THE LOGIC OF POPULISM.

The disgraceful condition of things in South Carolina is another illustration of the logical effect of populism. In every state where that form of political lunacy has obtained controlling power there has been an experience of disorder, of violence, of threatened anarchy, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. It was so in Kansas, and later in Colorado, and now we have another striking example in another section of the country, thus showing that the cause of such outbreaks is not local or accidental, but peculiar to the doctrines and methods of the populists wherever they are rigidly applied.

sist it in all localities and under all circumstances. It includes among its adherents many sincere men, we may allow; but this changes not the fact of its inherent error and peril. The logic of its creed and purposes is in direct conflict with those principles and appliances which society has adopted for defense against prevailing evils. It is calculated to do harm, and harm only. The injury that it has already occasioned is sufficient to satisfy any reasonable person that no good is likely to come from it.

A PROPHECY FULFILLED.

A good thing cannot be reiterated too often. The Oregonian of November 9, 1892, contained the following prophecy, and since its absolute fulfillment the great Pacific coast daily has published it every few weeks. Mark its fulfillment: "The country has decreed a change of fiscal and industrial policy in the most prosperous time it has ever known. This is largely the result of the immense foreign vote in the great cities. Chicago carried Illinois for Cleveland as the city of New York carried New York state for him. The labor vote, largely foreign, ignorant of the extent of its prosperity, has been misled by demagogues, and has revolted against the best conditions it has ever known. The populist craze, based on the same errors that has moved the labor vote, has contributed not a little bit to this result. A majority of the voters have for the time put experience aside, rejected the policy under which employment was abundant and wages better than ever before in our history, and have decided, though without knowing it, to put their labor on an equality with that of the cheap labor of the Old World."

"There will be a rude awakening. We shall now have a free trade policy. We ought to have it. The country has voted it, and the present generation should learn from experience what it means. Naturally and inevitably there will be timidity in making investments, particularly in industrial enterprises. Labor will generally find the demand for it checked, since new establishments will not be founded, nor old ones enlarged, under existing uncertainties. The election of Cleveland will carry with it a democratic majority both in the senate and the house, and there will be no obstacle to legislation on the basis of the democratic platform. It will be more than one year till the new policy can be formulated into law and set in operation; nevertheless it is sure that the result of the election of yesterday will be the beginning of a period of industrial stagnation, resulting from the timidity of capital and uncertainty of business, and that the consequences will recoil with terrible force upon the labor classes, through whose votes chiefly the result has been brought about. They who know these things have but to wait regretfully for events to come about which they so plainly foresee."

OUR PARTY FOREVER.

Mr. B. M. Blackburn, a southern editor, prints a double-headed editorial article under the head of "Our Party Forever," in which he bids a tearful farewell to President Cleveland. The motto, "Our Country Right or Wrong" may be defended. A man can have but one native land and consequently may stand by it even when his judgment does not approve of some special line of its policy. But the motto, "Our Party Forever," or "Our Party Right or Wrong," is a fool's motto. An intelligent and conscientious citizen acts with one party as long as he believes it the best, all things considered, that is offered for choice. When it ceases, in his opinion, to be the best he should act with the party that is better. It is this fool cry of "Our Party Forever" that has kept the South in bondage so long. There were a certain number of states that would vote for the party calling itself democratic without a thought of its principles. Thus we see three or four southern states now protesting loudly against a policy they helped to fasten upon the country, and there is not one of them that may not be relied upon to vote when the chance comes for the party that they claim is ruining their industries.—S. F. Call.

FACTORIES WANTED.

A recent issue of the Oregonian in discussing the electrical problem says: "Here in Oregon, with our wealth of water power located at points distant from market and centers of distribution, the transmission of electrical energy long distances by wire may play an important part in the building up of manufacturing enterprises. It goes without saying, that other things being equal, Portland is the most advantageous location for a factory, since it is the great seaport and distributing center of the state. Here the raw material can be gathered from all sections, and from here the manufactured product can be sent throughout the entire Columbia region more cheaply than from any other place. If electric power can be transmitted to this city from the great falls of the Willamette and the score of other falls within a radius of 200 miles, with sufficient cheapness, it would be possible to use the power of those falls to the best advantage. There is tremendous energy in running water going to waste, and electricity promises to save it, store it and send it where it can be used to the best advantage."

In his speech upon the tariff bill before the senate Senator Hill said: "An extreme reduction of tariff duties at a time when the treasury was swollen with a surplus of $100,000,000, when the country was reasonably prosperous, when all our industries were in operation and all our workmen were employed, assumed a different aspect and presented a different question than when proposed now, with a large and growing treasury deficit instead of a surplus staring us in the face, with our industries paralyzed, our manufacturing closed, our workmen idle, and following upon the heels of one of the most disastrous financial panics in history. What was safe and prudent and wise then, it would be criminal folly to attempt now. The present is no time for partisanship, and democrats and republicans should strive to solve the existing problems in a spirit of broad patriotism."

