REPUBLICAN TICKET.

The city ticket nominated by the republicans on Monday evening is a good clean ticket, composed of representative citizens, and every man on the ticket ought to command the hearty support and suffrage of every good citizen who favors an honest administration of the city's affairs at the hands of clean men. There is not a name on the ticket that is not well and favorably known, and aside from personal dislike, which ought not to dominate in the choice of officers to administer the affairs of the city, there can be no valid objection brought against the men named at Monday's convention. The nominee for mayor, T. L. Charman, has in the past evinced a lively interest in the welfare of the city and may be relied upon, in case of his election, to give the office the attention which it demands at this time. He will be a credit to the office and no citizen of the city will have cause to blush over the acts of its chief executive either as a private citizen or a servant of the public in case of his election.

J. N. Harrington, H. C. Stevens, George Broughton, and G. H. Washart are careful, conservative citizens of the city whom every one knows and respects. They were not put up simply as vote catchers, but because they can be relied upon to conduct the affairs of the city in a wise and economic manner. There is no reason why every man on the ticket should not receive the united support of republicans and democrats and even of others who honestly wish the welfare of the city above mere partisanship. It is a ticket on which all good citizens can and ought to unite.

WITH THANKFUL HEARTS.

Thanksgiving day has come to be considered as a time to enjoy something more than ordinary of the material things which contribute to the comfort and enjoyment of the inner man, and in this part at least of the continent there are few who do not find the means and something to be thankful for. Even if the past year has not prospered with us as fully as we could have desired we may have occasion to be glad that it is no worse, thereby emulating the example of the laborer referred to in the old school readers who, losing one by one the comforts which he had provided for the evening meal, yet after each loss found he had something left to be thankful for, and did not make bad matters worse by fretting over what he could in no way help since the evil had already been done.

We may not have as many dollars as we had a year ago, but friends, relatives and health need be no less or no less dear on that account. It is probable that all have enough to eat and could and would willingly share with any less fortunate, so that they too might have occasion to be thankful on the day set apart for thanksgiving and prayer. It is not enough that the time of the annual thanksgiving be set apart as a season to make glad both in our own families and by assisting as we may be able any less fortunate, but it is well and proper that we should upon this occasion find some means to lighten the burden and make bright the pathway of some one traveling in the shadow of a passing cloud and be thankful for the opportunity to assist a fellow traveler.

GOVERNOR MCKINLEY in a recent speech in Boston, quoted from President Cleveland's message to congress last September the clause, "It may be true that the embarrassment from which the business of the country is suffering arises as much from evils apprehended as from those actually existing," and continued, "This is true. Remove the apprehension of threatened tariff legislation, remove the scare of promised free-trade bill, remove the fear which has settled upon every business interest, and confidence will return. What would be more welcome to business interests of the country than an assurance that this congress would adjourn without meddling with our industrial legislation? I sound a note of warning here to-night. The effect of the proposed tariff legislation, whether intended or not, is an unerring blow at labor which will be instantly felt in the home of every operative in the United States."

AFRODIS of the Thanksgiving season this extract from the Farm and Home may furnish the text for a line of thought a little out of the usual run. It says: "Throughout the mechanical industries many families are just now without the income of regular wages, and the winter looks dark. The families of business men are learning a long-needed lesson in economy; for the middle classes of American society are extravagant in their habits of living. The farming industry, on the other hand, is not suffering like the others from recent disturbances of trade, and they can celebrate the Pilgrim feast day with a grateful heart. The nation as a whole may well congratulate herself upon the remarkable strength and stability of this foundation of all industries, the agricultural, at a time when a pure foundation is so essential to the recovery of business. As shown by census figures made by this paper, hardly one-half of our farms are overgrazed—a guarantee of future prosperity in all lines. This is worthy of celebration on the part of the whole people without regard to occupation. Remember that the Pilgrims could get up a lot of Thanksgiving enthusiasm over the fact that they were alive and well, with the prospect of having enough to eat and wear through the winter. The resources of the United States as we see them now throw the glow of promise not on a season to come but on centuries."

