monde Economique.

Saved by a Nickel.

At Longview, Tex., while Jim Vines was fooling with a revolver it went off, and all that saved his life was a nickel which he had in a pants pocket. The ball struck the coin and glanced down his leg, making a long blue streak.

Accommodating.

He was evidently a very obliging boy, for when he applied to the merchant for a position and was asked his age he replied: "Oh, sir, I shall be whatever age you wish me to be!"—Harper's Bazar

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA

PURE BLOOD. SOUND SLEEP. LONG LIFE. STRONG NERVES. MENTAL ENERGY. VITALITY. HEALTHY SKIN. CLEAR BLOOD.

M. Hamner, a well-known business man of Hillsboro, Va., sends this testimony to the merits of Ayer's Sarsaparilla: "Several years ago, I hurt my leg, the injury leaving a sore which led to erysipelas. My sufferings were extreme, my leg from the knee to the ankle, being a solid sore, which began to extend to other parts of the body. After trying various remedies, I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, before I had finished the first bottle, I experienced great relief; the second bottle effected a complete cure."

Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.
Gentlemen: I take pleasure in informing you of the very beneficial results which have followed the use of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine in the case of myself and wife. For a year I was subject to a distressing pain at the base of the brain and upper portion of the spinal cord. I lost teeth and was greatly troubled with sleeplessness. Your Nervine was highly recommended to me. My case had been so obstinate that I had no confidence in the efficacy of any medicine. Yet as a last resort I consented to give it a trial. Much to my surprise, I experienced marked benefit; my sleeplessness disappeared; my headache was removed; my spirits and general health greatly improved. I soon gained twenty pounds. All this occurred after taking only a few bottles. My nervous system has failed. My wife is taking the Nervine with the best of results. LOUIS D. VANDEVERE.
