THE NEXT CYCLONE.

Under this heading the San Francisco Bulletin discusses the political situation at length. Among other things it says: "It looks as if the next political cyclone would strike with great force the present administration. The warnings at present are mostly from the democratic side. The country is already expressing its disappointment with an emphasis that cannot be mistaken. The Cleveland administration took office with the promise to give the country a greater degree of prosperity. In six months the securities of the country had depreciated more than $600,000,000. The customs receipts had fallen off many millions. The tidal wave that carried the present administration into power has receded. It has left it hard ground. This change is still going on. If democratic organs turn about and attack the party in power, what then? It cannot be expected that republicans will rush to its support.

For six months the party in power has been on trial. During the critical period it has done nothing except to create distrust. It has a majority in both houses and a democratic president. If there is any virtue in these facts they ought to give confidence to the country. But it has followed that as soon as this clear majority was ascertained confidence began to decline. Meanwhile it is keeping up its assaults on republican principles everywhere. It is worth while to contrast the attitude of the republicans toward the present administration with that of the democrats toward that of the last republican administration. There is a radical difference. The Harrison administration came in when all the resources of the democratic party in congress was employed to nullify every measure brought forward by the republicans. The aim was to harass and discredit the party in power. The opposition was factious beyond precedent. The purpose was to kill every measure brought forward by filibustering tactics. This fierce party war has passed into history. Now the party in power is asking for the tolerance and support that it refused to the republican administration. The attitude of the party out of power is quite different. It is not conspiring to wreck the administration, and does not employ any filibustering tactics to embarrass it. It has even gone so far on one or two occasions as to help pull it out of the mire.

The administration will need to continuously call on the republicans to help save it from the vagaries of its own platform. While it is nominally committed to free trade it would go down in a political cyclone if it were to carry such a measure into full effect. Democratic organs are to-day asking for a repudiation of the Chicago platform to the extent that particular industries in their several states must have protection. There is not, for instance, a democratic organ of influence in California that has taken ground against the protection of fruit, wool, sugar and other great local industries and interests. These exceptional cases are occurring all over the country. What does it mean? Just this, that while the party is bound by its own platform it has no confidence in it. Free trade, as it has been formulated, could not be carried out to-day without disrupting the party.

The country is beginning to look once more to the republicans to save it from the worst results of democratic rule. The latter has been looking in the same direction for similar help. And this change of attitude has been brought about in a little more than six months. In this light it is not difficult to forecast the changes that will occur in the next three years.

AGAINST THE PRESIDENT

A democratic senator from one of the northern states was recently discussing the situation in the senate and from the following extract from his conversation it is apparent that the democrats are not very sanguine as to the result and do not take a rosy view of the situation. He says it is: "The darkest it has appeared since the bill for the repeal of the silver purchase clause came to the senate. Further, I think unconditional repeal is dead. The worst part of the whole thing is the situation is rapidly tearing asunder our party. Something must be done. The man who sits up at the White House and by his refusal to listen to anything like a reasonable compromise, and insists upon utterly destroying the democratic party in this stubbornly refusing us aid, is to be taught that the democratic party is bigger than he is, although he does not seem to understand it so. Something is to be done, and soon."

A WORKINGMAN'S LOGIC.

When the Ways and Means committee was hearing manufacturers tell why the tariff should not be reduced, it happened one day that a plain working man presented himself and asked a hearing. His name was Stewart, his residence Philadelphia. He told the committee how the demand for work was falling off, and attributed the fact to an apprehension that the duties on all kinds of goods would be materially reduced. Congressman Turner thought to throw the workingman off the track by alluding to the heavy tax the workingmen have to pay on their woolen clothes. To this Mr. Stewart replied:

"The duties on all the woolen clothes I wear in a year could be paid with two days' wages. Now I am losing two days' work every week on account of the mere threat to reduce the duties, a threat which, if carried out, would take from each week's wages an amount that would pay the duties on all the woolen clothes that I buy in a year."

About that time the Ways and Means committee adjourned.

T. G. Ellsworth, who was formerly superintendent of the Western Union Telegraph company in New York, and helped establish the telephone system in that city, has recently explained the facts about the expiration of the famous telephone patents. "The Bell patent expires," he says, "on January 30, 1894. That of the transmitter has already expired. After January 30, 1894, any one can make and sell Bell telephones. Manufacturers of the instrument are already in the field. Circulars are being sent out inviting subscribers and giving the terms upon which the telephones can be furnished. Already sets are furnished at $15 each, which is a big difference between paying $12.50 a month for the simple use of a telephone and $25 a month for a special wire. Once buy a telephone and it will last a life time."

An exchange says: "Those farmers who are so fortunate as to be out of debt are in days like these the most independent class in the country. Even if money is scarce they have enough to live on, and don't have to confront the probability of losing their business and the accumulations of a life time of hard work in the press of hard times as is the case with almost every other business." It is not necessary to qualify the statement in any way. A farmer out of debt is more independent than any other business man at all times.

The Hillsboro Independent of last week contains the following notice of a publication which has been sent to every editor in the state: A book has come to this office well printed and of the most fashionable binding. On the advertising page is the announcement of "Liberty, published weekly, Pioneer organ of Anarchism in America." As appears on the title page this is endorsed by the Oregon Farmers Alliance, Oregon Knights of Labor, Oregon State Grange and Portland Federated Trades Assembly. No comments.

The Press Club of Portland and the citizens who assisted them in entertaining the editors of Washington and Oregon in such magnificent style are deserving of much credit for the handsome manner in which they entertained their visitors. Nothing was left undone that could contribute to the comfort and enjoyment of the "press gang." May their jarder always be filled with as good as they provided for their guests.

The Budget pays Judge McBride a merited tribute in the following: "There has been a wonderful change in the manner of distributing justice in Clatsop county since Thomas A. McBride was elected judge of the circuit court in that district. One can now truly say the laws have not been made for the protection of the criminals and for the benefit of a few favorites of the court."

When a democratic state convention in financially conservative Massachusetts declares in favor of a state banking system, it becomes evident that the party at large is pretty fully committed to that idea. When with that declaration is coupled commendation of Cleveland's attitude toward the Sherman law, there is a strong hint as to the ulterior purpose of the democratic party.

The Columbia Chronicle is authority for the statement that two farmers in Oregon, one of whom had hay and the other wool, were on a trade. They had agreed to trade for ton, even. When it came to the test the man with the hay backed down. This is not very encouraging for the free wool men.

No wonder the president waited a long time before calling congress together. He seems in a fair way to wish he had waited a longer time. Well, he will have to "grin and bear it," but he can get consolation out of the thought that he does not have to listen to all of the free silver speeches.

Perhaps some of our readers would like to know in what respect Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is better than any other. We will tell you. When the Remedy is taken as soon as a cold has been contracted, and before it has become settled in the system, it will counteract the effect of the cold and greatly lessen its severity, and it is the only remedy that will do this. It acts in perfect harmony with nature and aids nature in relieving the lungs, opening the secretions, liquefying the mucus and causing its expulsion from the air cells of the lungs and restoring the system to a strong and healthy condition. No other remedy in the market possesses these remarkable properties. No other will cure a cold so quickly. For sale by George A. Harding, druggist.
