The case was begun before Judge Fouts and is set for the 3d of October.

Capt. Spong and J. N. Graham have just returned from a very pleasant trip up the Willamette. They went up as far as Springfield where they took a skiff and came down the river stopping at the various towns along the bank to see what they looked like and at such places as they thought likely to afford pleasure and amusement. Among the latter they included several hop yard dances.

A FRIGHTFUL ACCIDENT.

A Workmen Killed While Repairing the Clackamas Bridge.

Since the first of the year there has been no less than four deaths at or in the immediate vicinity of the Clackamas bridge on the electric line between here and Portland. The accident on Wednesday which resulted in the killing of Carl Perham was so sudden and unexpected that it shocked his fellow workmen for the moment and they were powerless to render aid. Indeed it is almost certain that death ensued the moment his hands came in contact with the wires which imparted the shock.

The accident, as learned by a reporter who visited the scene immediately after it occurred and talked with those who witnessed it, happened a little before five o'clock in the afternoon. The men had been at work all day on the upper chords of the bridge tightening up the rods for the purpose of getting the bridge which had swayed to one side back in its normal position. In their work they had occasion frequently to pass from one side of the bridge to the other upon the lateral braces and in doing so steadied themselves by the several electric light wires which are strung upon the bridge for the East Portland circuit. No shock had been felt at any time during the day and no thought of danger occurred to the men when a little before 5 o'clock Carl Perham had occasion to cross the bridge for an auger that was needed. He had nearly reached the opposite side when his fellow workmen were startled by the sound usual to crossed electric wires and hastily looking up they saw that he had fallen across the wires upon his back and that a bright blaze was leaping from each of his hands which were held fast to the two wires which he had hold of when he received the shock. His brother Robert was at work with him on the upper part of the bridge but was powerless to relieve him or free the body from contact with the wires. H. W. Perham, another brother, and foreman of the work, was on the floor of the bridge, and seeing the position in which his brother was he ran beneath him to be ready to catch him in case he should fall. After being in contact with the live wires for the space of about half a minute the hands released their grasp and the body fell and was caught by H. W. Perham, who carried it to the bank where attempts were made to resuscitate it but without avail. Coroner Holman was notified and immediately went to the scene of the accident where, after making a careful investigation, he decided that an inquest was unnecessary. The body was brought to the undertaking rooms of R. L. Holman in this city where Dr. Carl made a careful examination to see if there remained any sign of life. Deciding that there was none the body was prepared for burial and sent to Portland, where he lived, on a special car on Thursday morning.

Carl Perham was one of four brothers who lived with their mother in East Portland, and he and his brothers had been at work for some time in and about this city, where he had formed quite a pleasant acquaintance, as he was a very pleasant and genial young man of good habits and character. His death is deeply regretted by all who knew him.

Company F. held its first meeting in the armory since it was overhauled and the addition built on, on Monday evening. It was also the first since the summer vacation. The meeting was for the purpose of inspection and Captain Ganong made a most thorough job of it, there being a good attendance. The occasion was taken to assign to all the members of the company the locker in which each is hereafter to keep his suit and equipments for it is intended that all suits shall hereafter be kept in the armory.

Thursday, the 27th of this month, was the 30th anniversary of the marriage of Major Thos. Charman and wife and they celebrated the event with a family dinner. In the evening their relatives in the city surprised them by gathering at the residence to congratulate them upon their long and happy married life. The evening was very pleasantly spent and thoroughly enjoyed by all and by none more than by the surprised host and his wife.

The Butte Creek Fair is now in session and will continue during the rest of the week. Saturday is usually the great day of the fair when everybody and his best girl gather in from miles around to see the big pumpkins and to have a good time. This year will prove no exception and if you want to be in the swim all over you will go on both Friday and Saturday and take two girls.

The Commercial bank of Portland which has been closed for a couple of months has authority from Comptroller Eckles to open its doors for business and expects to do so on Monday of next week if the extensive changes which are being made in the arrangement of the building can be completed in time.

The Gladstone car broke down on Tuesday and had to be taken to the shop to be repaired, so there was no car running to Gladstone Park on Wednesday.

A society of the Kings Daughters was organized at the Episcopal church on Wednesday evening of this week.

M. J. Brodrick has placed a large cut stone on the sidewalk to bring his shop within easy access of the street.

School Notice.

The public schools of this city will open October 2d, and the board has divided the district for the present as follows, to-wit:

Beginning at the bluff on Seventh street and running thence along said street to John Q. Adams street thence northerly along John Q. Adams street to Ninth street, thence easterly along Ninth street to district limits.

All children of first grade (or chart class) and all children of the next or second grade living south of the above lines will assemble at the new school house.

All of the above-named grades living north of the above-named lines, and all of the same grades living under the bluff will assemble at the old school house.

Inequalities in the above division will be corrected by the principal's transferring pupils from one school to the other as the case may require.

All of the Seventh grade will assemble at the new school house without regard to district lines. Other changes will be made whenever necessary and practicable.

Grades not mentioned above will assemble at the old schoolhouse.

Chart class will be organized during the first week of term. Pupils not entering during the first week will not be received until the middle of term, when new chart class will probably be organized.

H. L. KELLY, Geo. W. GIBSEY, T. S. LAWRENCE, Board of Directors.

September 29, 1893.

N. B. The first grade is composed of the primary pupils or beginners.

They Will Marry.

Thursdays Oregonian says; The criminal charge hanging over Fred Mossman and Jennie Purcell, arrested at Oregon City Monday night, will probably be withdrawn today. The girl's father called upon Justice McDevitt yesterday to ask whether the marriage of the young folks would settle the matter, and learning that it would hastened home with the news. Later in the day it was learned that Miss Purcell and Mossman were more than willing to carry out their part of the contract, so that the knot will be tied today, and Mossman released from jail.

