THE ORIENTAL MUDDLE.

The following is given by an exchange as the cause of the threatened war in the Orient and will be of interest at this time when many of our readers may not recall the differences which threaten war on the other side of the Pacific: "The history of the Korean incident begins with the Korean rebellion, when, upon the application of the King, the United States sent the warship Baltimore to Chemulpo. Almost simultaneously the Japanese and Chinese governments sent military forces to aid the king in his efforts to stamp out the rebellion. They were successful, and when quiet was restored the Koreans proffered their thanks and suggested a withdrawal of the foreign forces. This was not so easily accomplished, and a government official made an explanation substantially as follows of the situation in Korea, and of the attitude and course of this government: "The Chinese and Japanese have always been at odds whenever Korea was concerned, for each had long cherished designs upon the autonomy of the country. However, the Chinese were willing to withdraw if the Japanese would do likewise, but the latter country discovered that she had a number of grievances against the Koreans on account of maladministration, and making a series of demands, some of which touched the very existence of Korea as an independent nation. Japan announced that her troops would not be withdrawn until these conditions were met. At this point the attention and interest of each nation was strongly aroused, for it was seen that the peace of all Northern Asia was in jeopardy, and the powers that had great interests there began to consider what should be done to dissuade Japan from pursuing a course that promised to break down the integrity of the little nation that had served as a buffer between the two great Asiatic nations. Great Britain and Russia and France interposed with pacific remonstrances, but these were unheeded by Japan, the present government of which it was intimated here, was in such a desperate pass politically that it felt obliged to excite the national feeling as a means of self-preservation. The United States was drawn into the matter. We have large interests in China and Japan and prospect of greatly enlarging our trade relations, and United States Minister Dunn at Tokio represented the conditions to the state department, and it was felt to be not only in our own interest, but for the good of all concerned, to re-inforce the efforts of the great European powers to prevent a conflict that would surely be disastrous to both sides.

His own successor. The Sunday Welcome, commenting on the discussion now pending in some of the papers of the state, says: "It would seem as though with the strike trouble, and the tariff fight, and the Oriental war, and the cholera, and other minor topics to discuss, the Oregon editors could find enough to do without discussing who will be the next United States senator from Oregon—when all of them, and everybody else, know already. But here are a dozen papers publishing a statement that the next legislature may elect Mr. D. P. Thompson, or ex-Senator Corbett, or Mr. Sol Hirsch, or Mr. C. W. Fulton, or Mr. Thomas H. Tongue. O, well, why not add to the list? There are Hon. Hinger Herman, and Hon. W. R. Ellis, and Harry Miller, and Timothy Talking Geer, and Judge Fee, and Mr. Anderson, and ex-Governor Moody, and ex-postmaster Gilbert, and Senator Dawson, and Col. J. B. Eddy, and Senator Benjamin Franklin Alley, and John C. Leasure—and a multitude of other great and good men, who if it was thrust upon them would serve the people of Oregon in the senate with great ability. But it is rather idle talk to discuss the matter, when everybody knows that if he gives Mr. Dolph will succeed himself.

A VOICE FROM OREGON.

Senator Dolph, addressing the senate on the tariff situation on the 6th of June, and before the full election returns were known, said: "Some of my associates have been kind enough to speak for Oregon this morning, but Oregon does not need any one to speak for her. She speaks for herself. Advice received by me from the state indicate that the republican state ticket has been elected by large pluralities, if not majorities over all, and that the governor has been elected by a plurality of somewhere from 10,000 to 15,000 votes; that the joint plurality for the republican candidates for congress will not be less than 10,000, and that the entire opposition, independent republicans, populists and democrats, have elected less than 20 out of the 90 members of the legislature, and I now predict, for the benefit of my friend from Kansas (Mr. Peffer), that when the back counties are heard from the total results in favor of the democrats, populists, and independents will not exceed 10 members of the legislature. Oregon has set the seal of condemnation upon the free-trade policy of the democratic party. The people of Oregon came to know that every industry of that great state was threatened with destruction, and, as a matter of self-defense, they have given their votes in favor of the party which believes in the protection of American industries, the party which would, if it could, protect the lumber industry, the wool industry, the hop industry, the horse-raising industry, and all the agricultural industries of the country.

