Annual Meeting and Election of Officers of the Butte Creek Fair Association—Something Political.

MARQUAM, Jan. 9.—The stockholders of the Butte Creek Agricultural Association held their annual meeting at this place last Saturday, the 6th inst. Owing to the disagreeable weather a small attendance was present. The following board of directors and officers were elected for the ensuing year: Directors—J. T. Drake, A. V. Davis, J. E. Marquam, P. J. Ridings and A. F. Jack. Officers—P. J. Ridings, president; J. T. Drake, vice president; A. F. Jack, secretary; A. V. Davis, treasurer.

The new board of directors are all enterprising young men who have the entire confidence of the stockholders. Valuable improvements will be made during the summer for the fair of 1894. A new premium list will be issued in time and every one should prepare an exhibit for the Butte Creek fair.

A Christmas tree about three feet high, finely decorated and laden with presents arrived through the mail at the Marquam postoffice this week. The package was direct from Chicago and was received by Major John N. King of this place.

The political pot has already begun to "bottle" in this part of the county. The general desire is to see a radical change in the way of official matters and an economical set of officers.

Last week as the youngest son of J. P. Irwin went into the yard about 5 o'clock in the morning he saw a man with a sack of flour which he had procured from Mr. Irwin's store room over the granary. The man called out to "drop that flour" and the man dropped it and ran. They could easily track him. They looked at their pile of flour to find at least seven sacks gone.

Orville Omelet.

ORVILLE, Jan. 8.—The holidays are over and everybody has settled down to business.

Some of our people attended the public installation of officers of the Grand Army of the Republic at Seely last Saturday. They report having had a good time.

Mrs. Saery, who has been visiting in this neighborhood for the last week, has returned to her home in Silverton accompanied by Mrs. L. C. Perdue.

Miss Mattie Noe has just closed a very successful term of school in district No. 22. Miss Noe is a good teacher and we would recommend her to any district in need of a teacher.

Those who are making nightly visits to the chicken roosts in this vicinity would better break off the habit at once or it may cause them trouble in the future.

The public dinner given at the church was not very well attended on account of the bad weather.

The young people are talking of giving an entertainment in the near future. We sincerely hope such will be the case, as it would have a tendency to bring back the days of old when this neighborhood was noted for its entertainments.

Mink Mutterings.

MINX, Jan. 2.—Last Saturday as Charles Moehne and his son August were coming from Molalla Mink their horses and wagon got stuck in the mud on the Molalla road, and it took them three hours to pry the wagon out, and perhaps if Mr. Cooper had not come to help them out they would have had the place for a camp that night. The Oregon people need to be pitted if they can't afford better roads than that.

August Moehne has returned to Oregon City where he is attending school.

The Mink choir was invited to have New Year's supper at Chris Moehne's. A delicious feast was spread for them. After they had partaken of the same they gave several songs. Then games were played till two a. m. when refreshments were served, after which the games continued till morning.

SANDY SMILES.

Eight Inches of Snow—Literary Society Election—New Settlers Locating.

SANDY, Jan. 8.—Sandy got its first touch of real winter weather the second day of January. About an inch of snow fell on that day, but it melted nearly as fast as it fell. About eight inches of snow lies on the ground at present. It is thought here that we will have quite a spell of winter as a good many of our people are building sleds for winter use.

Regardless of the rough winter weather which we have been having both of our literary and debating clubs are well attended at every meeting. Last Wednesday evening the Sandy Ridge school house was filled to its fullest capacity, and everybody took a deep interest in the discussion of the question, which was, Resolved, That art is more pleasing to the eye than nature. After a lively discussion it was decided in favor of the negative. The following officers have been elected: John Doyan, president; J. E. Siefer, vice president; Mrs. Siefer, secretary; Miss Ella Meyer, treasurer.

Quite a number of men came down from the Bull Run head works who have stopped work. They say that a few are still working, but it is probable that work will be stopped altogether if the bad weather continues.

Mr. Strauser, who lately came from New York, has purchased the Derby farm, consisting of 75 acres, for $1200, upon which he has already made extensive improvements.

Mr. Maroney, who has bought the Pickens farm, has settled on it for good.

The mail contract between Sandy and Portland has been let to a gentleman from San Francisco, and a man from Chicago has the Marquet and Sandy mail route.

