In Memoriam.

Died—At Carus, October 28, of typhoid pneumonia, Roland W. Griffith, aged 59 years. Mr. Griffith was a native of Wales. He came to America when a lad of twelve and found his home in Wisconsin where he lived till after his marriage to the wife who survives him.

After some time spent in Kansas and California in 1883 he came to Oregon with the exception of one year spent in Roslyn, Wash., he has lived at Carus clearing and making improvements on the eighty acres which he homesteaded. Besides his wife he leaves one child, Mrs. Mary Ellen Hodson, residing in California.

Mr. Griffith's death was sudden at the last though he had been feeble for the past year. It was a shock to some of his friends who had not even learned of his illness. He passed away without pain, conscious to the last. The funeral services were held at the First Presbyterian church. Much sympathy is felt for the lonely widow so early bereaved.

Died.

October 14, 1893, after a painful illness of three years, Miss Martha Jari, at the residence of her mother near Sandy, Or., aged 19 years and 6 months. Deceased was a native of Norway and had been blind for more than two years prior to her death. She was buried at Damacus cemetery.

Doing the World's Fair With Comfort.

Colonel William R. Nelson, proprietor of the Kansas City Star, came to town last Wednesday morning and proceeded at once to do the World's fair. He has very distinct and, we will add, very proper notions as to personal comfort-theories justified in his case by an avoirdupois that demands and exacts consideration. The first object that caught the colonel's eye and awakened his enthusiasm upon entering Jackson park was one of those miniature steam launches which ply a piratical trade upon the meandering waters thereabouts, and down into that particular craft went the colonel, and upon a comfortable cushion sat he him down, and unto the merry mariner he quoth: "Waft me, oh, gentle boatman, o'er the bounding billow and keep well in the shade, for my pores are open, my collar droops and I fain would be refreshed!"

The boat in which Colonel Nelson embarked was the Birdie, having an official draft, as her license indicated, of two feet, but for the six hours during which the colonel compressed that cushion the Birdie for the first time in her seafaring career drew a draft of seven feet and ran the risk of shipping water every time a tack or a turn was made. From this point of view the colonel did the Manufacturers, the Fine Arts, the Mining and the Transportation buildings. Subsequently he viewed Midway pleasure from a sedan chair borne by four sweating slaves, and when he got ready to return to the Windemere hotel he did so in a wheel chair.

Yesterday Colonel Nelson resumed operations, and last evening he was wondering why so many people complained of being tired. His experience convinces him that the World's fair can be done without fatigue, provided one goes about it in a sensible way.—Chicago News-Record.

Guns Not Needed In Summer.

There is neither need for nor sense in taking gun or rifle into the woods at a season when the law forbids its use upon birds and animals certain to be seen. Many an otherwise honest camper has become a law breaker simply because a gun or rifle was within easy reach at the wrong moment. Take all the fishing tackle you may desire, but leave the firearms at home until the proper time for them arrives. "But we might see a bear," a camper exclaims. Well, suppose you do see a bear? It won't hurt you, and you won't see it long after it sees you. Nor is there glory of much worth in killing a summer bear in poor coat and of no earthly use. "But we might see a bear," Yes, exactly! I'll finish it for you. The word was stopped just in time.

The fact is, you might see a moose or a caribou, or a deer or grouse, or duck or any one of the animals or birds which the law of the land, of honor and of common sense forbids you to meddle with for a reasonable time. And, furthermore, my friend, if you should see one of these creatures you'd promptly try to "plug it," and that is precisely what you have no business to do. "Lead us not into temptation" is good, and "Don't lead yourself into temptation" has also led to a sure thing of it by leaving the tempters behind so they can't tempt you!—Outing.

An English Observer In Chicago.

It is only in the far west probably that the old race of spitters keep up the best practice. In the cities, at any rate, you seldom see men who tilt back in their chairs, put their heels on the dinner table and take the fire irons at 40 paces. Civilization is progressing when you must not talk about spittoons, but demand that utensil under the name of "cuspidor." Still the most prominent notice in the Woman's building is, "Do not spit on the floor." A man stood beside me as I read this. He wore a slouch hat and that Buffalo Bill's was simply a fashionable bonnet in size, trickles of rich tobacco juice watted his mouth like a barrel's, his boots were models for a coffin maker.

At the World's Fair.

The Moors, the Turks, wild men with dirks Here show their customs curious. The Japanese and folks like these Wear knives that are injurious.