THIS STYLE NEXT. The Oregon State Journal under the head "A Proclamation," prints the following as an unique and characteristic address issued by one Debs. It is addressed to "the republics, empires, kingdoms and principalities of the universe," and is issued from the Throne room, Uhlens hall, Chicago, and reads as follows: "On and after Monday next, unless I change my mind or the A. R. U. cuts off my salary and I have to go to work, the world will make but one revolution in thirty-six hours instead of twenty-four hours as heretofore. The sun will hereafter rise in the West except on Sunday, when it may rise in the East as usual.

All stars of the first magnitude are hereby ordered on half time, all comets scheduled for appearance prior to 1907 are instructed to tie up wherever they may be on receipt of this notice. St. Peter will allow no one to pass his gate unless bearing a permit signed by me, and to avoid any possible conflict, all American people are forbidden to die until the strike is over.

"Angels will at once organize themselves into direct councils, 'Angels' Celestial Union,' and refuse to play on harps except at a rate of remuneration to be fixed by me. "Commencing right after harvest the Mississippi river will flow North and eventually empty into Hudson Bay. I am aware that for that reason the change is deferred until after harvest to give the people there a chance to move into other states.

"Grover Cleveland is hereby removed from the office of president of the United States and the office abolished. B. B. Waite of Colorado, and Seguestered A. Pennoyer, of Oregon, will at once proceed to Washington and assume charge of affairs until I get there.

"The United States army is hereby disbanded. The privates and non-commissioned officers are paroled, to return peacefully to their homes to seek honest employment and go on strikes as soon thereafter as practicable. The officers will immediately report to me for beheading. The public will be quickly advised of any further changes in the conduct of the universe." This is signed, "yours for peace, Eugene Ventarsome Debs."

COMMENT UNNECESSARY

Chas. H. Dodd, the well-known hardware and agricultural implement dealer of Portland, says in the American Economist: In 1892 we had absolute men employed in our business forty-five, and these forty-five remained with us until October, 1893, when business fell down to such an extent that we cut them down to forty. April 1, 1894, we cut the men down to twenty-three. This gives the standing exactly of the house today. In 1892 with a capital of half a million we employed forty-five hands. The same capital, at the close of 1893, could only give employment to forty hands. The same capital in 1894 can only employ twenty-three hands. In addition to this we have been obliged to cut off six branch houses which, in 1892, yielded good returns; but made a loss in 1893 and the continuance of them in 1894 would have been ruinous. Comment is unnecessary and the figures stand for themselves. The articles we have manufactured and sold are agricultural implements, every one of which were manufactured in the states of New York, Ohio and Illinois and fitted up and finished here.

THE STATE CENSUS.

Next year is the time set by the constitution for a census of the state. The provisions of the constitution and law governing this important work are as follows: Sec. 5 Article IV of the constitution of Oregon provides that the legislative assembly shall every ten years following 1855 cause an enumeration to be made of all the population of the state. The legislature, following the directions of the foregoing, have made provisions in chapter III of the annotated law of Oregon, page 1071, as to who shall do this, what he shall do and when he shall do it. The duty devolves upon the county assessor to begin the work of enumeration on the 10th day of May and to make out an enumeration roll in the following form. One column each for: Legal voters; Males 21 and upwards; Males under 21 and over 10; Males under 10; Females of 18 and upwards; Females under 18 and over 10; Females under ten; The number of acres under cultivation; The number of bushels of wheat raised during the preceding year; The number of bushels of oats raised; The number of bushels of barley and rye; The number of tons of hay; The number of pounds of wool; The number of ounces of gold dust; The number of bushels of corn; The number of sheep; The number of hogs; The number of horses; The number of cattle; The number of pounds of tobacco; The number of bushels of potatoes; The number of bushels of apples; The number of feet of lumber; The number of barrels of salmon; The number of baskets of oysters; The number of mules; The number of pounds of cheese and butter.

