

A GLOWING TRIBUTE.

Say, Have You Heard From Garfield?—Prosperity Reigns There.

GARFIELD, June 12.—The name of that illustrious statesman, James A. Garfield, was honored by a rousing republican majority for the whole republican ticket for the first time in the history of this precinct. The populists in the half acre ever since the campaign opened put me in mind of young crows with their mouths open waiting for their mother to feed them; but alas, they found by the late election that the government worm would not materialize. So they have all gone to work with a vim. Even Outfield, King & Co. commenced on Sunday. Everything is prosperous since the election. The man who knocked Coop out has built a nice picket fence around his dwelling. Outfield is building quite a lot of board fence.

Wm. Palmateer is ready to arrest any Coxy populist that may be found robbing hen roosts.

Several new dwellings will be erected soon in this neighborhood. Our butcher, Henry Epperson, is preparing to build, and George Gutman and Carl Heberline are getting lumber on the ground preparatory to building.

Now a few words of advice to our honorable senator and representatives; also to Judge Hayes: When you go to the capitol go there with the intention of preserving the good name of the grand old party—a party which has made such a record that the rising generation can say that it does not need the assistance of the sculptor to perpetuate its memory. It needs no monumental pile, no stately pyramid whose towering heights shall pierce the stormy clouds and rear its lofty head to the heavens to tell posterity its fame, for its worthy deeds have rendered it immortal. Yea, when oblivion shall have swept away thrones, kingdoms, principalities and populates, and every vestige of human greatness, glory and grandeur shall have mouldered in the dust, and the last period of time become extinct, eternity itself shall catch the glowing theme and dwell with everlasting rapture on the name of that great, grand, and glorious old party. INFINITUM.

The Republican Rally.

On Thursday evening following the election the republicans of this city and surrounding country and towns gathered to have a rousing jollification. The town was full of people when the procession formed on Sixth street and marched down Main st. and back. The Oregon City band led the procession, and was followed by the successful candidates, the republican club, the Park Place band and club, the Milwaukee club, the G. A. R. drum corps and citizens. Several conspicuous transparencies bearing such mottoes as, "The Lord is on Our Side," "I'm Not in It, Pennoyer," "Oregon Sets the Pace," "Socialism, anarchy and populism buried 20,000 deep," etc., attracted much attention. It was the intention to have the meeting in Pope's but it became evident that that would not hold one-tenth of the people so a wagon was run out in front of the Electric hotel and used for a speakers' platform. From it all the candidates addressed the immense crowd in a felicitous manner and were applauded to the echo, while horns and the booming of cannon conspired with the yelling republicans, the bonfires on the bluff and the red fire on the street, to make the occasion one long to be remembered. The only unpleasant feature of the evening was Spencer's uncalled-for attempt to talk populism. He was speedily pulled down, as he deserved to be. Just as the speakers concluded, a procession of wheelbarrows appeared bearing a coffin, which was taken upon the stand where Robert Byram wept over it then pronounced a funeral oration over the remains of Pennoyer. It nearly made the crowd go wild with enthusiasm. It was all in all, an appropriate conclusion of a hotly contested campaign.

Firemen Take Notice.

All firemen are requested to be present. All citizens interested in making the tournament a success are invited to be present and participate in the meeting.

HOW TO SLEEP.

The Matter of Position is of Very Great Importance.

In sleeping, much depends on securing a comfortable position. Lying on the back would seem to give the most ease, but general experience and practice prove that it does not, and it is liable to some definite objections. In a weakly state of the heart and blood vessels, and in certain morbid conditions of the brain, the blood seems to gravitate to the back of the head and to produce troublesome dreams. Persons who have contracted chests, and who have had pleurisy and retain adhesions of the lungs do not sleep well on the back. Nearly all who are inclined to snore do so in that position.

For these and other reasons it is therefore better to lie on the side, and in lung disease to lie on the weak side, so as to leave the healthy lung free to expand. It is well to choose the right side, because, when the body is thus placed, the food gravitates more easily out of the stomach into the intestines.

Sleeping with the arm thrown over the head is to be deprecated, but this position is often assumed during sleep, because circulation is then free in the extremities and the head and neck, and the muscles in the chest are drawn up and fixed by the shoulders, and thus expansion of the thorax is easy. The chief objections to this position are that it creates a tendency to cramp and cold in the arms, and sometimes seems to cause headaches and dreams.

The best sleep is obtained when the shutters are closed so as to make the room dark and the windows are adjusted so as to admit plenty of fresh air.

How to Make Oyster Soup.

Two quarts of oysters, a quart of milk, 2 tablespoonfuls of butter, a tea-cupful of hot water, pepper, salt. Strain all the liquor from the oysters, add the water and heat. When near the boil, add the seasoning; then the oysters. Cook about five minutes from the time they begin to simmer until they "ruffle." Stir in the butter, cook one minute and pour into the tureen. Stir in the boiling milk and send to table.

How Smoked Glasses Show Spots on the Sun.

It may be pretty generally known that the spots on the sun can be quite easily seen with an opera glass. The spots on the sun observe, with considerable regularity, a period. At the minimum the spots are small and very few in number, so that a telescope of some power is needed, but at the maximum they are numerous and of large size. This period is about 11 years, and it is now nearly at its maximum.

To appreciate this properly it is well to remember the magnitude of the object we are observing, and from that one can easily judge the size of the spots. The diameter of the sun is about 880,000 miles, and in comparison to the earth is as a large carriage wheel to a marble. If, therefore, the spots observed appear to be about one-twentieth the diameter of the disk, they occupy space about 44,000 miles in diameter.

To view the sun, take a hazy morning or evening, when the intervening mist gives it the appearance of a dull red ball, or get a couple of pieces of glass large enough to cover the eye pieces of the opera glass and smoke one of them until you can look at the sun through it easily. Put two strips of card between the ends with the smoked surface inside and attach to the instrument with a similar rubber band.

It will be best to get your opera glasses accurately focused on some distant object before adjusting the darkened glasses to them.

Manifold Disorders

Are occasioned by an impure and impoverished condition of the blood. Slight impurities, if not corrected, develop into serious maladies, such as an other troublesome disease. To cure these is required a safe and reliable remedy free from any harmful ingredients, and a purely vegetable. Such is S.S.S. It moves all impurities from the blood and thoroughly cleanses the system. Thousands of cases of the worst forms of blood diseases have been Cured by S. S. S.
