AN EXPLANATION.

Ex-Deputy Sheriff Hackett Explains Some Tax Matters.

TO THE EDITOR: Your issue of August 10 contains a communication from one Casedy, under the caption of "Wants to Know," that I am glad to explain, and I hope, to his satisfaction.

It seems to be the general practice throughout the state for the sheriff, in taxing costs to delinquent taxpayers, to charge mileage to the land and back to court house as against each and every individual taxpayer.

During our first year we followed this general practice, but it always seemed to me that the practice was wholly wrong, in that those living at a great distance from the county seat, and oftentimes those least able to carry the burden, were made to pay more than their just proportion of costs.

During our 1893 collections I consulted Deputy District Attorney C. H. Dye as to whether I could not take the actual mileage as charged by the sheriff and divide this by the number of levies and so make a general average of the burden.

The only thing I have to regret is that we did not adopt the plan sooner.

Mr. Casedy's statement shows that by this method we had saved him (Mr. New) $5.40; and yet, in face of these facts, he would intimate that we were not honest with the people and that the money was not properly accounted for.

Trusting I have made this matter so plain that "he who runs might read," but if not I shall be glad to make a personal explanation to the gentleman or to anyone interested.

This whole system of collecting delin-