THE RAILWAY AGE

The Railway Age for July 13 contains a summary of the railroads which have gone into the hands of receivers or been sold under foreclosure in the first six months of 1894, which shows a total of twenty-three lines with 2,988 miles of road, a funded debt of $121,843,000, capital stock $130,258,000, and total capitalization $252,101,000. This brings the totals of roads in the hands of receivers on June 30 to 152 lines, with 43,000 miles of track and almost $2,500,000,000 of capitalization. During the same six months sixteen roads have been sold under foreclosure, having 1,316 miles of line and an aggregate capitalization of $76,622,900.

ITALY HAS DECIDED TO SEND ANARCHISTS

Italy has decided to send anarchists to an island in the Red Sea, and will take the risk of the waves rolling apart to give them a roadway to the main land.

While democratic professors are teaching the theory of free trade the manufacturers show how free trade works. The call says that the California jute mills have closed down and thrown 400 men, women and girls out of employment, for the simple and sole reason that they cannot pay American wages and compete with Calcutta labor. It adds, Our free-trade professors may say that the proprietors of the jute factory wanted larger profits than the industry could pay, but the fact that a plant which cost $300,000 stands idle is a reasonable assurance that in this case the employer is not closing down of his own will. The real truth is that with the cut in duties proposed by the Wilson bill, ten cents a day Calcutta labor crowds a dollar and a half American labor out. If Calcutta had a vote in the American college of electors, it would, without doubt, be cast as our free-trade professors might direct. Free trade is good for the other country, but little short of suicide for us. Fortunately the genuine free trader is now coming to be considered as a kind of a crank. His work is less noisy, but perhaps more deadly than that of the bomb-thrower.

With the closing of the session of the Chautauqua Assembly which was as successful as could have been expected from the disadvantages under which the committee labored, there comes the question of making it a permanent organization. This involves much work and the laying of a foundation so broad that its existence will not be threatened at any time by any misunderstanding or dispute over indefinite points. Among these are denominationalism, the relation of the church to the secular in control and program, transportation, place of meeting, financial backing and officers who will have control. It is to be hoped that the committee can cope with all these and other important questions which will arise during their deliberations in such a way as to assure an assembly broad-gauged, influential and permanent.

The rate at which Oregon's governor is emptying the penitentiary of the very worst of its criminals is giving rise to a discussion of the advisability of providing a pardoning board in this state. The power to pardon certainly ought to be taken from such men as Pennoyer. In fact it is so often abused that it would be better to dispense with it altogether; but if there is to be a pardoning board let it consist of the supreme judge, the governor and the secretary of state, and let pardons be issued by the board only when the judge and prosecuting attorney of the district in which the criminal was tried and convicted unite in recommending his pardon.

The Schenectady, New York, Union says to its readers, "You'll taste the democratic tariff tinkers' work, when it's done, in every cup of tea and coffee you drink, unless you take them plain; in every glass of lemonade unless you go it sour; in every 'sweet cake' and mouthful of preserves that gets on the table, and in every pound of candy and confection that you buy. Fifty or sixty million dollars in taxes to be taken from the people and given to the sugar trust, is what Cleveland and tariff reform are doing."

The Iron Worker says that the fact that Oregon City is quite prosperous, with its mills in full operation and other industries promised, ought to make times bright for the country tributary and the farmer inhabitants.

Don't mispronounce Chautauqua. As given in Webster it is Sha-ta-qua, the a in the first and last syllables being pronounced almost like short a with a leaning toward short o. The accent is on the second syllable.

HARMONY HOOTINGS.

HARMONY, July 31.—Amos Clift is slashing a twenty acre tract of brush, part of which he has engaged to clear for Mr. Fredenhau of Portland.

Mr. Kitten of Portland who recently purchased ten acres of land of M. E. Thompson is building a small cottage thereon into which he intends moving soon. Monday morning he brought out a cook stove and a few boards on a light wagon. He was going through some timber near his new house when one of the wheels struck the end of a log throwing the upright top of the stove off and breaking it into several pieces. He climbed out of the wagon to swear at the log when the horse started and ran down the road. He attempted to stop it, but falling down one of the wheels ran over him, not hurting him much, however. Beyond the breaking of the stove no damage was done.