Married.

BURKE—WARD.—at the residence of James Ward in Oregon City, Saturday, September 23d, 1893, Rev. Gilman Parker officiating, Mr. Thomas Burke and Miss Emily C. Social Supper.

By the Presbyterians, at Shively's hall on the evening of Friday, September 29. A short and interesting program will be rendered, beginning at 8 o'clock, after which refreshments will be served. A special effort will be made to have everyone enjoy the evening. Come and spend the time pleasantly. The only admission will be at the door.

Lost.

Last Saturday, between the Baty place and Ely's store a pocket day book and ledger with my name in each, and two pass books from E. E. Williams's store, Finder please leave at Williams's store and receive reward.

W. E. JOHNSON.

The fall term of school will open next Monday at which time the new school building will be occupied for the first time. The school board has a notice in the paper relative to the classification which it would be well for all patrons of the school to make a note of. It might also be well for parents who have children who wish to enter the chart or beginning class to bear in mind the fact that in the two years past the overcrowded condition of the schools during the year has prevented the formation of a chart class after the opening of the term. It is, therefore, desirable that all who are to enter that and other classes should do so the first day of the school year.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Sons of Veterans, will give a social at the hall over the livery barn on Seventh street, on September 29th. There will be a program. After the program the ladies will serve coffee, cake, sandwiches and pickles for the small sum of fifteen cents. Every body invited to come, especially the G. A. R. men. Meade Relief Corps, and the Sons of Veterans.

The ladies of St. Paul's Guild are busy preparing for their Fair and Chrysanthemum show, which is to take place in November. Several prizes will be given at that time for best flowers.

R. D. Wilson and Charlie went up the river the last of the week for a few days outing in which time they expected to catch all the fish in the Clackamas, or perhaps less.

J. B. Noe of Needy was in the city on Saturday and called at the ENTERPRISE office where he placed an order for a fine lot of stationery for his nursery business.

Don't Consign Your Hops.

Joel P. Geer, who is closely watching the hop market writes as follows concerning the practice of consigning hops:

"The most ridiculous thing that growers can do, in my opinion, is to let dealers have their hops to ship, the grower to have the going price at some future day, between now and the last of October. They ought to be able to see that they are only furnishing the dealer and brewer just that amount of hops with which to beat down the market, and if any considerable number would do that the dealer had as well offer 12 cents as twice that amount. These hops go to the brewer and they have them to use and can stay out of the market that much longer, while the poor deluded grower is vainly hoping to see the price get better, so he can have a chance to name a good figure. The "hand to mouth" policy of the buyer is thus helped on by the grower that is condemning it, and the price is kept down on him with the help of his own hops. Fortunately there are few of them doing it, but there are a few; but if all were to do that, the brewer would get the hops and the grower would take what they were willing to give him. It is a good deal like going off and telling the dealer to go to your hop house and take the hops and give you what he thought you ought to have."

The Opening of School.

The fine new six room school house upon Seventh street has been completed and the board of directors have accepted it from the contractors. It is a neat and imposing two story structure which from its fine location can be seen for miles around. All who have seen it pronounce it a model of beauty and very convenient in arrangement. It is not expected that it will be necessary to use all the rooms at present but they will be ready for use if needed. The directors with Prof. Pringle are consulting relative to the arrangement of the grades so as to permit the pupils as far as possible to attend school in the buildings nearest their homes. Of course this will be impossible in all of the grades but it will be applied first for the benefit of the little folks and where possible to other pupils. It will of course be impossible at the outset to assign pupils definitely but with the opening it can soon be adjusted so as to work smoothly.

The brick for Main street are being delivered at the upper end of the street and are being carefully examined by our people, who are passing sundry and various opinions upon them. Capt. Shaw tested about one third of one and found that it consumed about one fourth of a pint of water. It is of the utmost importance that the committee of the council and the contractors exercise the greatest care in the selection of brick to be used. Mr. John F. Behm, an experienced bricklayer who has taken the contract for laying them, says that they will stand both wear and strain all right and that they should be as good in 20 years as when laid.

The excavators are at work upon Main street between Fifth and Sixth streets while the gravelers are only about a block south and the sand haulers a couple of blocks back of the gravel men. The curb builders are at work between Eighth and Ninth streets and the parties placing sidewalks are at work anywhere from Fourth to Eighth streets. The trestle builders have the piling set to Moss street and the stringers in place so that not more than a day or two will elapse before the completion of that part of the work.

Mr. V. Harris has purchased of E. T. Fields the business established and run for many years by his father, Thos. Fields, has taken charge of the same and will be glad to form the acquaintance of all of our townspeople. Mr. Harris is a very affable gentleman who comes here from Astoria and prior to that from New York. He is accompanied by his sister, Miss Mary Harris, who is keeping house for them and who will assist him at the store. They are living in a part of the house occupied by Mrs. Wetherell on Main street near Seventh.

L. L. Porter and W. L. Miller who went up the Clackamas for a days outing the first of the week, were about the only ones of several parties who had any success. They took 47 out of one pool in the river.

A. W. Cheney is preparing to build a new cottage on his property on Jefferson street between Ninth and Tenth. He expects to occupy it himself and will rent the other two which adjoin.

Mack Howell has sold the lot on 10th street, upon which he had started to build to Geo. C. Brownell, whose property it adjoined.

William Johns is building a new cottage adjoining the electric line one block beyond the Abernethy.

Miss Hixon of Seattle is visiting her sister Mrs. R. L. Holman of this city.
