THE COW STABLE FLOOR.

John Gould says: "For more than 20 years we have discarded the plank floor laid on joists away up from the ground, and in the old stable, and now the new, the sum total of the floor under the cows is the 14 inch heel plank that edges the gutter. The three feet between that and the manger has been well tramped, sandy clay that soon becomes as hard as cement almost, and then there is no pit of foul things under the cows; neither frost nor wind can steal up through, and no chance to find a cow frozen down to the frosty floor. A box gutter of pine plank, imbedded in cement, has made a perfect, water tight gutter, and when in the winter manure can be drawn to the field it goes."

Dairy and Creamery.

A speculator has devised a plan for having June butter in midwinter. He buys all the June butter he can at the very lowest price to which the market can be squeezed down; then he puts it in cold storage in receptacles whose temperature is controlled by the new refrigerating process and keeps it till the price is three times what he paid for it. If the flavor of June butter can thus be kept for half a year, and if meantime our dairymen and creamerymen do not put upon the market at a lower price better butter than even this of the speculators', then his plan may succeed. But at any rate he goes to a lot of trouble.

A cow forms the habit of sucking herself sometimes by being allowed when she is a calf to run with other calves. In heifers a flow of milk is sometimes actually produced in this way.

John C. McClintock of Meadville, Pa., who makes his own butter at home from a herd of 98 Jersey cows, has obtained from them for 1893 an average of 370 pounds of butter to the cow. For this he received an average price of 80 cents a pound. The cost of feed for each cow was $47.45, or 18 cents a day. Counting the cost of each cow at $50 a year, Mr. McClintock realized from his herd over $1,700, most of which was net profit. Who else has done as well? The butter McClintock makes is of choice quality.

Next after June butter sweet corn butter stands highest in flavor.

Weigh milk and test it with the Babcock tester, too, if you would learn exactly which of your cows pay.

The Hickory Valley creamery, at Tripoli, Ia., has netted to its patrons 96 cents to the 100 pounds of milk the last year.

Hereafter, since the facts brought out by the Columbian dairy test, both butter and cheese cows will be valued according to the amount of butter fat their milk contains. The test showed that the cow that can produce most butter also makes the most and best cheese, providing always that she gives good flow of milk.

M. Hammerly, a well-known business man of Hillsboro, Va., sends this testimony to the merits of Ayer's Sarsaparilla: "Several years ago, I hurt my leg, the injury leaving a sore which led to erysipelas. My sufferings were extreme, my leg from the knee to the ankle, being a solid sore, which began to extend to other parts of the body. After trying various remedies, I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and before I had finished the first bottle, I experienced great relief; the second bottle effected a complete cure."