A Washington correspondent says the tariff bill being prepared by the Ways and Means committee proposes "A reduction of all protective duties to a point where it is supposed there will be the greatest encouragement for importations at a rate to produce the greatest revenue." This is in accord with the declaration of the Chicago platform of the dominant party and it will be well for every laboring man to consider its meaning and determine as to the result. It can mean nothing else than the partial transfer of American industries to foreign countries. It is impossible to reduce duties and increase revenues without an increase in the amount of imported goods. Now, for every increase of a million dollars' worth of goods imported there will be a falling off of a million dollars' worth in the home products. This, of course, does not apply to foreign products that we cannot produce ourselves. But it applies to woolen goods, cotton goods, iron in all stages of manufacture—to everything in fact which under a protective tariff we are now producing. For every million dollars decline in the consumption of home made goods, there must be a corresponding falling off in the amount of labor and raw material consumed. Some body would get bit by this arrangement.

THE democrats of this city who favor good government administered by clean men without axes to grind, ought to find no difficulty in determining which ticket they will support at the polls next Monday since they have nominated no ticket of their own. The republicans offer them a ticket composed of good clean men against none of whom is there a breath of scandal. They are also competent men, representative citizens and well qualified to transact the business of the city intelligently and carefully. Besides, they are honest and straightforward and will seek, not to promote personal ends but the city's interests and welfare. Let their election speak in no unmistakable terms the intention of the citizens of Oregon City to have a good government administered by men whom all can respect and trust, in all places, in all things and at all times.

THE Boston Journal says that the southern democratic members of the Ways and Means committee are willing to grant the New England manufacturers only 25 per cent. duty. This is exactly 25 per cent. more than the New England woolen manufacturers are willing to allow the producers of wool. It is now understood that the Ways and Means committee have decided to put wool, iron, ore and other raw materials on the free list. It is intimated also that the southern and western producers of raw materials will not vote for a bill which admits such materials free. Present appearances are that when congress meets it will have a livelier time over the tariff than it had over silver.

THERE is always more or less pulling and hauling previous to the city election in favor of the different candidates for the appointive offices, and the present canvass does not vary from its predecessors in this particular. Whatever course in this respect others may have pursued, it is safe to conclude that Mr. Charman has not pledged himself to the support of any one, or several candidates for the various offices to be filled, but that he will, when the time comes to fill the offices, consult the wishes of the citizens and appoint the men that the people want. Can the candidate or the people ask more than this?

THE McKinley theory, according to the San Francisco Call, is for each nation to look out for itself. If general national conditions are more favorable to the wage-earners in the United States than in Europe we have a perfect right to legislate to preserve those conditions. The McKinley tariff imposes duties on foreign products to enable American manufacturers to retain the American market while conforming to the American standard of wages. The average American does not gloat over human misery, but he keeps misery as far from his own peaceful shores as possible.

THE laws of this country should be so framed as to promote the use of silver to the fullest possible extent required by the business interests of the country. This policy would neither favor the silverites, who care for no other interest beyond their own selfish ends in securing for the white metal a price beyond its actual value, nor the goldites who wish to prosper by depreciation in value.

Do the people of this city want a man for the chief executive office in the city who is understood to have pledged himself to the appointment of certain candidates in case of his election, or do they want a man who believes in taking the office unpledged so that he may perform the duties pertaining to that office as the people may desire at the time?

PROMINENT democrats said before the republican convention that if the republicans would put up a representative ticket of capable and clean men it would get a large vote from the democratic party which has no ticket of its own. The republicans point with pride to the names which were placed on the ticket on Monday and invite all good citizens to unite in electing these men to office since their election will best insure good government during the two years for which they are chosen.

It is reported that several of the candidates for the appointive offices have taken off their coats for the purpose of electing a mayor. While it may be a good thing to have a friend in the mayor it is well to bear in mind that the council also has a voice in determining who shall serve the city. It may not after all be the wise thing to work for a mayor and antagonize members of the council by the act.