HERMANN AGAIN. Congressional Convention Nominates by Acclamation. The first meeting of the First Congressional district was called to order at 2 o'clock on Monday by Hon. Thos. H. Tongue, of Hillsboro, chairman of the congressional committee, at Salem, Reed's opera house being well filled with delegates and spectators, much interest being taken in the gathering. It had been thought that Hermann would have a walk over, but it soon developed after the gathering of the delegates that there was a strong sentiment in favor of T. H. Tongue, and those best informed stated that if Mr. Tongue had been an active candidate for some little time prior to the meeting he might almost certainly have had the nomination. Certain letters written to parties in this state signifying that Mr. Hermann wished the convention to adjourn so as to give him an opportunity to make the race for governor, and in the event of his failure to secure the coveted plum then he would come in as a candidate for congressman, served to dampen the ardor of his supporters, and it only wanted a few organizers for Mr. Tongue to make him the nominee of the convention.

Tax Democrats may sneer at Rhode Island on account of her size as much as they please, but the fact remains that she is big enough to deal their party a serious blow at a time when a different result would have been celebrated by them with a multiplicity of roosters.

CURRENT PRESS COMMENT.

The South Carolinians have chosen a rather intemperate way of solving the temperance question. It rained salt up in Pocatello, Idaho, a few days ago—spray caught up from the Great Salt Lake, 300 miles away. This storm will have to be followed up with a rain of hot beefsteaks before the Idaho populists are satisfied.

"What would Christ do if he came to Chicago?" Of course we do not know, but we should judge from what we have read of Christ, that should he ever be called there he would go around it, especially if Steas was there.

The way states and cities are going republican it looks blue for the Wilson bill. On a bet "money talks," and on a prophesy the vote on the Wilson bill will be delayed until after the November elections.

Hermann Receives Congratulations.

WASHINGTON, April, 10.—Representative Hermann has received telegrams from all parts of Oregon, congratulating him on his sixth nomination for congress. Members of the house also congratulated him. Hermann said he profoundly appreciated the sixth nomination and has great occasion to feel grateful to the people of his district and the whole state. Such confidence in a representative produces increased regard for him among his associates. All the republicans here expect Oregon will follow the example of Rhode Island in the coming election, and enter a protest against the Wilson bill.

Oregon Public Buildings.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—A harmless looking resolution introduced by Dolph in the senate to day gave rise to a sharp discussion and some lively personalities. It provided for the discharge of the committee on public buildings and grounds from the consideration of bills for the erection of public buildings in Oregon. This called out a statement from the chairman of the committee, Vest, that no discrimination had been shown in building bills, but no building had been favorably reported on account of the depleted condition of the country's exchequer. The resolution was referred to the committee on public buildings.

HERMANN AGAIN.

Congressional Convention Nominates by Acclamation.

The first meeting of the First Congressional district was called to order at 2 o'clock on Monday by Hon. Thos. H. Tongue, of Hillsboro, chairman of the congressional committee, at Salem, Reed's opera house being well filled with delegates and spectators, much interest being taken in the gathering. It had been thought that Hermann would have a walk over, but it soon developed after the gathering of the delegates that there was a strong sentiment in favor of T. H. Tongue, and those best informed stated that if Mr. Tongue had been an active candidate for some little time prior to the meeting he might almost certainly have had the nomination. Certain letters written to parties in this state signifying that Mr. Hermann wished the convention to adjourn so as to give him an opportunity to make the race for governor, and in the event of his failure to secure the coveted plum then he would come in as a candidate for congressman, served to dampen the ardor of his supporters, and it only wanted a few organizers for Mr. Tongue to make him the nominee of the convention.

H. B. Miller, of Grant's Pass, was made chairman and J. W. Hobbs secretary. The delegates present from Clackamas county were C. O. T. Williams, R. Scott, E. M. Hartman, C. T. Toozie, C. U. Barlow, F. W. Greenman and Charles Meserve.

When the preliminary organization had been perfected Binger Hermann was placed in nomination by D. S. K. Buick and Thos. H. Tongue was named by J. A. Carson. Mr. Tongue, in a very neat speech, thanked the convention for the honor but declined to be a candidate at this time. This left the field clear for Hermann, who was nominated by acclamation.

In the appointment of his committees Mr. Miller not only ignored all rules of parliamentary procedure in not recognizing the mover of a motion as the chairman of the committee, but upon the making of the several motions necessary in making the organization he took a paper with his list of committees already made out from the table, held it up in full view and read his committees. This caused much comment. C. O. T. Williams was chosen as Clackamas county's congressional committee-man.

In the evening a grand ratification meeting was held and some rousing speeches made for the party and its principles.
