AN AIR CYCLE NEXT.

THAT IS WHAT'S WANTED BEFORE THE FLYING MACHINE.

The Bicycle No Longer Satisfies the Longing of Mankind For Free Movement. We Want to Travel as the Birds Do, but Must Learn Essential Lessons First.

The Frenchman who covered the dead walls of Paris with calls for subscriptions to a Society of Aviation, to start with a capital of 500,000 francs, may have been lacking in the highest qualities of public spirit. He was placed in jail for taking money for his little private flying machines, costing from $500 to $2,000, which he failed to deliver. But his merit lies in discovering the want that fills the breasts of a large number of men today. It is only the somewhat headlong method of gratifying that yearning which has suffered for a time with his locomotion. Had he but had the forethought to invent, to beg or to borrow a fairly efficient flying machine, nothing short of a cage would now prevent him from taking a leave as French as himself.

Though he should languish for the rest of his days in prison, M. Delprat will have the glory of the discovery that the bicycle no longer satisfies the longing of mankind toward a freer movement over the face of land and water. If we are to believe the evolutionists, man is the result of gradual aspiration, from the worm that walloweth on a portion of its anatomy unsuited to ears polite, through the many footed, the four footed and four handed beasts, up to the natural lord of creation who runs perpendicular on two feet. The present century has seen man become what the old legends would have termed the "whirling one foot." Why should not this progress continue and the next century find man rising from that single pied a terre into more or less sustained aviation?

The flying machine still holding to earth by one wheel has already appeared practically in England, according to engineering. Mr. Phillipps published the results of his trial of a machine resting on a light car and claims that he rose, but the front wheel of the car never left the ground. This is quite as it should be. We creep before we walk, graduate from tricycle to bicycle, and now we are at the unicycle age. Who is the man to lift us finally clear of earth?

The principle of the balloon, useful as it is in overcoming gravity, has carried generations of inventors into a fool's paradise.

Birds are lighter than beasts, but they are not soap bubbles. And to the bird have to return indirectly or directly the lessons in the navigation of the air. The aeroplane, in which our able aviators are now reposing so much confidence, but upon which they take care not to repose their own brittle bodies, is the result of a study of the soaring of birds. Latterly it has been reasoned that individual feathers have a powerful influence in supporting the bird in air. So the aeroplanes are made not solid, but with slats, and in some cases jointed in sections, so that while one portion is in one plane another may be tilted up or down to get the lifting power of a change of angle. This power is so great that our leading aviators, Hiram Maxim and Professor Langley, expect to obtain great velocities if they can once get their airships under control.

The money spent by these inventors and investigators is mounting to a great sum, but who shall say it is wasted, considering the benefits to accrue? The remark attributed to Gifford when dying, that he would not reveal the secret of his trip because "he thought he saw the world sanguined by war as the seas have blood, and the earth," need not disturb us. If he did say that, he was temporarily in a state of weakness, for the flying machine will do more than anything ever invented to break down the prejudice of one nation for another. Wars are the result of such prejudices carefully inflamed by ambitious men, and as the aviation is not going to stop wars it will surely reduce them to a minimum.

More important than such machines as those of Santos Dumont and Krebs successfully steered from Meudon to the walls of Paris and back again are the small flying machines developed from the bicycle, which seem now about to make their appearance. The bicycle with electric motor is invented. Now comes the invention of a combination of bicycle and aeroplane which shall permit the rider to skim the earth and skim along for 100 yards or so without detriment to himself or machine. By way of these inventions will come the discovery, step by step, of means and methods of sustaining flight for longer periods and also the mechanical training in motion through the air which is now wanting to many inventors who are constructing either in actuality great flying machines are like men of an inland race who have for the first time seen a broad expanse of water. Before learning to paddle or balance they are already building a ship, before understanding the principles of the steam engine they are setting it to work to make an ocean steamer. What is wanted is a popular air cycle, a "safety," to lead the way to larger machines with sustained flight. Who will invent one?—New York Times.

An Old Pacific Coast Engine.

Perhaps few of the people know that a quaint antique engine is lying useless behind the station at Long Beach, Los Angeles county. This engine was used in the early part of the last decade, and when the fireman wanted to put in any time a train had to be stopped while the man put in wood at the front of the engine, as the door of the furnace is still there. This engine ran between Los Angeles and Long Beach before the Southern Pacific extended its line to Santa Monica. The cars are like street cars of today, only about twice as long. Sometimes the passengers had to get out and push, as the engine was not very powerful.—Pasadena Star.

For the Mid Winter Fair.

At the solicitation of many persons interested in the subject, the Portland Industrial Exposition has undertaken to gather fruit to be used in showing the pomological products of Oregon, at the Mid-winter Fair, in San Francisco. This fruit will be gathered and placed on display at the Exposition. In Portland and will be combined with what may be gathered from other sources for the Mid-winter Fair. Although every orchardist should exert himself to see that the interests of the fruit industry are properly represented at all times, as should every person desirous of promoting the welfare of the state, the Exposition has decided to encourage and stimulate growers to send their best products by offering the following prizes:

For the largest five pears	$5 00
For the largest five apples	5 00
For the best ten varieties of apples	5 00
For the greatest variety of pears	5 00
For the largest bunch of grapes	5 00
For the greatest variety of grapes	5 00

All fruit should be carefully labeled with the name and address of the sender and in placing it on exhibition both in Portland and San Francisco, it will be identified in this way, so that due credit will be received by the producers. Fruit should be carefully packed and shipped by express to the Portland Industrial Exposition, Portland, Oregon. There will be no express charges for the shipper to pay. Entries for prizes will not be received later than October 7th, but choice fruit for exhibit will be taken at any time prior to October 20th.

Orchardists are urged to give this matter the attention it deserves.

Elwood Notes.

Elwood, Or., Sept.—As it is now the middle of September the fruit gathering and grain threshing is the main industry of this country.

The Elwood postoffice has recently been removed from the residence of J. C. Sylvanus to Mr. J. Kernes, with Mrs. E. Kernes as postmaster.

Edward Martin and wife have moved from their former home at this place to their neat little cottage at the head of Seventh street in Oregon City. Mrs. Martin began a three months term of school at Maple Lane the 18th.

J. C. Taylor and family expect soon to move to Oregon City.

We are pleased to see Rev. Sylvanus able to be around after recovering from the serious accident he received by falling from a load of grain and breaking his collar bone.

Miss Annie Sylvanus leaves her home today to resume her studies again after a vacation of three months.

Miss Helen Taylor arrived in Oregon City last Sunday from her trip in the East where she has been visiting relatives. She stopped on her way home at Chicago and visited the world's fair for ten days. She was more than pleased with the fair and her trip in general.

Thos. Welsh of Canemah was out to Elwood the past week to see how he would like to become a resident of this place.

The sidewalks are being laid along Main street at the upper end if we can have a few week's fair weather we can get along main street with some degree of comfort.

Creed Stratton returned from a trip up the Clackamas Wednesday bringing with him part of a deer which he had killed.

A big cut in clothing at the Park Place store. You will need a suit for yourself or boy, buy it here and save money.

H. Z. Burkhart returned from Coos Bay on Wednesday.

E. Meresse and family are back from Netarts Bay.

DEAR SIR:—Enclosed please find $1.00 for which I would like you to send me the worth of it in Krause's Headache Capsules. Some time ago my wife was in Hartford, Conn., and stepped into Sawletts drug store, where they gave her a sample box of them. They were just what she needed, but we have failed to find them here so we send to you for them. Will you kindly send them by mail at your earliest possible convenience and oblige, Yours truly,
