TROUBLE AHEAD.

At first the Coxey scheme as it was called was treated as a sort of a huge joke by the people and press of the country, most of whom did not realize that from just such John Welsh J. C. Elliott small beginnings great and dangerous movements follow. The French revolution F. Goetsch Mrs. W. M. McIntyre started from a small band of unarmed zealots most of whom hardly knew what they sought, then fired by the strains of a song in which all joined and which inspired the growing multitude to press on, the crowd or prepared to overcome by force any obstacle with which they might contend.

Coxey's followers have all along claimed to be law-abiding citizens, but their acts and their more recent utterances are passing beyond the harmless stage, and it will soon require but a single misstep in the management of his followers to bring down upon the government the fury of a bloodthirsty nob, which gathering force and courage Republican State Ticket. from its own overtacts is liable to cause untold damage to property and life before

It must not be supposed that because there is danger of an assault upon organized society that the government is not able to cope with the opposing force. It is most probable that the emergency will be met and the threatened danger averted by a wise and conservative yet firm course on the part of the administration. But if the worst hould follow and scenes of wild turmoil and slaughter coupled with destruction of property occur for a time, such a condition could not last and the good sense and patriotism of the American people would in a short time reassert itself, and those who might be striving to overthrow both the government and organized society, would be relegated to the rear, and a normal condition of affairs re-established,

THE Search Light, of Ridgeville, Illinois, Brady, of this place. It is a republican paper, direct and incisive. There can be no misunderstanding the editorial matter in its columns; it is pure, manly, broadminded and scholarly. We were deeply interested in the account given of the republican convention of Clackamas county, Oregon, and well we might be, for among the names presented to the convention for nomination, was that of a much esteemed friend, formerly a resident of Edgar county, as he is by those friends that he left behind the meetings advertised. too soon became a mob ready for any deed, when he went out to face the world many years ago, and must say if all the candidates who were nominated at that convention are of the same sturdy, honest material of which Mr. Maddock is composed, that no better ticket could be presented for the suffrage of the people. He was a manly boy and he must be a splendid man.
