A Progressive Village.

Scotts Mills, a village in the southern boundary of this county, which was laid out two years ago by a Quaker colony, has shown more rustle than many of our larger and wealthier towns. Having a fine water power in the Abaqna, used for running a grist and saw mill, an electric light plant has been added and the village lighted up with electricity. Scotts Mills bids fair to soon become one of the live towns of the Willamette valley.

City Election.

The call is published in another column for a republican mass convention to meet at Pope's hall next Monday evening for the purpose of nominating candidates for councilmen to be voted for on December 3. It was the supposition of many that the convention this year was to be a non-partisan one but the committee whose call is published state that as they were chosen by a republican convention they had no authority to call a peoples' convention.

As to who all will be candidates for municipal honors the wise ones know not. Many are in favor of re-electing the out-going councilmen, on the ground that the one term they have served has given them the experience and knowledge of the city's affairs that would enable them to be of far more service than any new men that could be put in. While neither Messrs. Albright, Kelly, Greenman or Cooke desire a re-election, yet if the sentiment is strong they doubtless will allow their names to be used by the convention. Of new men for the council the following have been mentioned as available candidates: A. B. Graham, J. L. Swafford, E. G. Caulfield, J. B. Renner, E. E. Charman, J. G. Pilsbury, J. N. Harrington, T. F. Ryan, Geo. Califf, R. D. Wilson, Max Schulpins, F. R. Charman and T. A. Pope. All are men who are interested in the welfare of the city and would make good councilmen.

C. G. Huntley will take possession of the corner store, No. 1, in the Caulfield brick the first of next week. It is a neat looking store finished in a light color and Mr. Huntley is having some very handsome fixtures put in and when completed and the large stock he intends to carry in place it will add a great deal to the appearance of the place.