The men who have the route between Sandy and Alms and Sandy and Dover are strangers.

An estray horse about sixteen hands high, weighing about 1200 pounds, and of a bay color, entered Mr. Neibauer's enclosure the past week, and Mr. Neibauer is anxious that the owner should come and take him away.

Snow was about four inches deep here this morning but it is now raining.

BREAKING GROUND FOR WHEAT.

Early and Careful Preparation of the Soil Essential to a Good Crop.

The careful farmer breaks the ground for wheat several weeks previous to sowing. This early preparation of the soil is one of the essentials of a good wheat crop, and unless we have good crops of wheat from every acre planted it is useless to attempt to make a living from growing this cereal. Soils vary so much that no definite rule can be laid down as to the depth necessary to break the soil in order to put the land in proper condition. A stiff clay soil does not require breaking deeper than three or four inches, but a sandy soil or a deep, loose, black loam should be broken not less than six to eight inches deep. The wheat plant is one that feeds largely upon the surface.

In the preparation of the seed bed the more thoroughly pulverized the particles of the soil are the better it will be for the seed and the young growing plants. Good, thorough tillage is one of the great things about good wheat growing that must be attended to early in the season. It is a great mistake, current among farmers, that it is better to leave small clods of earth in the wheatfield, which in winter crumble out when wet and thus protect the seed from cold weather. On nearly every field where these clods are left the crop of wheat will appear small and stunted, showing that there is something lacking to make the plants thrive well. When we consider the matter closely, we will find that each clod of earth holds so much of the fertility of the soil locked up and which the plants cannot get hold of. There is just so much waste, and this will be in proportion to the number and size of the clods.

There is another feature about the cloddy soil that is worthy of careful thought, writes the author of the foregoing to American Cultivator. He explains that each clod will hold so much moisture in it and keep it away from the plants, so that in very dry seasons these clods will absorb the moisture and dry up the wheat. Owing to these two facts, a thorough pulverization of soil is essential. Every part of the soil must contribute something toward the growing crop, and this can only be done by thorough cultivation beforehand.

The seed bed should in addition to this be thoroughly rolled and packed, as there is a mechanical condition about the soil accomplished in this work that will readily be seen to answer a good purpose. If the soil is left loose and porous, the plants grow poorly. The roots grow straight down and the plants straight up, and when the winter comes they cannot stand the cold. The freezing will raise the plants up and leave the roots exposed, but where the soil is well rolled and packed the roots grow out laterally near the surface. It is a fact often noticed that the tops grow as the roots, and in this way we get a good covering.

In the Vegetable Garden.

An application of some quickly available fertilizer will aid the asparagus roots in storing strength for next season's crop. Cultivate the melon vines and keep the potatoes free from bugs by spraying. Keep the ground around the squashes well stirred and use tobacco dust freely for bugs and beetles. Cover the joints with fresh soil and apply the kerosene emulsion for the vine borer. Spray the tomato vines with the Bordeaux mixture or ammoniacal solution for the rot. Stake or trellis a few plants and remove some of the laterals and leaves so as to allow the surface to dry and take away a breeding place for fungi. A few plants trained to a six foot stake and kept to a single stalk will give early fruits.

Weeds must be fought constantly and not allowed to gain a foothold. Keep the cultivator running every week to stir the soil. Frequent shallow stirring is a great help in a dry time. Remove all crops as soon as harvested and plant something in their place. Intensive, successive gardening is the kind that pays.

Many kinds of seed can be saved without danger of their being mixed. It is generally safe to save peas, beans, radishes, lettuce and many like seeds, but squashes, melons, pumpkins and cucumbers will mix readily with themselves when several varieties are planted near together. Seeds must be well ripened and saved from only superior plants if one wishes to maintain a high quality. These timely hints are from American Gardening.

Potash Salts For Garden Crops.

Professor Maercker, one of Germany's foremost agriculturists, says that the use of potash salts for all kinds of garden crops has proved of great value in moist, sandy soil. For asparagus especially most excellent results have been obtained. In this case, however, potash salts must be used in connection with a heavy dose of nitrogenous fertilizers, such as Chili salt-peter. Five hundred pounds of Chili salt-peter per acre, and even more, have been applied with advantage.
