Casimir-Perier, says our Paris correspondent, figure, first of all, persons who have been condemned for violence or intimidation in connection with strikes, a highly politic move of President Casimir-Perier, not merely on account of his personal connection with mining interests, nor because of the advantage in general of making all generous concessions that are consistent with the preservation of law and order, but also and in particular as being opportune on the eve of an interpellation on the Graissessae strike.

Besides these cases of pardon there are a certain number of other common law offenders who benefit by the accession of a new president. All persons condemned by virtue of the law of 1881 for incitement to anarchist outrages by speech or writing have been systematically excluded from the benefit of par-

A New and Novel Illusion.

At the Earl's Court exhibition is shown a decided novelty which is called the haunted swing. This new side show is of particularly diabolical character. You sit on a swing in a dark room, and while you gently sway backward and forward, a few inches only, the walls of the room are revolving vertically. The effect is to delude the unhappy victim into the belief that the compartment is describing an entire circle. Ladies have been seen to wildly hold their skirts about their ankles at the moment they imagined they were hanging in space head downward, and many a man on leaving the room counts his money to see if any dropped from his pocket, so complete is the illusion.-London Correspondent.

Nobody moved. Then the man who rings up the fares got angry. "See here," he exclaimed after he had climbed along the step on the side of the car until he was opposite the fat man, "what do you mean by telling me to stop for when you don't want to

"Why," responded the mountain of slightly blurred. I merely wanted to have the car stand still until I had finished it. That's all. Now, if you can go along slowly without jolting, I will be able to get along very nicely, but if I come across another bad line or two I'll put my hand back of my head, and you stop. It's too much trouble for me to turn around."

The conductor's eyes twittered in the orbits. He placed his hand to his head and uttered shriek after shriek. Reason was shattered. He had become cross eyed and insane.-New York Mail and

ANCIENT LIGHTHOUSES.

Beacon Lights to Guide Mariners Coeval With the Earliest Commerce.

Beacon lights to guide the wave tossed mariner to a safe harbor must have been almost coeval with the earliest commerce. There is positive record that lighthouses were built in ancient times, though few evidences now remain to us from old writers or in crumbled ruins. This is not strange, for light towers, never the most stable architectrain. For this piece of enterprise she tural form, were exposed to the storms of sea and war.

The Greeks attributed the first lightthroats and robbers, whose services she houses to Hercules, and he was considered the protector of voyagers. It is claimed by some that Homer refers to the sharpest criminal living, and in lighthouses in the nineteenth book of Virgil mentions a light on a temple lasting benefit upon the wealthy classes. to Apollo which, visible far out at sea, warned and guided mariners. The Colessus at Rhodes, creeted about 300 B. C., is sain to have shown a signal light from its uplifted hand.

The oldest towers known were built by the Libyans in lower Egypt. They were temples also, and the lightkeeper priests taught pilotage, hydrography and navigation. The famous tower on the isle of Pharos, at Alexandria, built about 285 B. C., is the first lighthouse of undoubted record. This tower, constructed by Sostratus, the architect, was uare in plan, of great beight and built in offsets. An open brazier at the top of the tower contained the fuel for the light. At Dover and Boulogne, on either side of the English channel, were ancient lighthouses built by the Romans. But the lighthouse at Corunna, Spain, built in the reign of Trajan and reconstructed in 1634, is believed to be the oldest existing lighthouse.—E. P. Adams in Cassier's Magazine.

The Drug Store Telephone.

This morning I was at the breakfast table and was called to the phone. I found it was a lady who patronized me about once a month. She didn't talk plainly and kept me guessing for 15 minutes what she was driving at. I discovered that she wanted me to tell her next door neighbor that she wouldn't be home to dinner and ask her to open a window of the house and 'for mercy sake feed the poor little cat.' The telephone has been removed."—Buffalo Enquirer.

Blanche, now 15 years of age, had been vertibly afflicted with nerroumness, and had lost the entire use of her right arm. She was in such a condition that we had to keep her from school and shandon her music lessons. In fact, we feared St. Vitus dance, and are positive but for an invaluable remedy she would have had that terrible affliction. We had employed physicians, but she received no benefit from them. The first of last august she weighed but 75 pounds, and although she has taken only three bottles of Nervins she now weighs 165 pounds; her nervousness and symptoms of St. Vitus dance are entirely gone, she alaunds school regularly, and studies with comfort and case. She has recovered complete use of her arm, her appetite is splendid, and no money could procure for our daughter the health Dr. Miles' Nervine has brought her.

When my brother recommended the remedy I had no faith in patent medicines, and would not listen to him, but as a last resort he sent us a bottle, we began giving it to Blanche, and the effect was almost immediate."—Mrs. R. R. Bullock, Brighton, N. Y.