Here are balloons and foreign tunes That skirt both fast and furious, And Cairo folk as brown as oak And Zulus true or spurious.

The dancing girls make startling whirls— Be careful how you look at them. All innocent and shy I went And—well—a peep I took at them.

Men from Ceylon you'll see anon, From Sika and from Tokio, For sights so rare you every where Fees to men white or smoky owa.

Here mosques you see and Japan tea, And claim they serve romantically, And sliding cars and foreign jars, For which they charge gigantically.

The Ferris wheel, with arms of steel, High as a tower will wind you up. If you should fall, for good and all The doctor they would bind you up.

—Eugene Field in Chicago Record.

Human Nature Is Queer.

Next to the first pronounced hoop skirt on Broadway the first straw hat of the season creates the largest attention. When a man has confidence enough in the weather to start out for a two days' trip with a straw hat, he is planning a great responsibility upon the weather bureau, which stands for our modern providence. I saw such a man at the Fifth Avenue hotel one day, and his was the first straw hat of the season. To say that he attracted much attention and was the subject of a great many pleasantries is putting it very mildly. There are some people, however, who are either indifferent to criticism or too obtuse to observe it, who begin things without consulting other people. Somebody has to begin, you know, but the large majority of mankind lead to be conspicuous in any particular as to dress.

Men are awful cowards when it comes to dress. They wait for those of better nerve and then follow like a flock of sheep. Scarcely a man of all those who smiled and sneered and laughed at the man with the first straw hat but will be wearing a straw hat himself this summer. Yet if all men were like these no such thing as the comfortable straw would have ever been worn, because no man would have had the courage to begin it. There is a certain humor in the incongruity of things, it is true, and if a man appear on Broadway in straw hat and miter he is likely to be a sensation—at this season of the year. A month or two later and the man with the overcoat and straw may be seen at any summer resort.—New York Herald.

Champion of the British Monarch.

Queen Victoria has lost her champion. He died only the other day, but his son succeeds to the office. It is his duty to stand ready at all times to defend against all comers the right of the sovereign to her crown. But he only appears in public, personally or by duty, on coronation day, when, unless the sovereign dispenses with the ceremony, he must declare her formally crowned, throw down the gauntlet and defy her enemies. If the champion fails in this duty, he forfeits his estate, given the family by William the Conqueror, and sinks into middle class obscurity, for the queen's champion is not a nobleman. Yeoman and squire was Robert de Marmyon when William the Conqueror made him his champion and gave him the manor of Scirevelsby, and his descendant, who has just surrendered the office by death, was a simple justice of the peace. Queen Victoria did not call upon her champion at her coronation, nor did William IV. George IV was the last king at whose coronation the ceremony was observed, but the simple country squire who succeeds now to the championship is not at all likely to be called upon to perform the duty of his office for Albert Edward.—Springfield Republican.

Experiments With Infected Cattle.

Interesting experiments are now being tried in England by a royal commission on tuberculosis. A cow is selected and for a considerable time is watched carefully to see that it is free from disease. It is then fed for some days on food infected with the bacteria and tuberculosis, and afterward time is allowed for the development of the infection. The commission is to report whether meat and milk from such animals are infective, and if so the degree to which the use of them is likely to affect public health.

The experiments, which are necessarily slow, have consumed much time. The commission met recently to consider the results so far arrived at, but the final report will probably not be made before the autumn.

In view of the care with which this work has been done, the results will be of considerable value and may cause changes in the laws respecting the importation of cattle.—New York Sun.

The Caliph In A Fix.

The caliph of Khartoum is in a bad way. He owns 700 watches, and not one of them goes. In 1885, when the Mahdists invaded the town, all the European watchmakers left the place, and none of the natives understand watchmaking. To have 700 tickers and not know the time—awkward, very. The caliph has sent a special messenger to Suakin to engage a watchmaker, but he has been received very coolly. The ruler of Khartoum is said to be rather quick tempered and capable of cutting off your head if all his watches don't keep time to the second.—Petit Journal.

American Hay In Europe.

The first full cargo of hay ever sent from this country to Europe will be shipped to Havre in a few days per the German steamer Freiburg. Hay is worth from $40 to $50 a ton in many sections of Europe at this time, and the freight charge of $2.50 per ton cuts but a slight figure in the account.—Bangor Commercial.
