Thinking he might be or a bank of rising fog that had attracted him. But no; it was a black, sulphurous smoke, just each as volcances emit from their craters when they are active. He could not be deceived. The atmosphere was clear and the dark color of the cloudmass as it issued from the side of the mountain and lazily drifted to near the semmit and off to the south argued to him that it was neither cloud nor mist. The wind, too, was from the south, it was going to flood them out on the but the smoke from volcanoe's smoldering fires moved off toward the south, only to be caught by the wind and returued a half hour later within the limits of the silent vigil of the summit. This is the third time Mr. Clarke has had the pleasure of seeing Old Hood upon which was just fairly in shape to moke. The first time was in February, 1868, when the smoke ascended from the STREET WORK TO STOP .- The storms crater in a solld column instead of of October and November have got in broken as in this instance. In lien however of the real thing or of a legislative body some of the prominent citizens have organized a mock senate and after this week will be prepared to discuss all from 12th to 14th so work was stopped public measures with as much dignity and sangfroid as do the real senators in the Capitol at Washington. An organization was perfected last Friday evening with Dr. W. E. Carll as president of the Uniten States, Jas. Thorne president of the senate, Geo. L. Story chief clerk, W. H. Powell calendar clerk Nathan Moody reading clerk and C. U Campbell sargeant at arms. The president of the senate appointed a committee to wait on President Carll and inform him that the Senate was organized and ready for business. It is expected that a message will be sent in at the next meeting on Friday evening and that the committee's will be appointed and after that that the senate will be ready for business. The meeting tonight will be held in the A. O. U. W. hall at 7:30. Members and all desiring to become active working members are invited to be present.