SECRETARY CARLILE says it is absurd to contend that there should be two different standards of value as it would be to insist that there should be two yard-sticks of different lengths.

EAGLE CREEK POINTS.

A Fake Show—Warning About Dangerous Weapons—Good Hunting.

EAGLE CREEK, Nov. 20.—Farmers are busy plowing for their fall and winter oats. They are intending to sow most of their oats this fall, fearing we may have another such spring as the last.

Henry Wilbern is on the sick list. Lafe Douglass, Harney Gibson and Will Palmater were out hunting one day last week and as a reward brought home five very fine large deer.

Mr. Northrup and Bill Jones are prospecting for gold on Eagle Creek.

Three boys from Logan gave a show at Wilbern's hall last Saturday night. They advertised as Professor Vernon the fire-eater, Billy DeVine and Charlie Clark, the light weight pugilists of Montana and Idaho. The Eagle Creek boys say come again when eggs are not so high priced.

A young man living about three miles from Eagle Creek, and who travels quite late in the night, carries a 38-caliber pistol which he fires promiscuously in the air. When he purchased the dangerous weapon his threats were that he would make a sieve of some of the boys. Be careful, young man, what material you use in making lives.

There was a series of meetings at the Pleasant Hill school house on Sunday. Three ministers were present. I. C. U.

HOOD VIEW.

A Letter Full of Interesting News From a Live Neighborhood.

(Continued from last week.) John Zumwalt, one of our oldest pioneers, celebrated his seventy-sixth birthday last Tuesday, the 14th, at his residence, with a few relatives. All partook of a hearty good dinner prepared by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Spencer. Grandpa had been visiting a few weeks with relatives in Vancouver, Washington, and only arrived home in time for the dinner, so the invitations were not sent to all whom they had intended to invite for fear Mr. Zumwalt would not return in time and disappointment would ensue. Hence those who may think they were slighted will now know the true cause. Among those present were Mrs. M. C. Graham of Newberg, Mrs. T. S. Riggs of Wilsonville, Mrs. C. O. Davis and Mrs. Etta Short of Portland, (daughters of Mr. Zumwalt), Mrs. M. C. Young, Miss Twink Graham, Misses Jessie and Lottie Riggs, Masters Lorn Epler and Claude Riggs, grand children, little Miss Norma Spencer, great grandchild, and Mrs. H. Golding of Laurel Hill farm.

Mr. Zumwalt is one of the oldest settlers in the Willamette valley, having settled here in the early fifties. He has been for the past thirty-six years a great sufferer from asthma, but at present is still able to do a good fair day's work in his vegetable garden which is the pride of his heart.

STAFFORD NEWS.

STAFFORD, Nov. 27.—It has rained almost incessantly since Pennoyer's day. The creeks are once more on the rampage. The dance at Larsen's hall Thursday night had a slim attendance, there being but about sixty-five persons present and only twenty-eight numbers sold. The music was furnished by the Bevins band, of Hubbard.

The Duplex met Saturday night with forty-one persons present. The debate, "Resolved, That fire is more harmful to the universe than water," was barely won by the negative.

Most every farmer has an eye on some particular Mongolian pheasant with which to appease his appetite on the national Thanksgiving day.

Jack Hanna has taken a contract to clear five acres of brush land for Mr. Poliftha at $25 per acre. W. W. S.

A DISTURBANCE
Isn't what you want, if your stomach and bowels are irregular. That's about all you get, though, with the ordinary pill. It may relieve you for the moment, but you're usually in a worse state afterward than before.

This is just where Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets do most good. They act in an easy and natural way, very different from the huge, old-fashioned pills. They're not only pleasant, but there's no reaction afterward, and their help lasts. One little sugar-coated pellet for a gentle laxative or corrective—three for a cathartic. Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, Dizziness, Sick and Bilious Headaches, are promptly relieved and cured.

They're the smallest, the easiest to take—and the cheapest pill you can buy, for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned.

You pay only for the good you get.
